

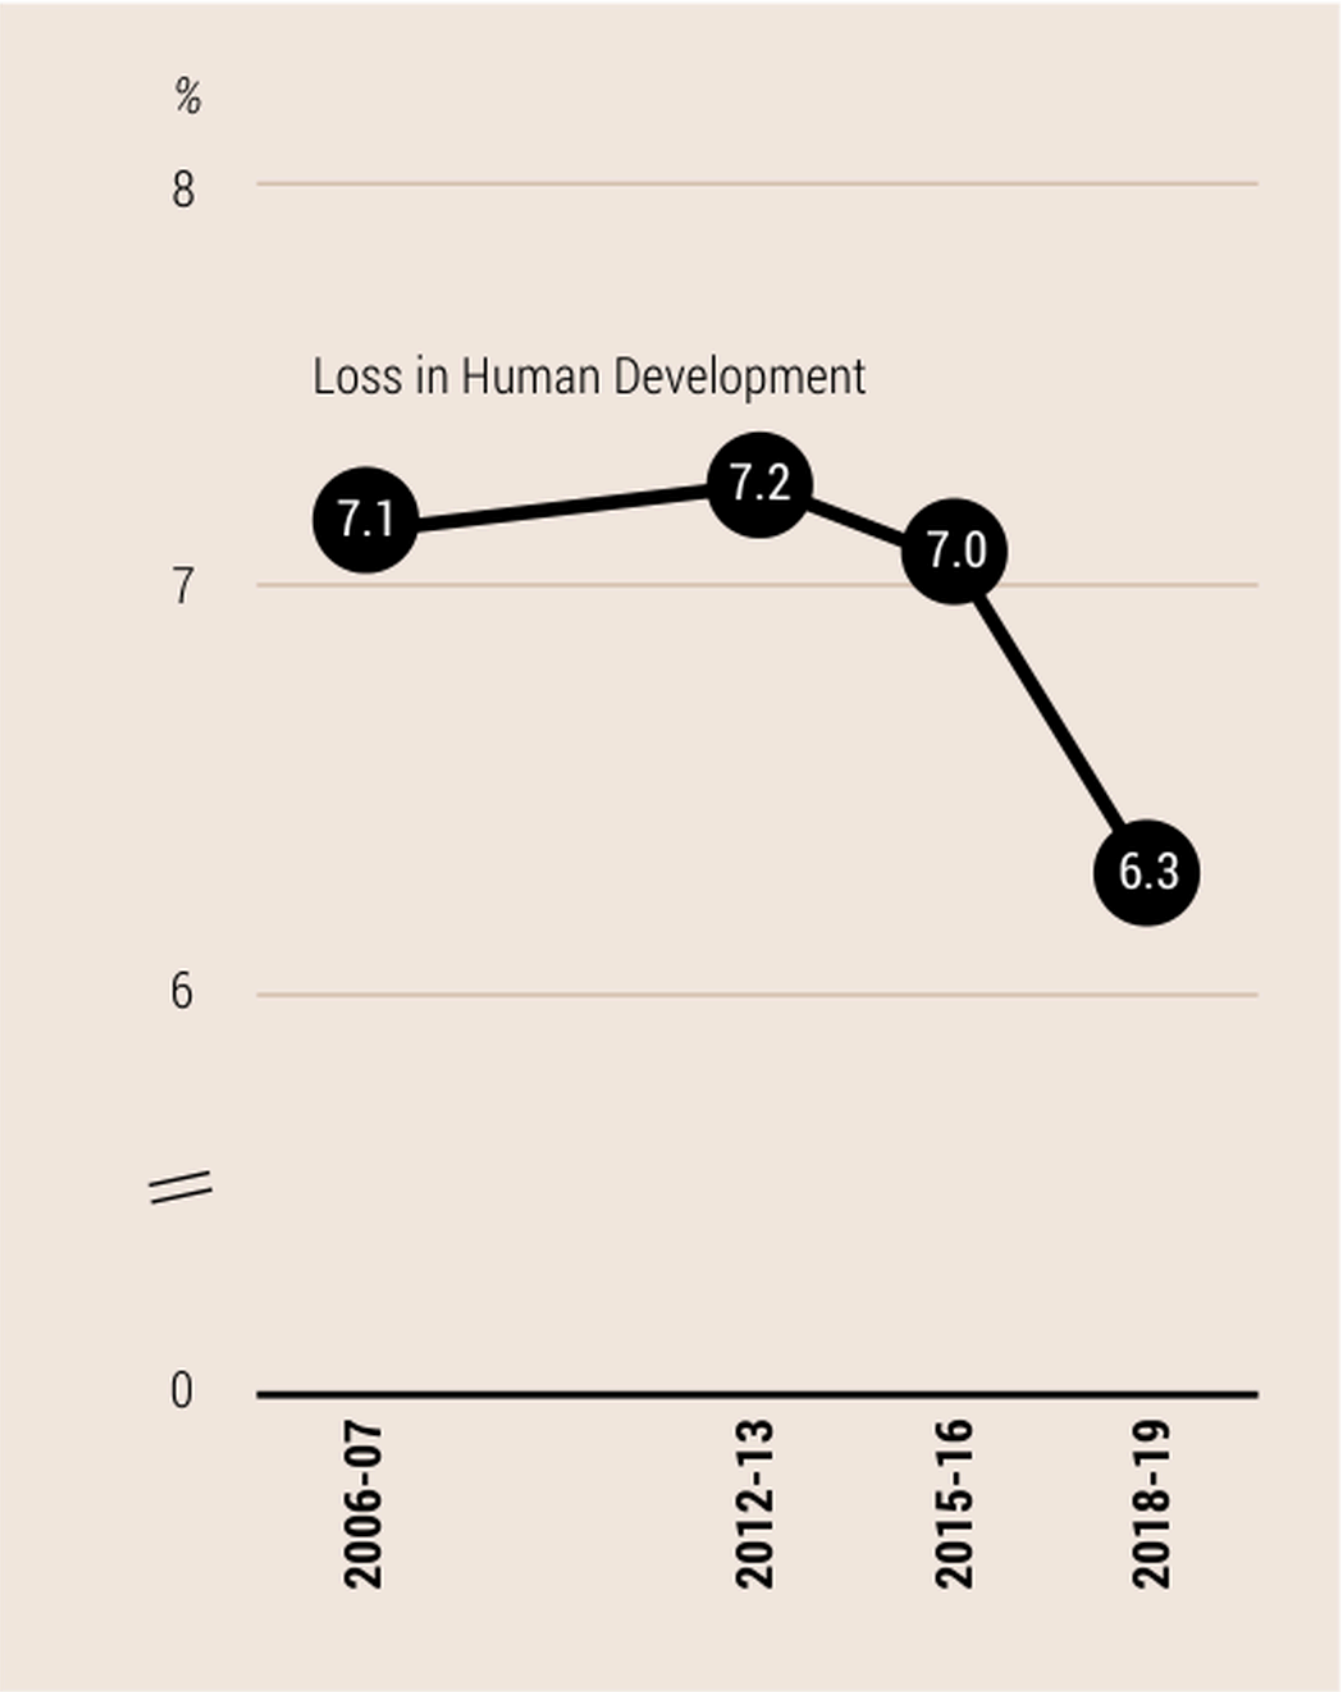

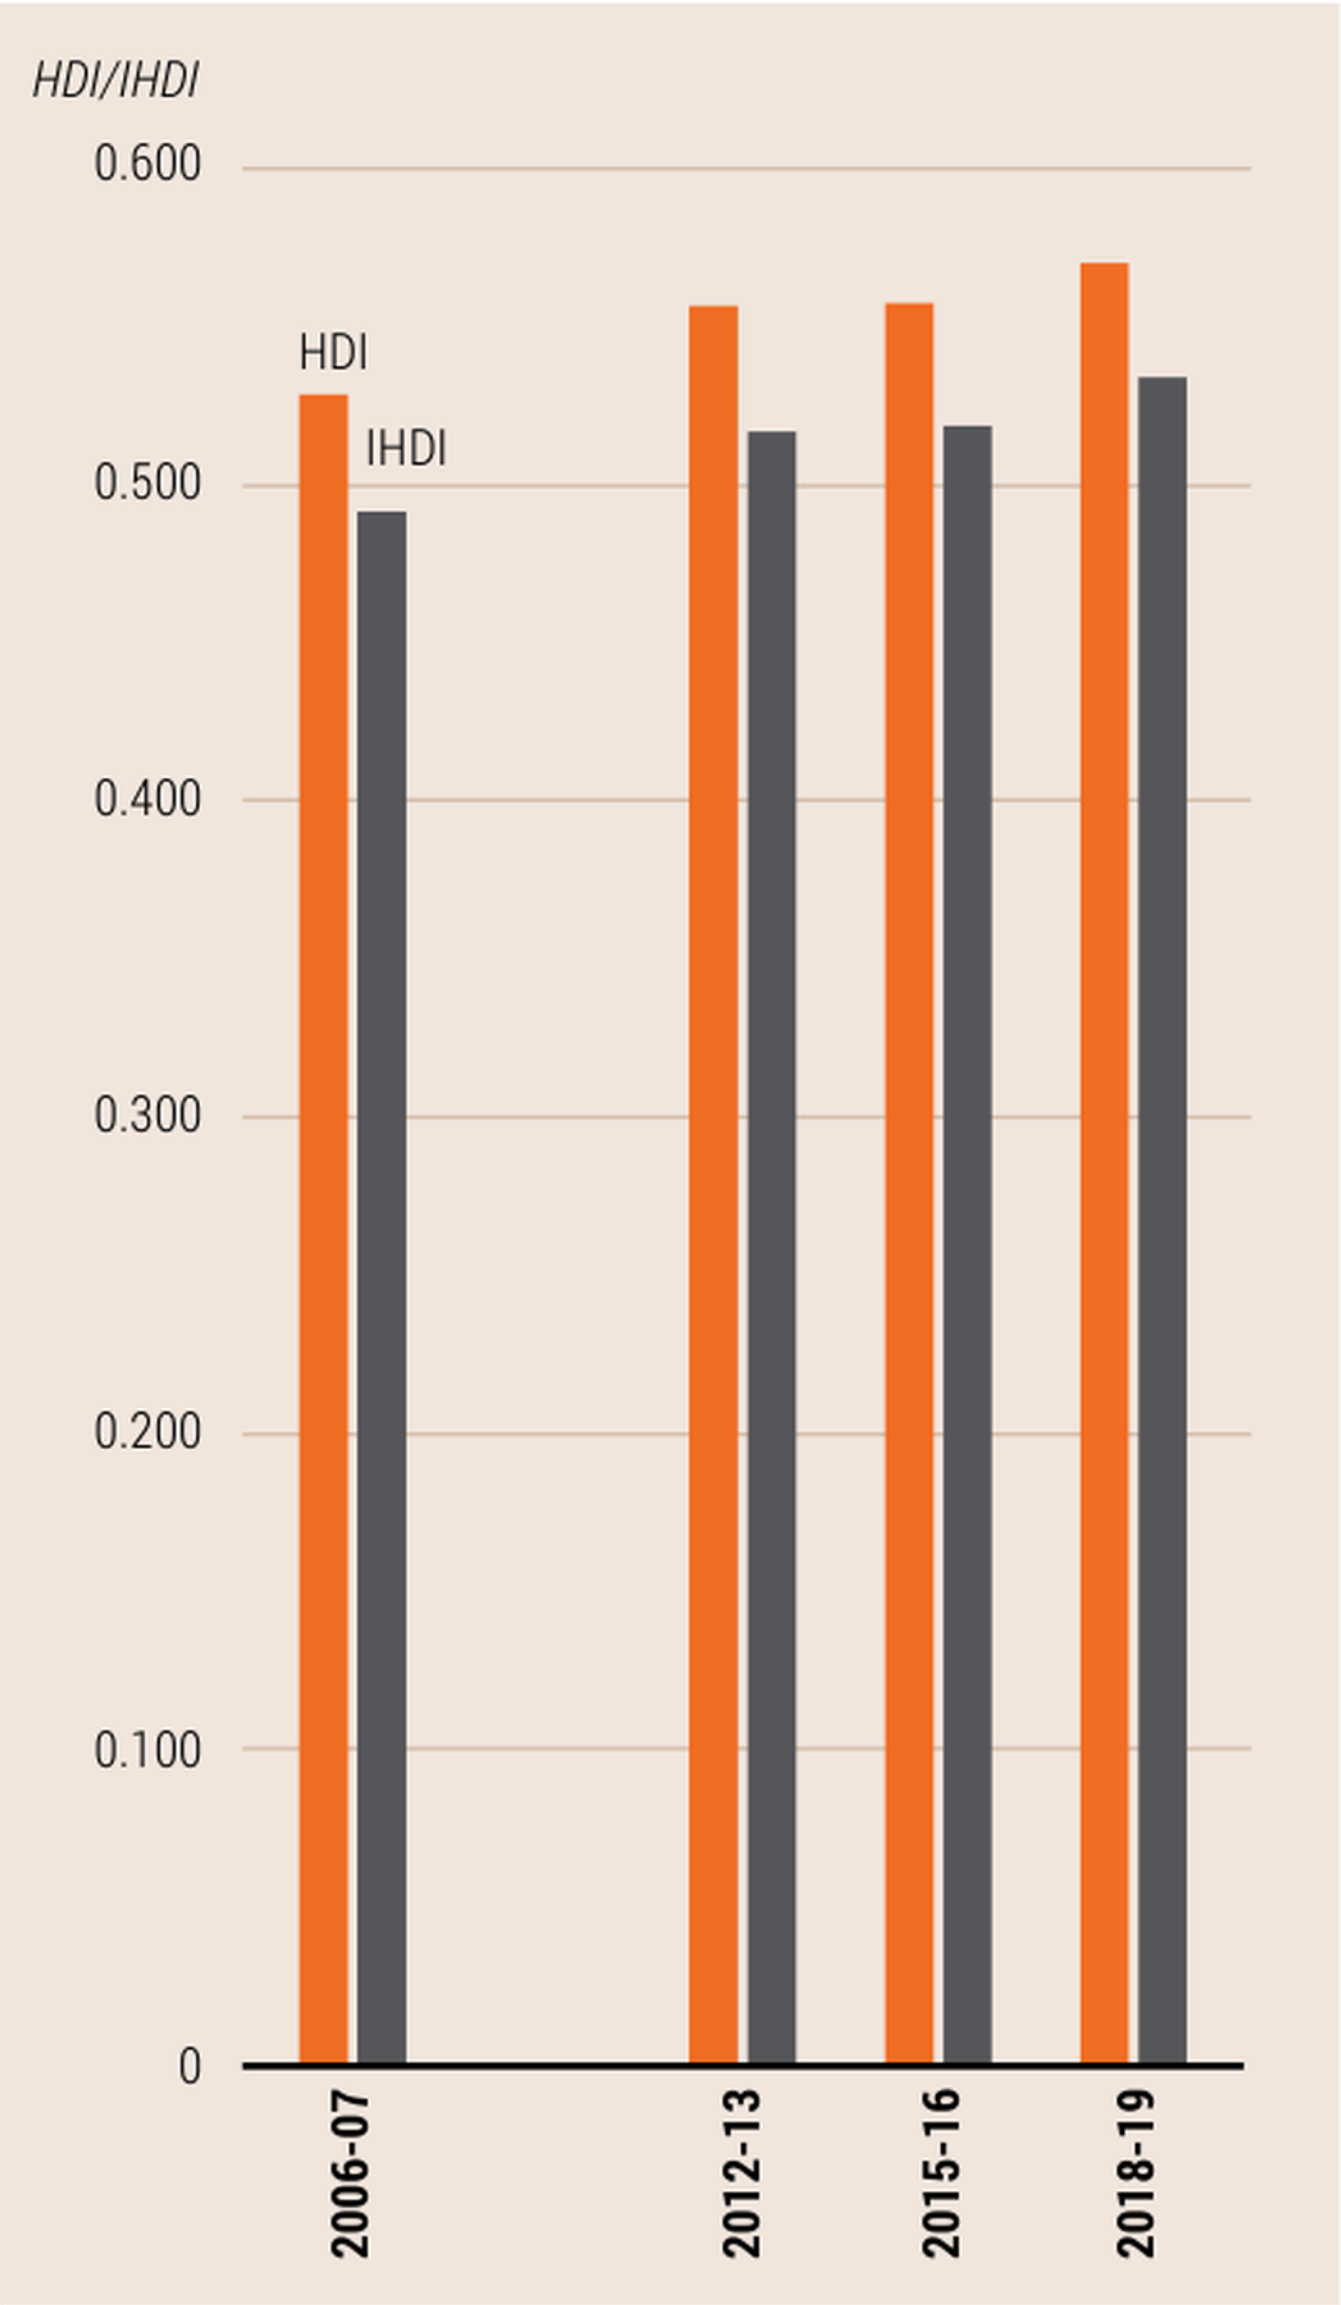

Figure 2.18 Loss in human development due to inequality has not reduced substantially over time, (2006-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 2.18

Loss in human development due to inequality has not reduced substantially over time, (2006-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha 2019 and multiple years of HIES and PDHS data.

Reproduced from microdata

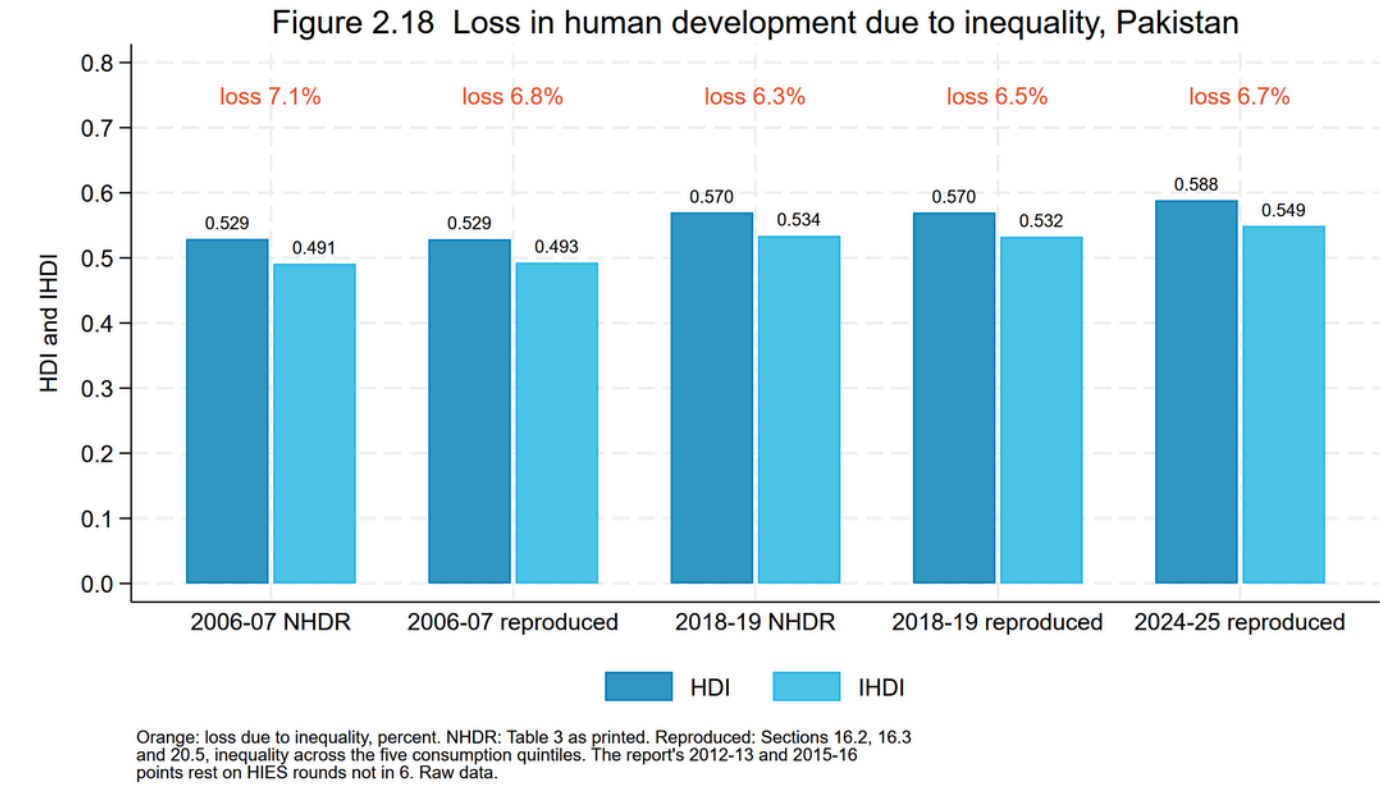

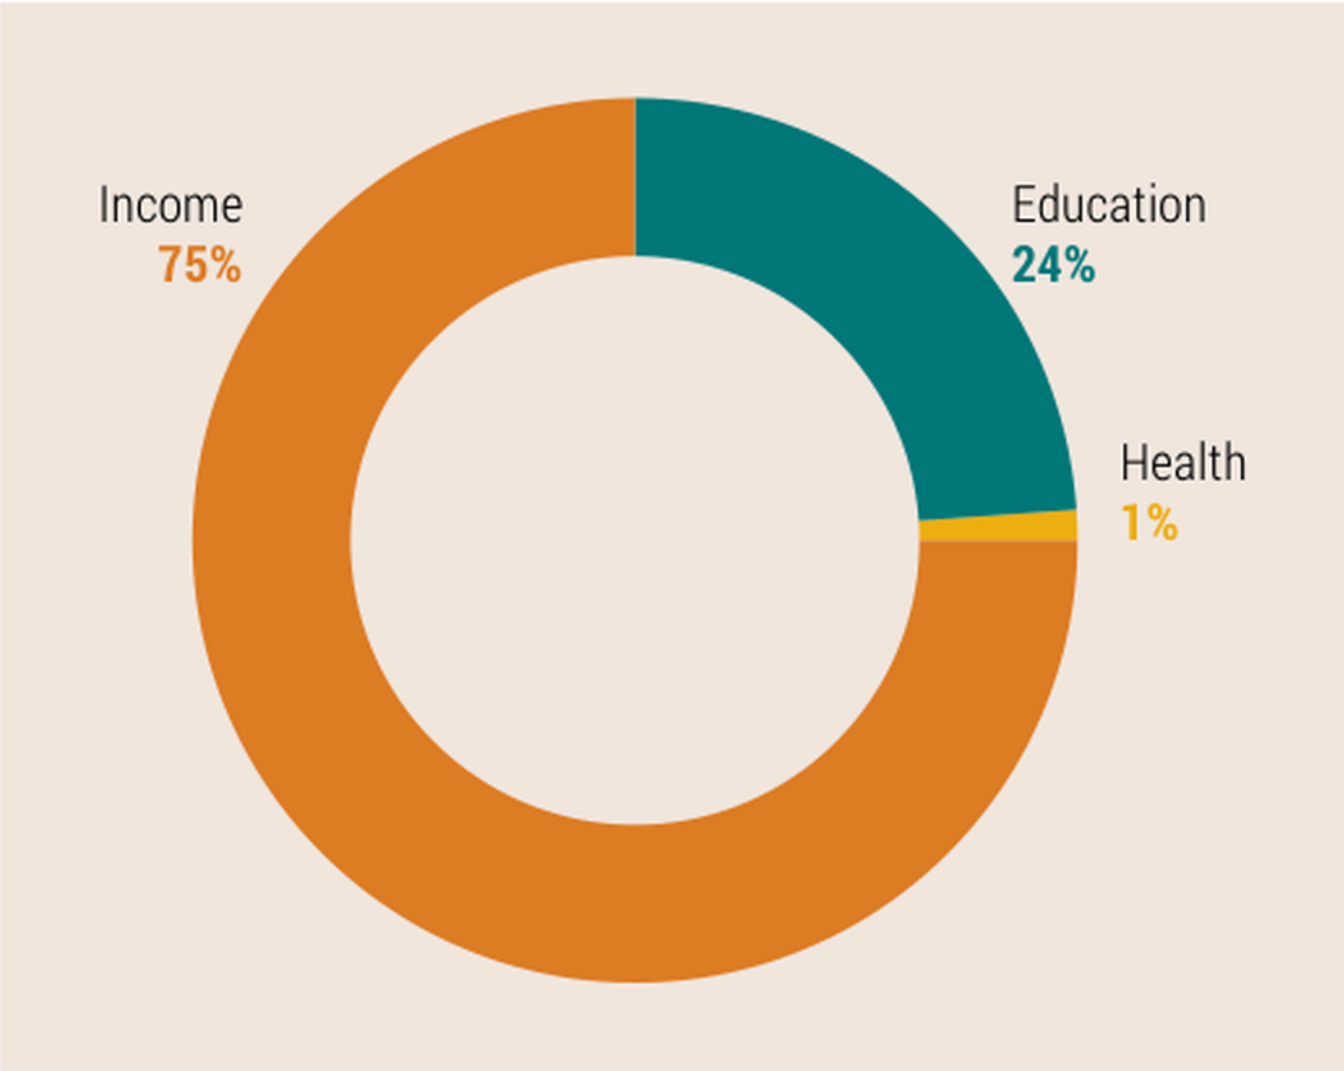

Figure 2.19 Inequality in income distribution between quintiles is the major contributor to loss in human development, (2018-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 2.19

Inequality in income distribution between quintiles is the major contributor to loss in human development, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha 2019 and multiple years of HIES and PDHS data.

Reproduced from microdata

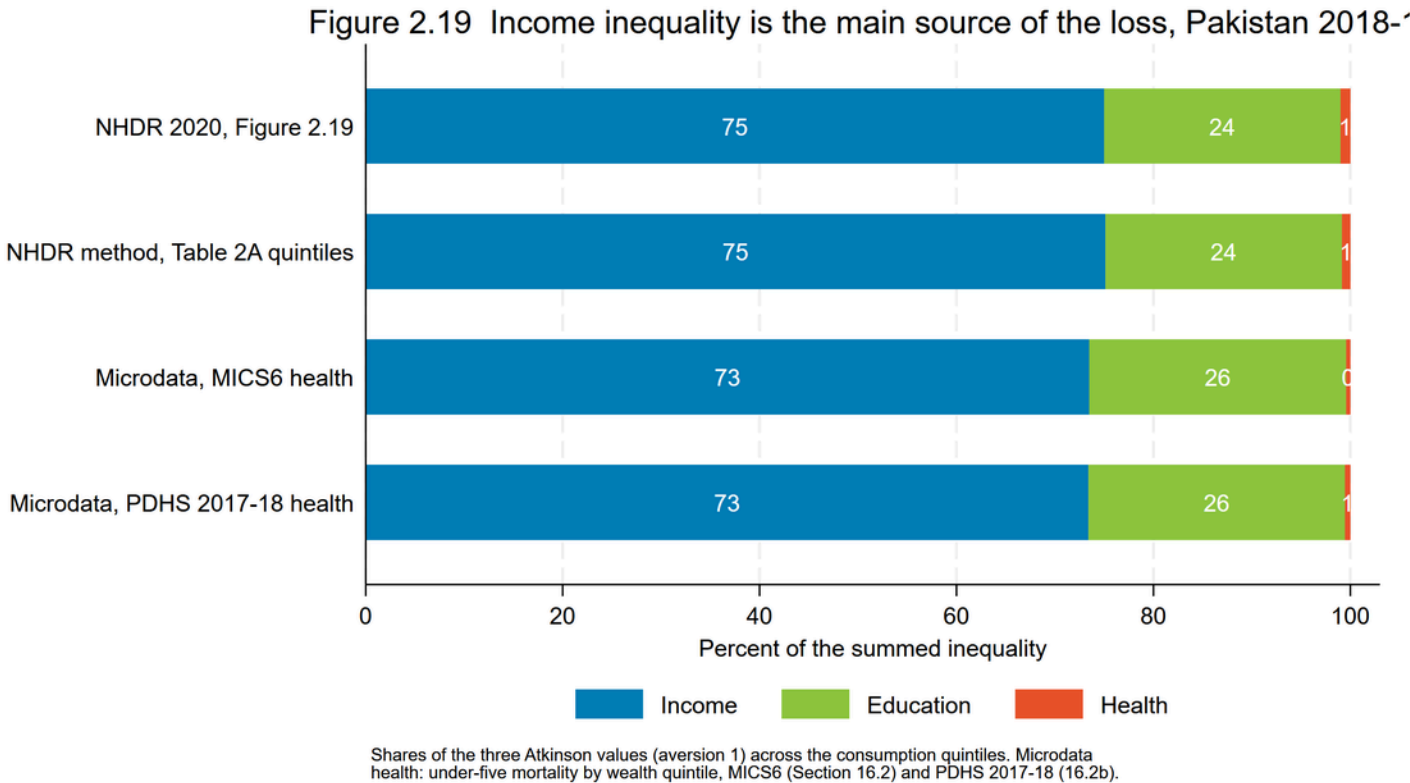

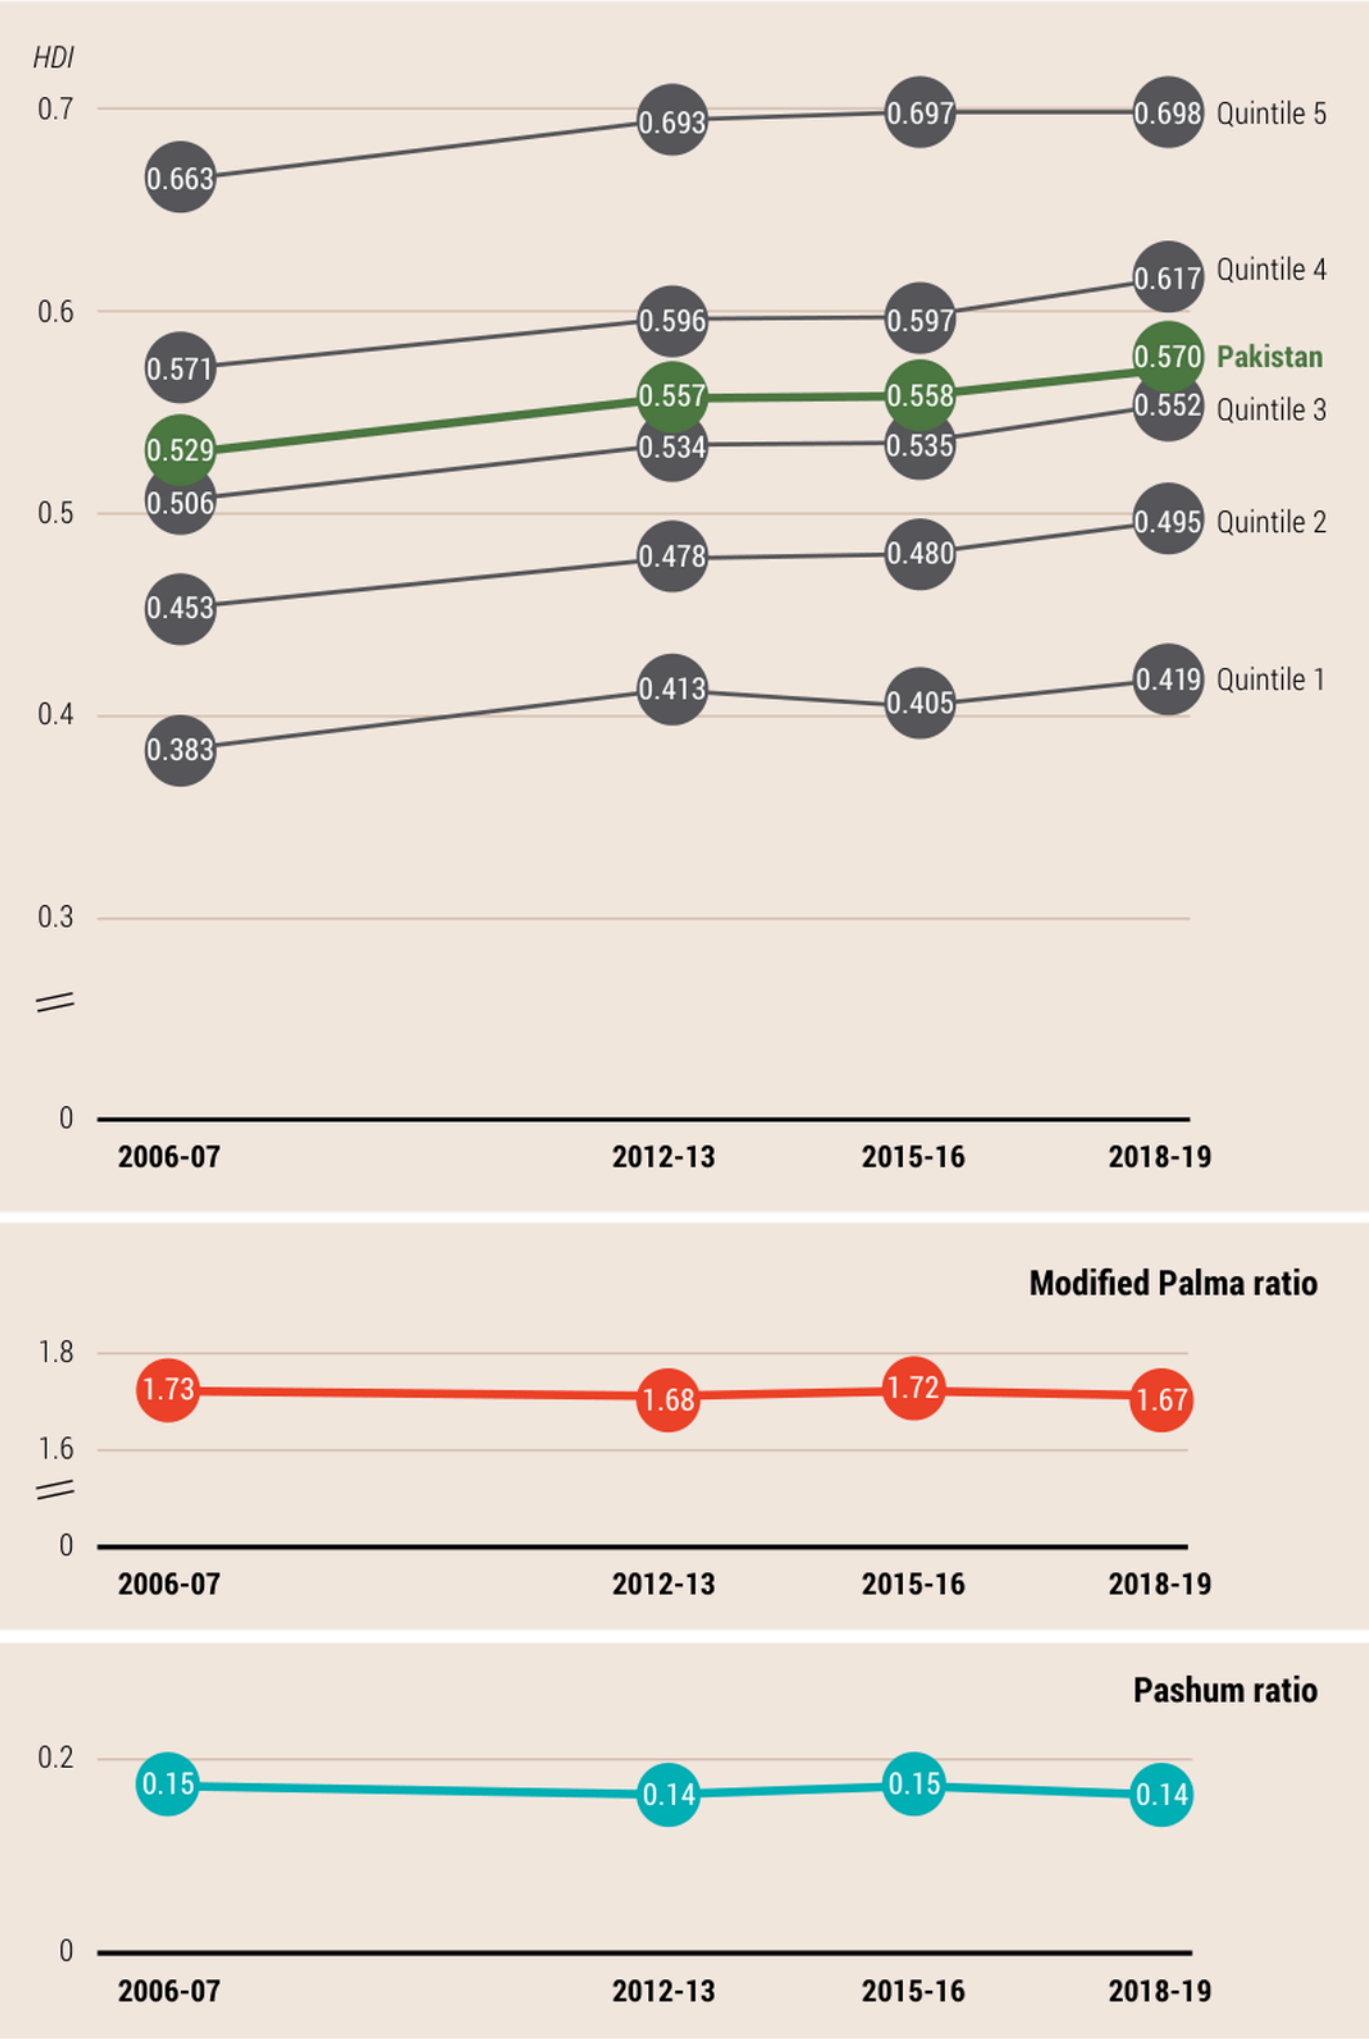

Figure 2.20 HDI by quintiles at the national level and by inequality measures, (2006- 2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 2.20

HDI by quintiles at the national level and by inequality measures, (2006- 2019)

Note: The inequality measures for HDI are approximate in character.
Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha 2019 and multiple years of HIES and PDHS data.

Reproduced from microdata

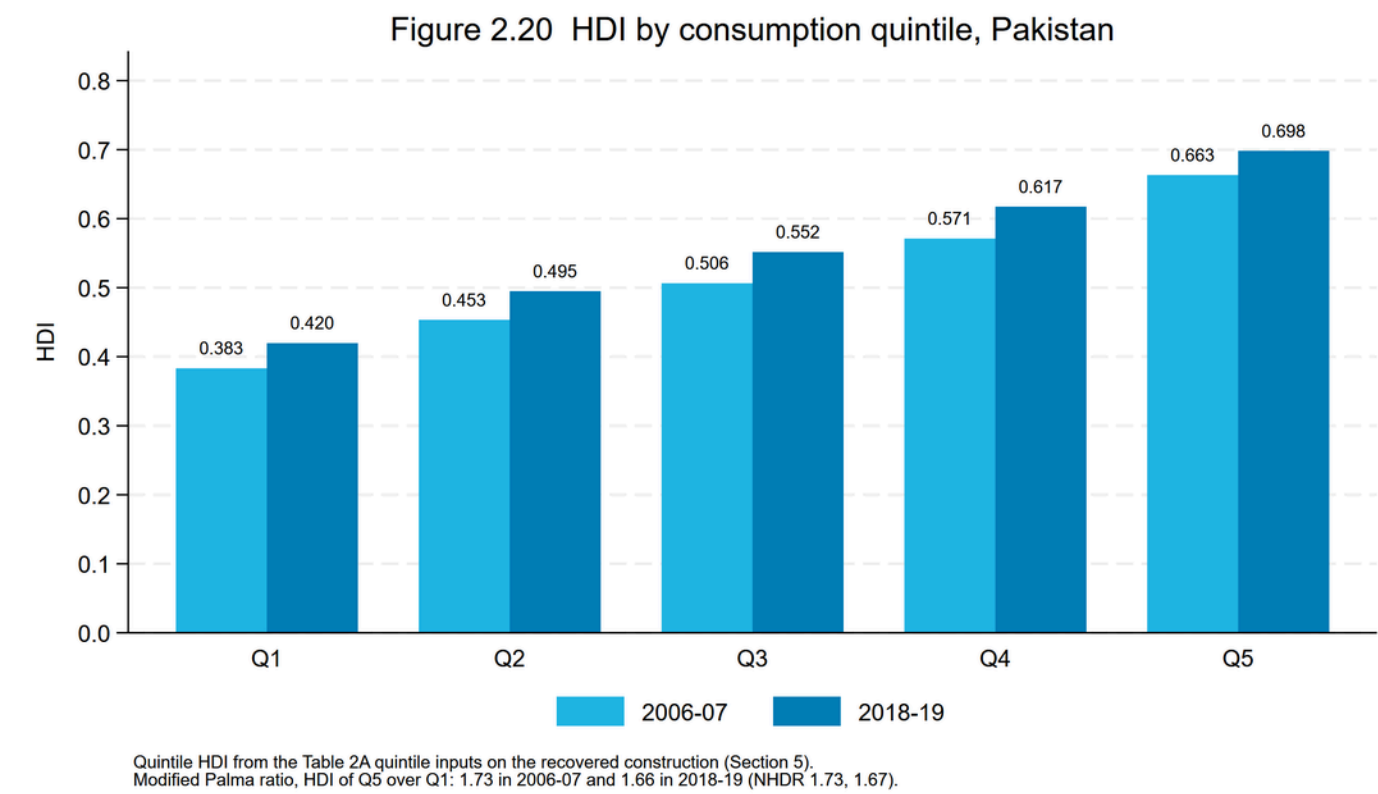

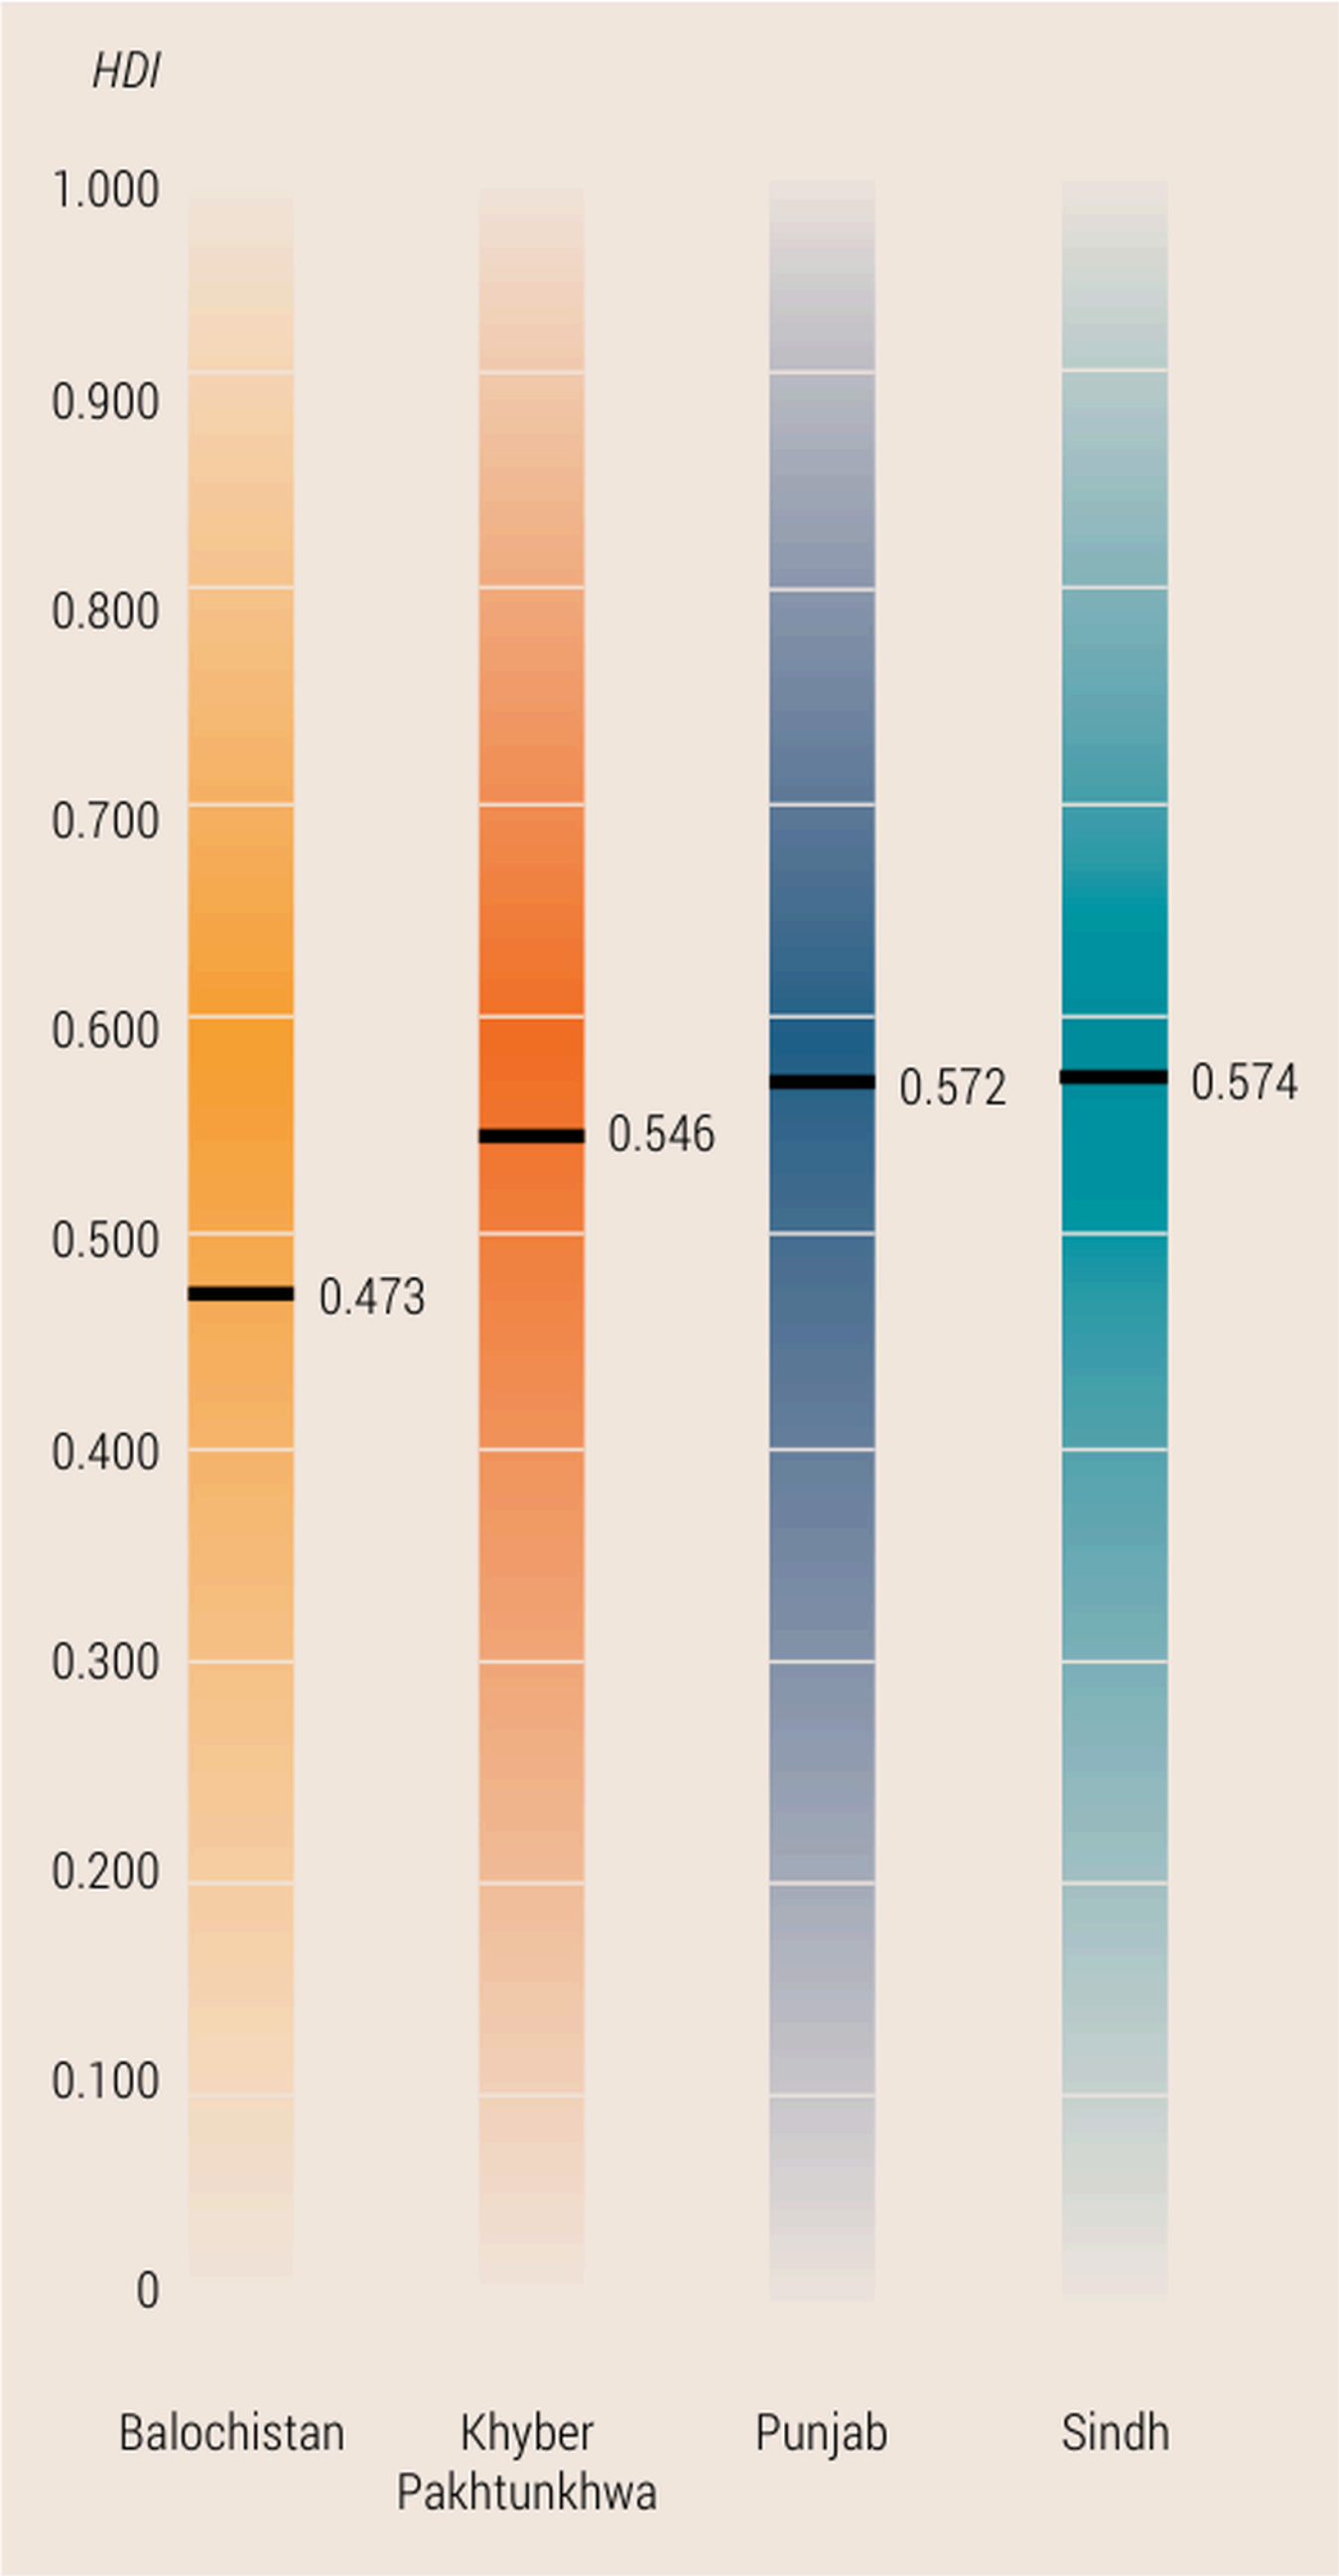

Figure 3.6 Provincial Human Development Index, (2018-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 3.6

Provincial Human Development Index, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on HIES, 2018-2019; PDHS, 2017-2018; and Pasha, 2019.

Reproduced from microdata

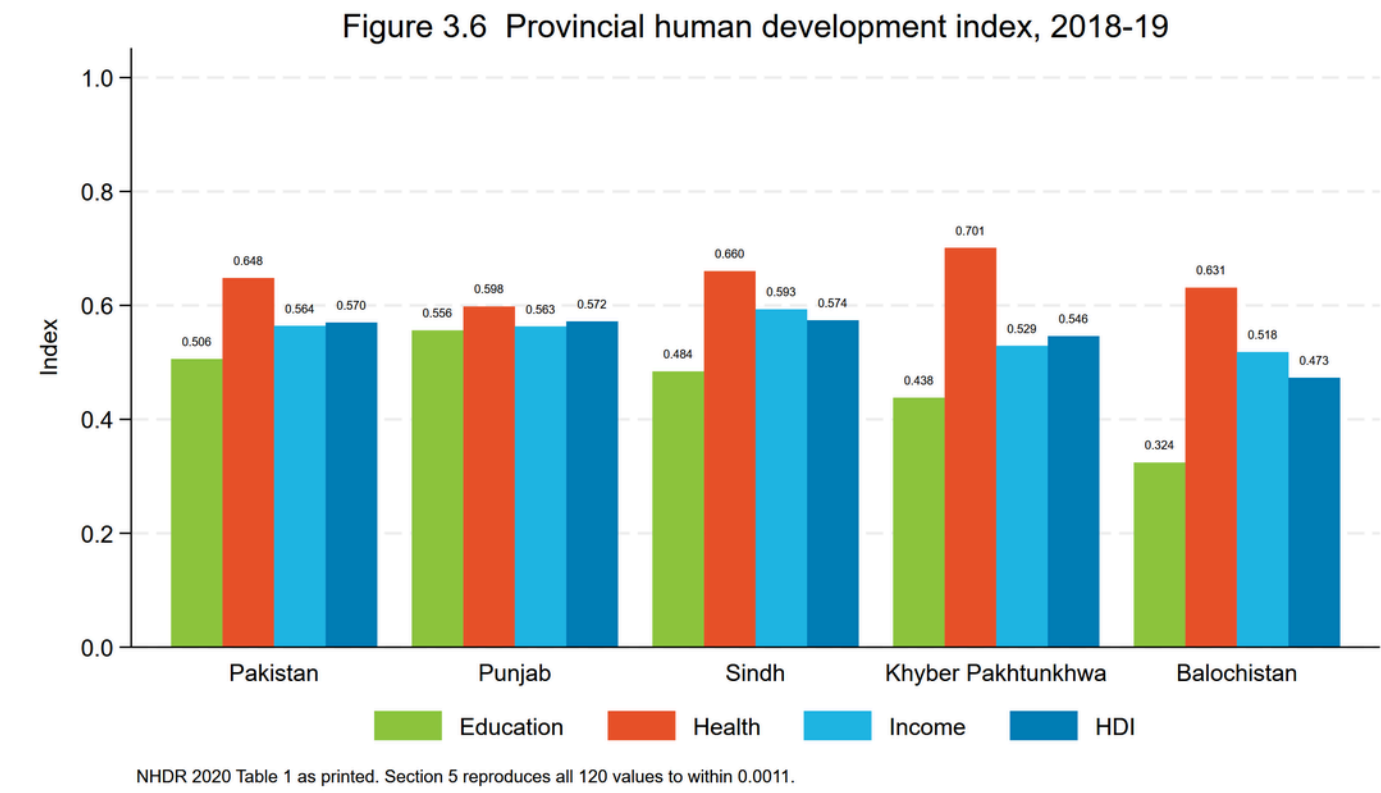

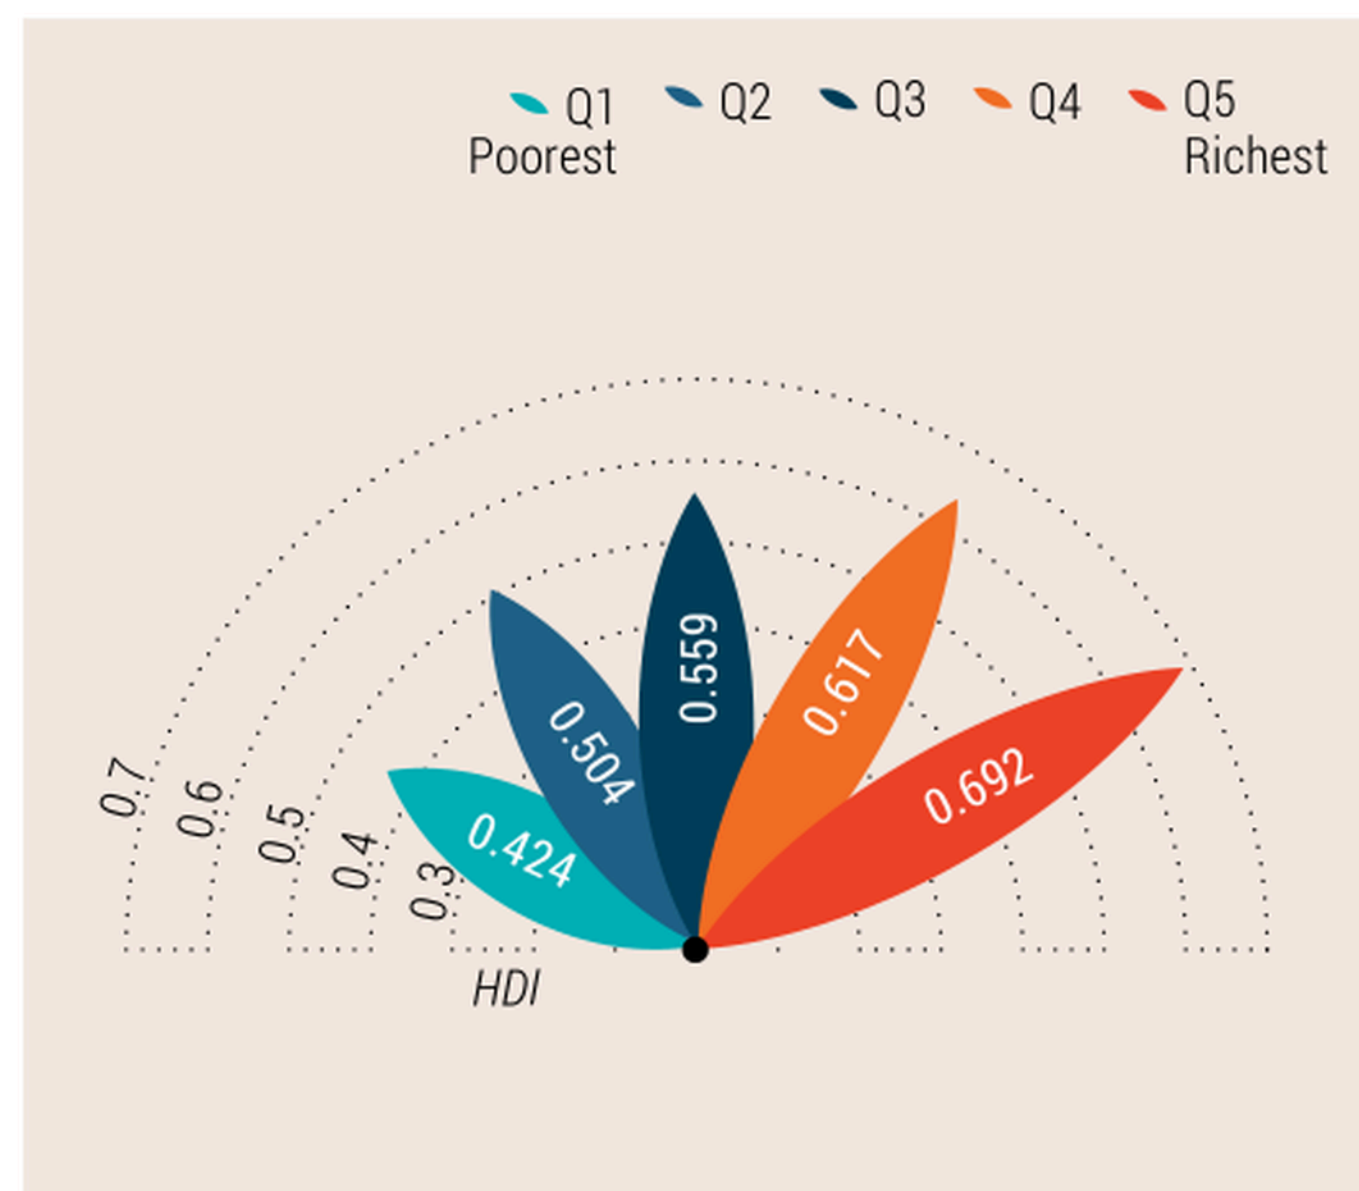

FIGURE 3.10

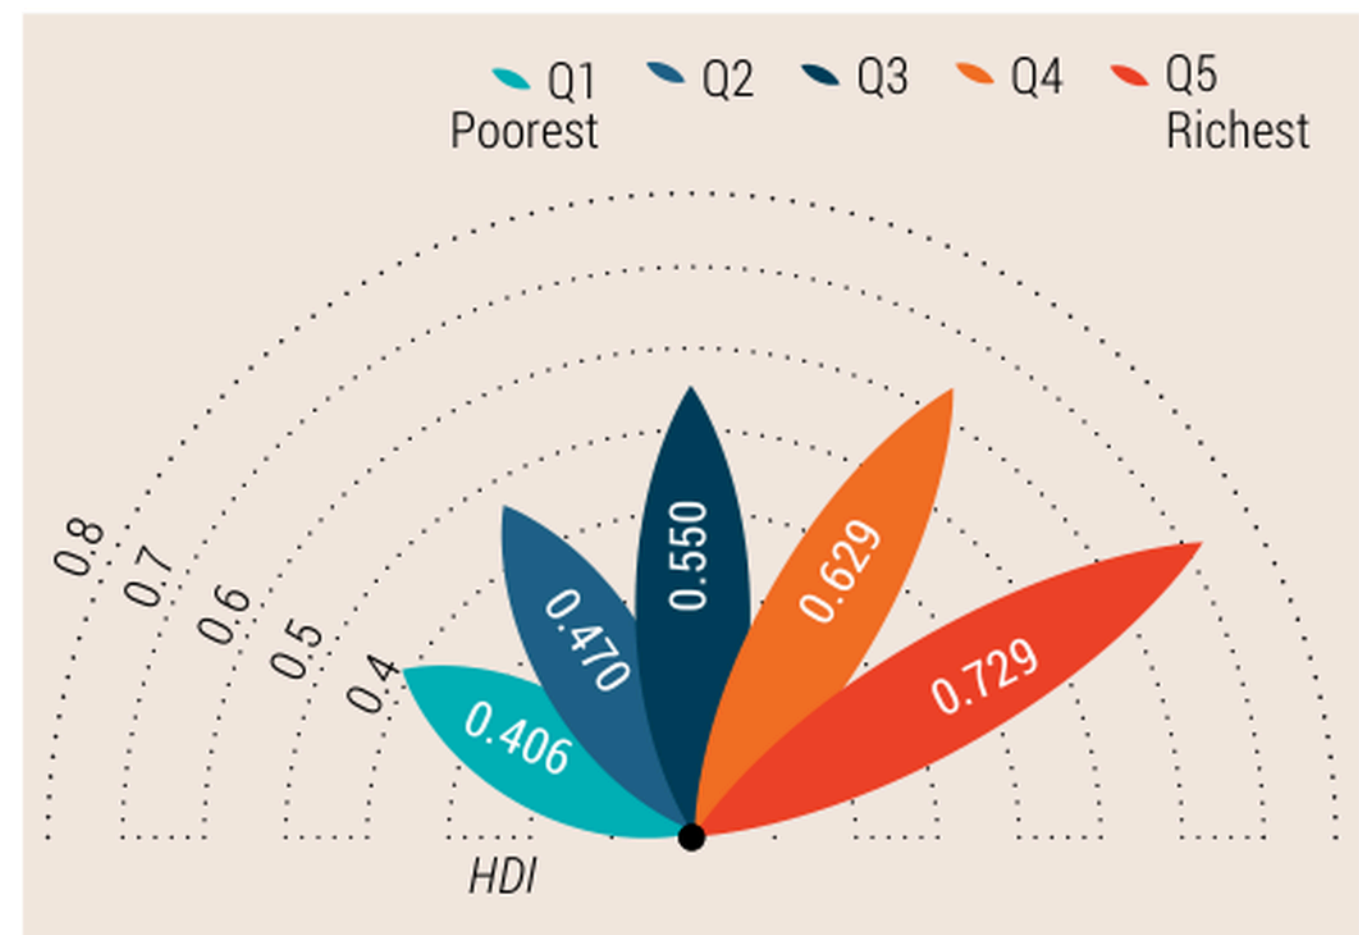

Punjab’s richest quintiles enjoy higher human development compared to the poorest, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha, 2019; HIES, 2018-2019; and PDHS, 2017-2018.

FIGURE 3.13

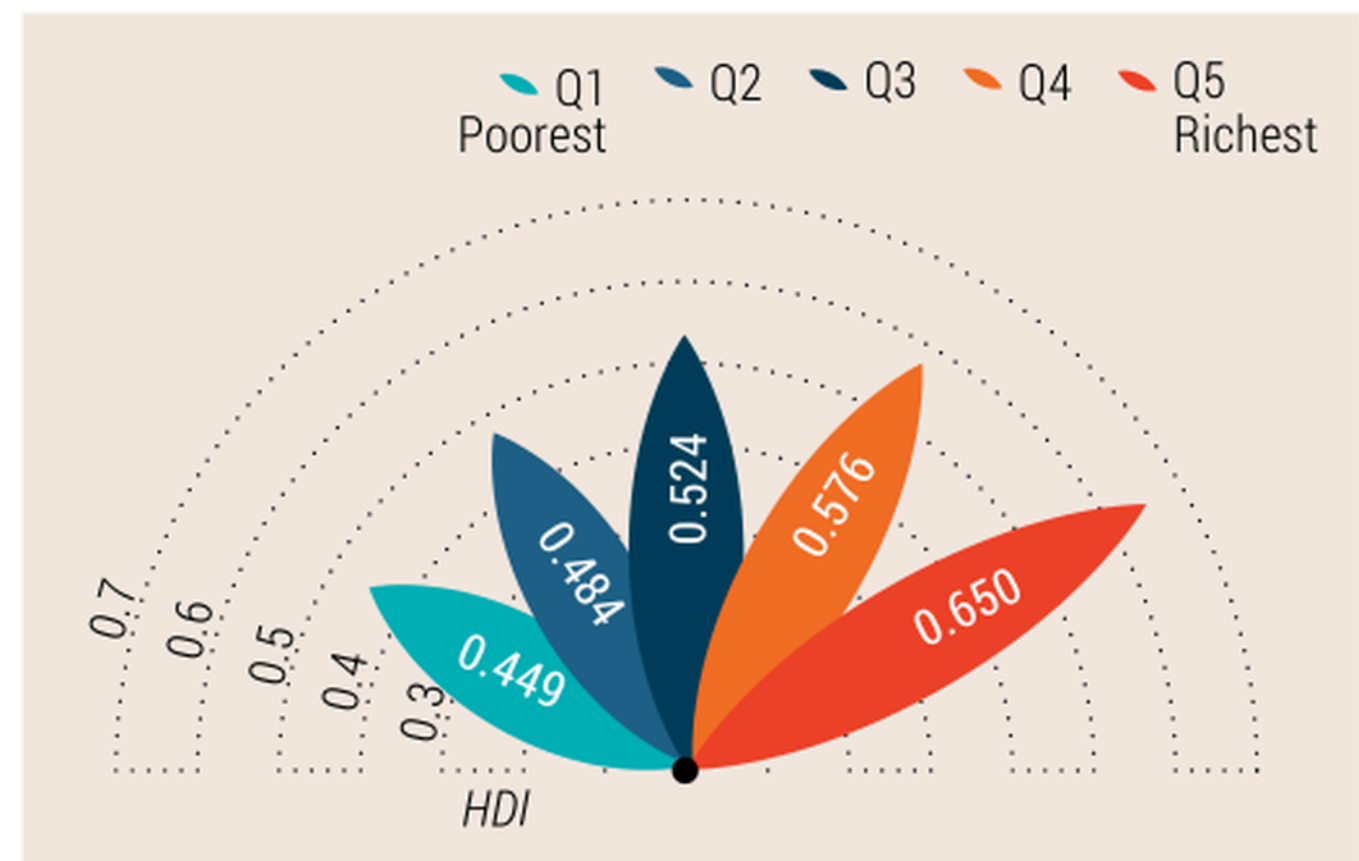

Sindh’s richest quintiles enjoy higher human development compared to the poorest, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha, 2019; HIES, 2018-2019; and PDHS, 2017-2018.

FIGURE 3.16

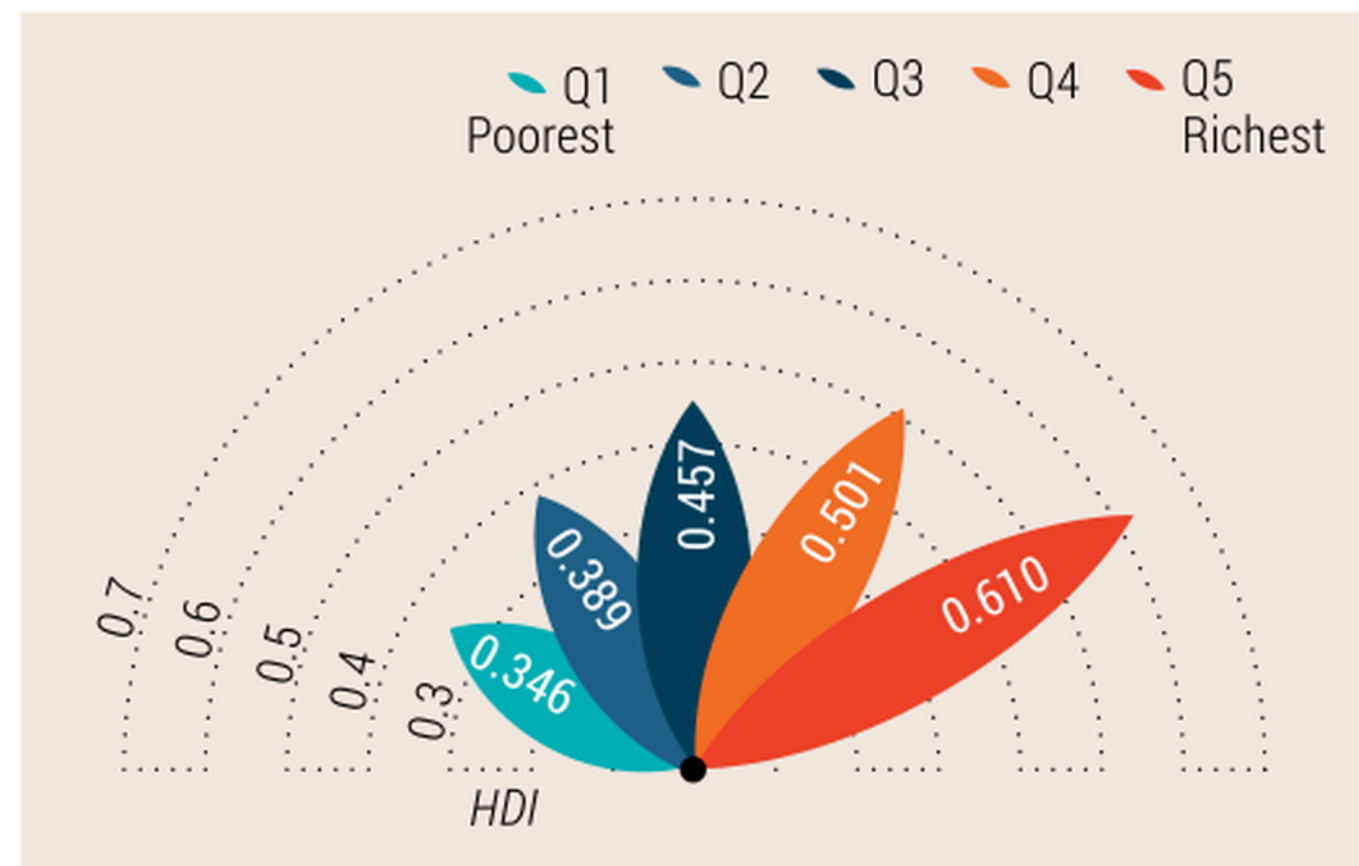

Khyber Pakhtunkhwa’s richest quintiles enjoy higher human development compared to the poorest, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha, 2019; HIES, 2018-2019; and PDHS, 2017-2018.

FIGURE 3.19

Balochistan’s richest quintiles enjoy higher human development compared to the poorest, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha, 2019; HIES, 2018-2019; and PDHS, 2017-2018.

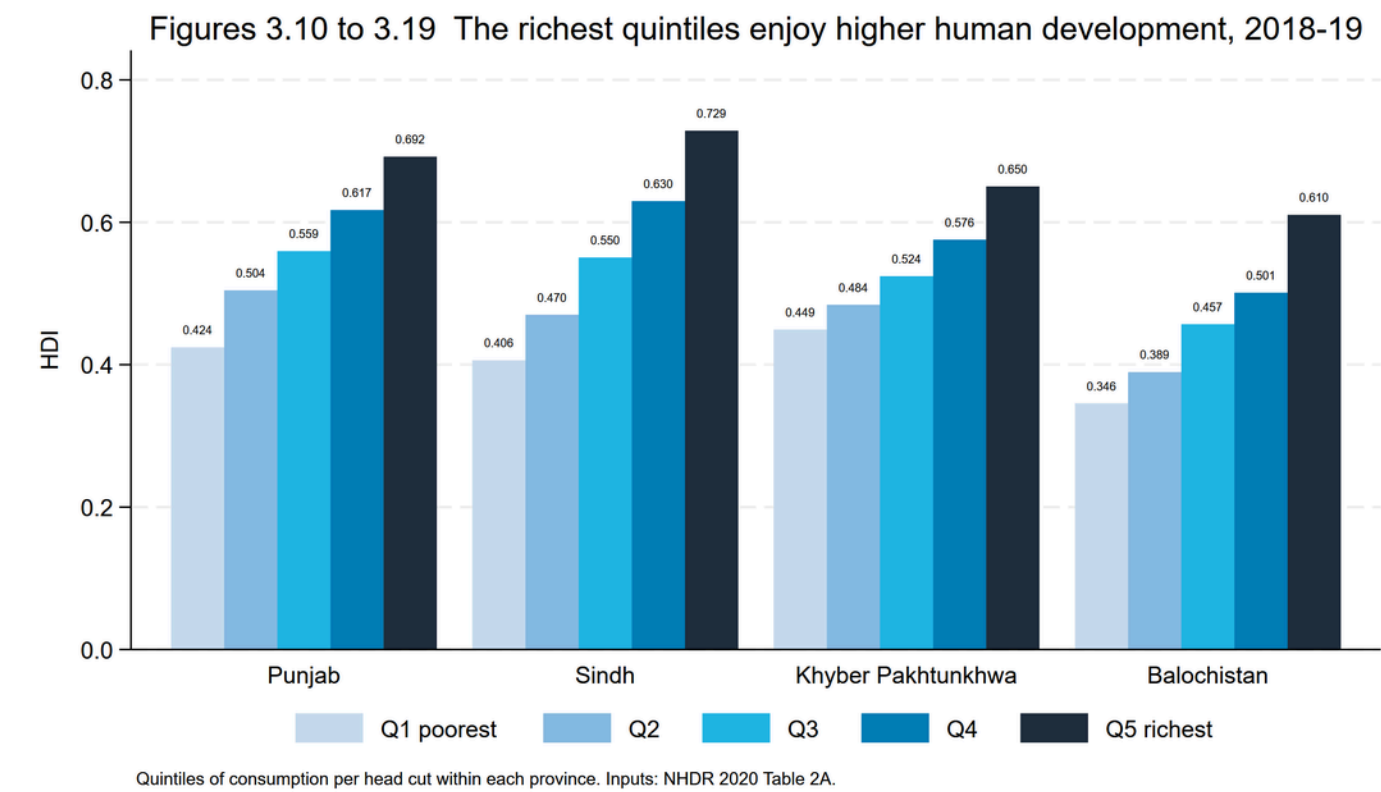

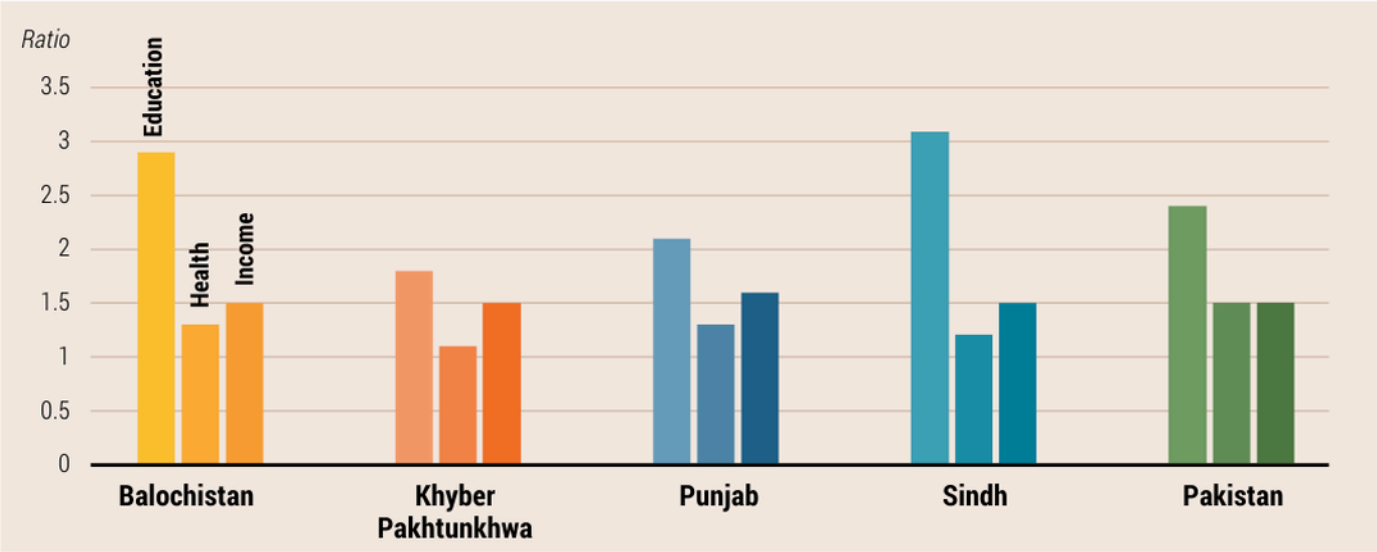

Figure 3.22 Education drives the inequality in human development among the quintiles in all provinces (ratio of top to bottom quintile), (2018-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

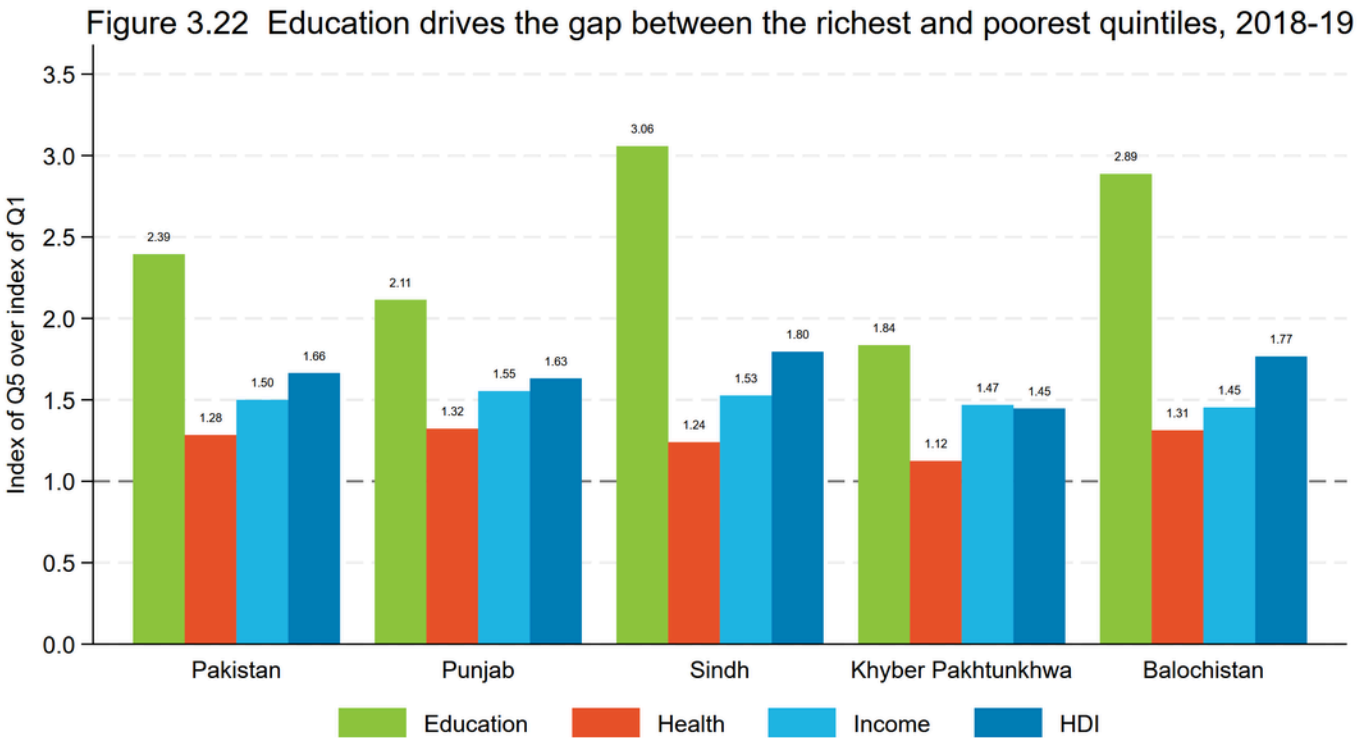

FIGURE 3.22

Education drives the inequality in human development among the quintiles in all provinces (ratio of top to bottom quintile), (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on NHDR 2020 HDI.

Reproduced from microdata

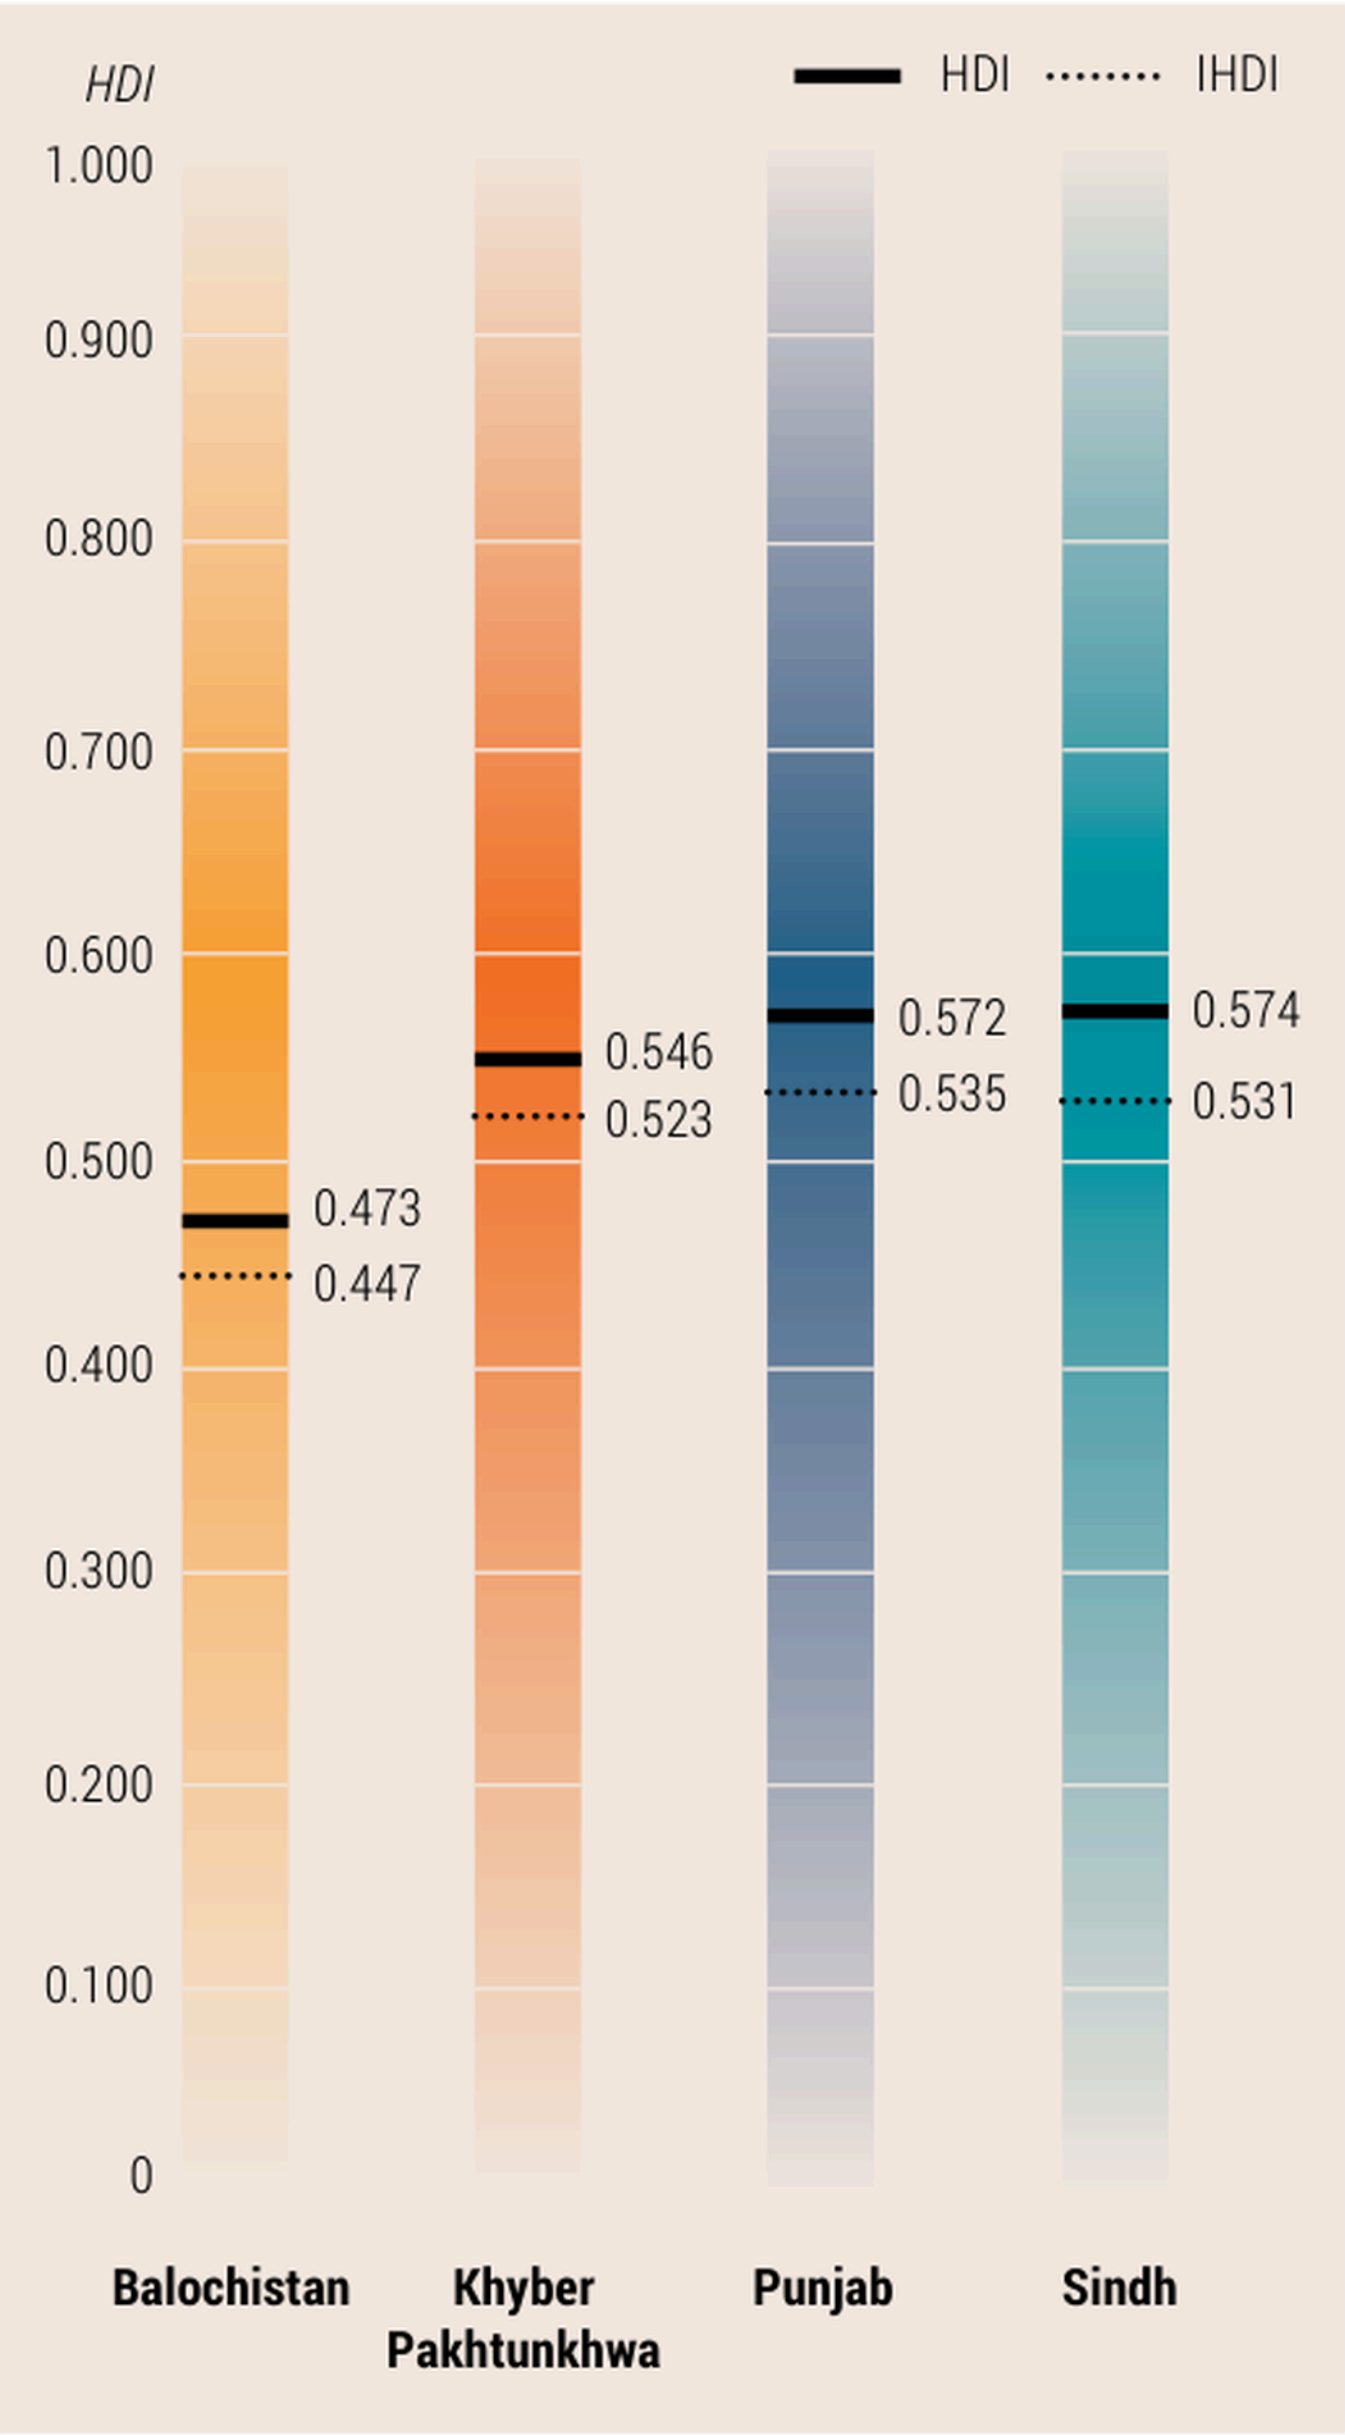

Dimension indices of the richest and poorest consumption quintiles, NHDR 2020 Table 2A.

Figure 3.23 The loss of human development due to inequality is highest in Sindh, (2018-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 3.23

The loss of human development due to inequality is highest in Sindh, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha, 2019; PDHS, 2017-2018; multiple years of HIES data.

Reproduced from microdata

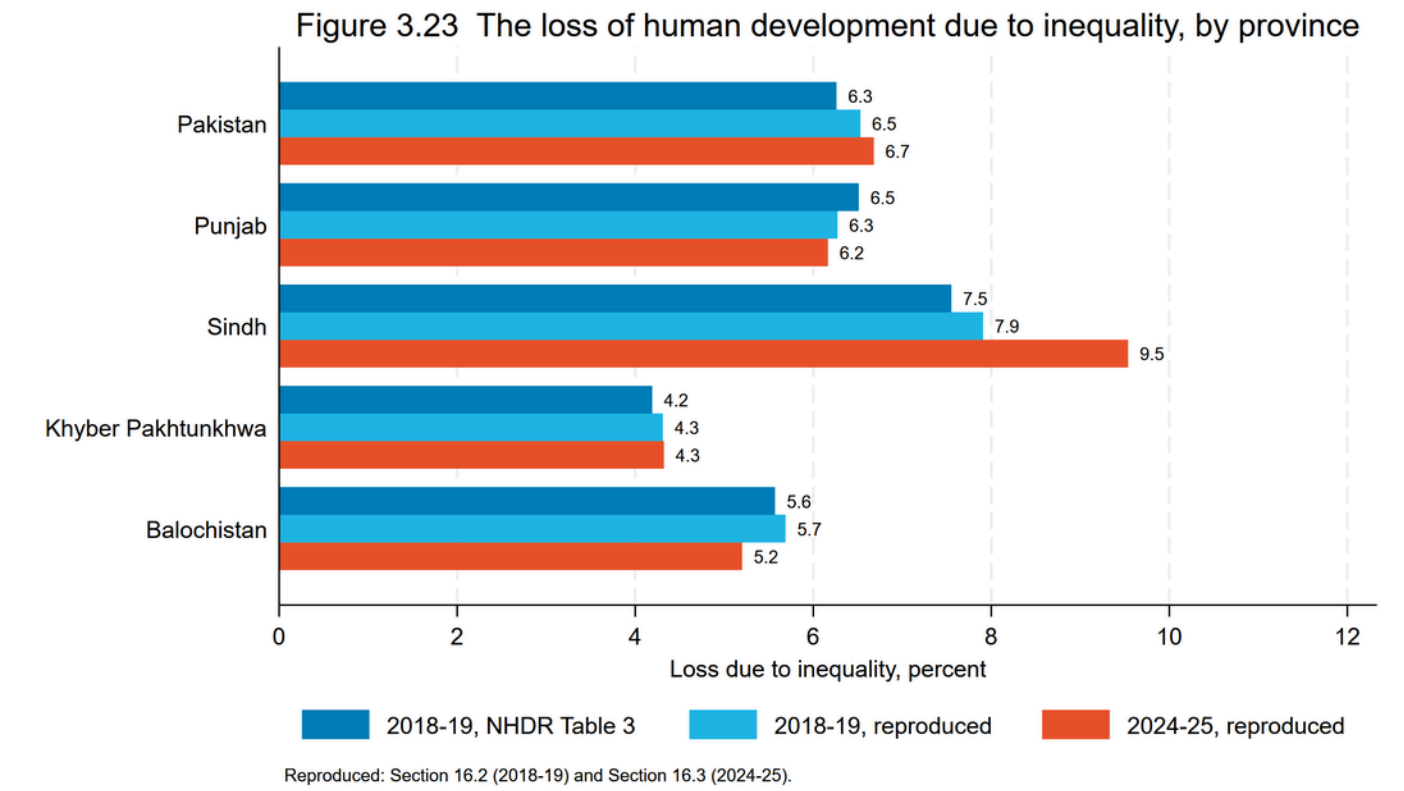

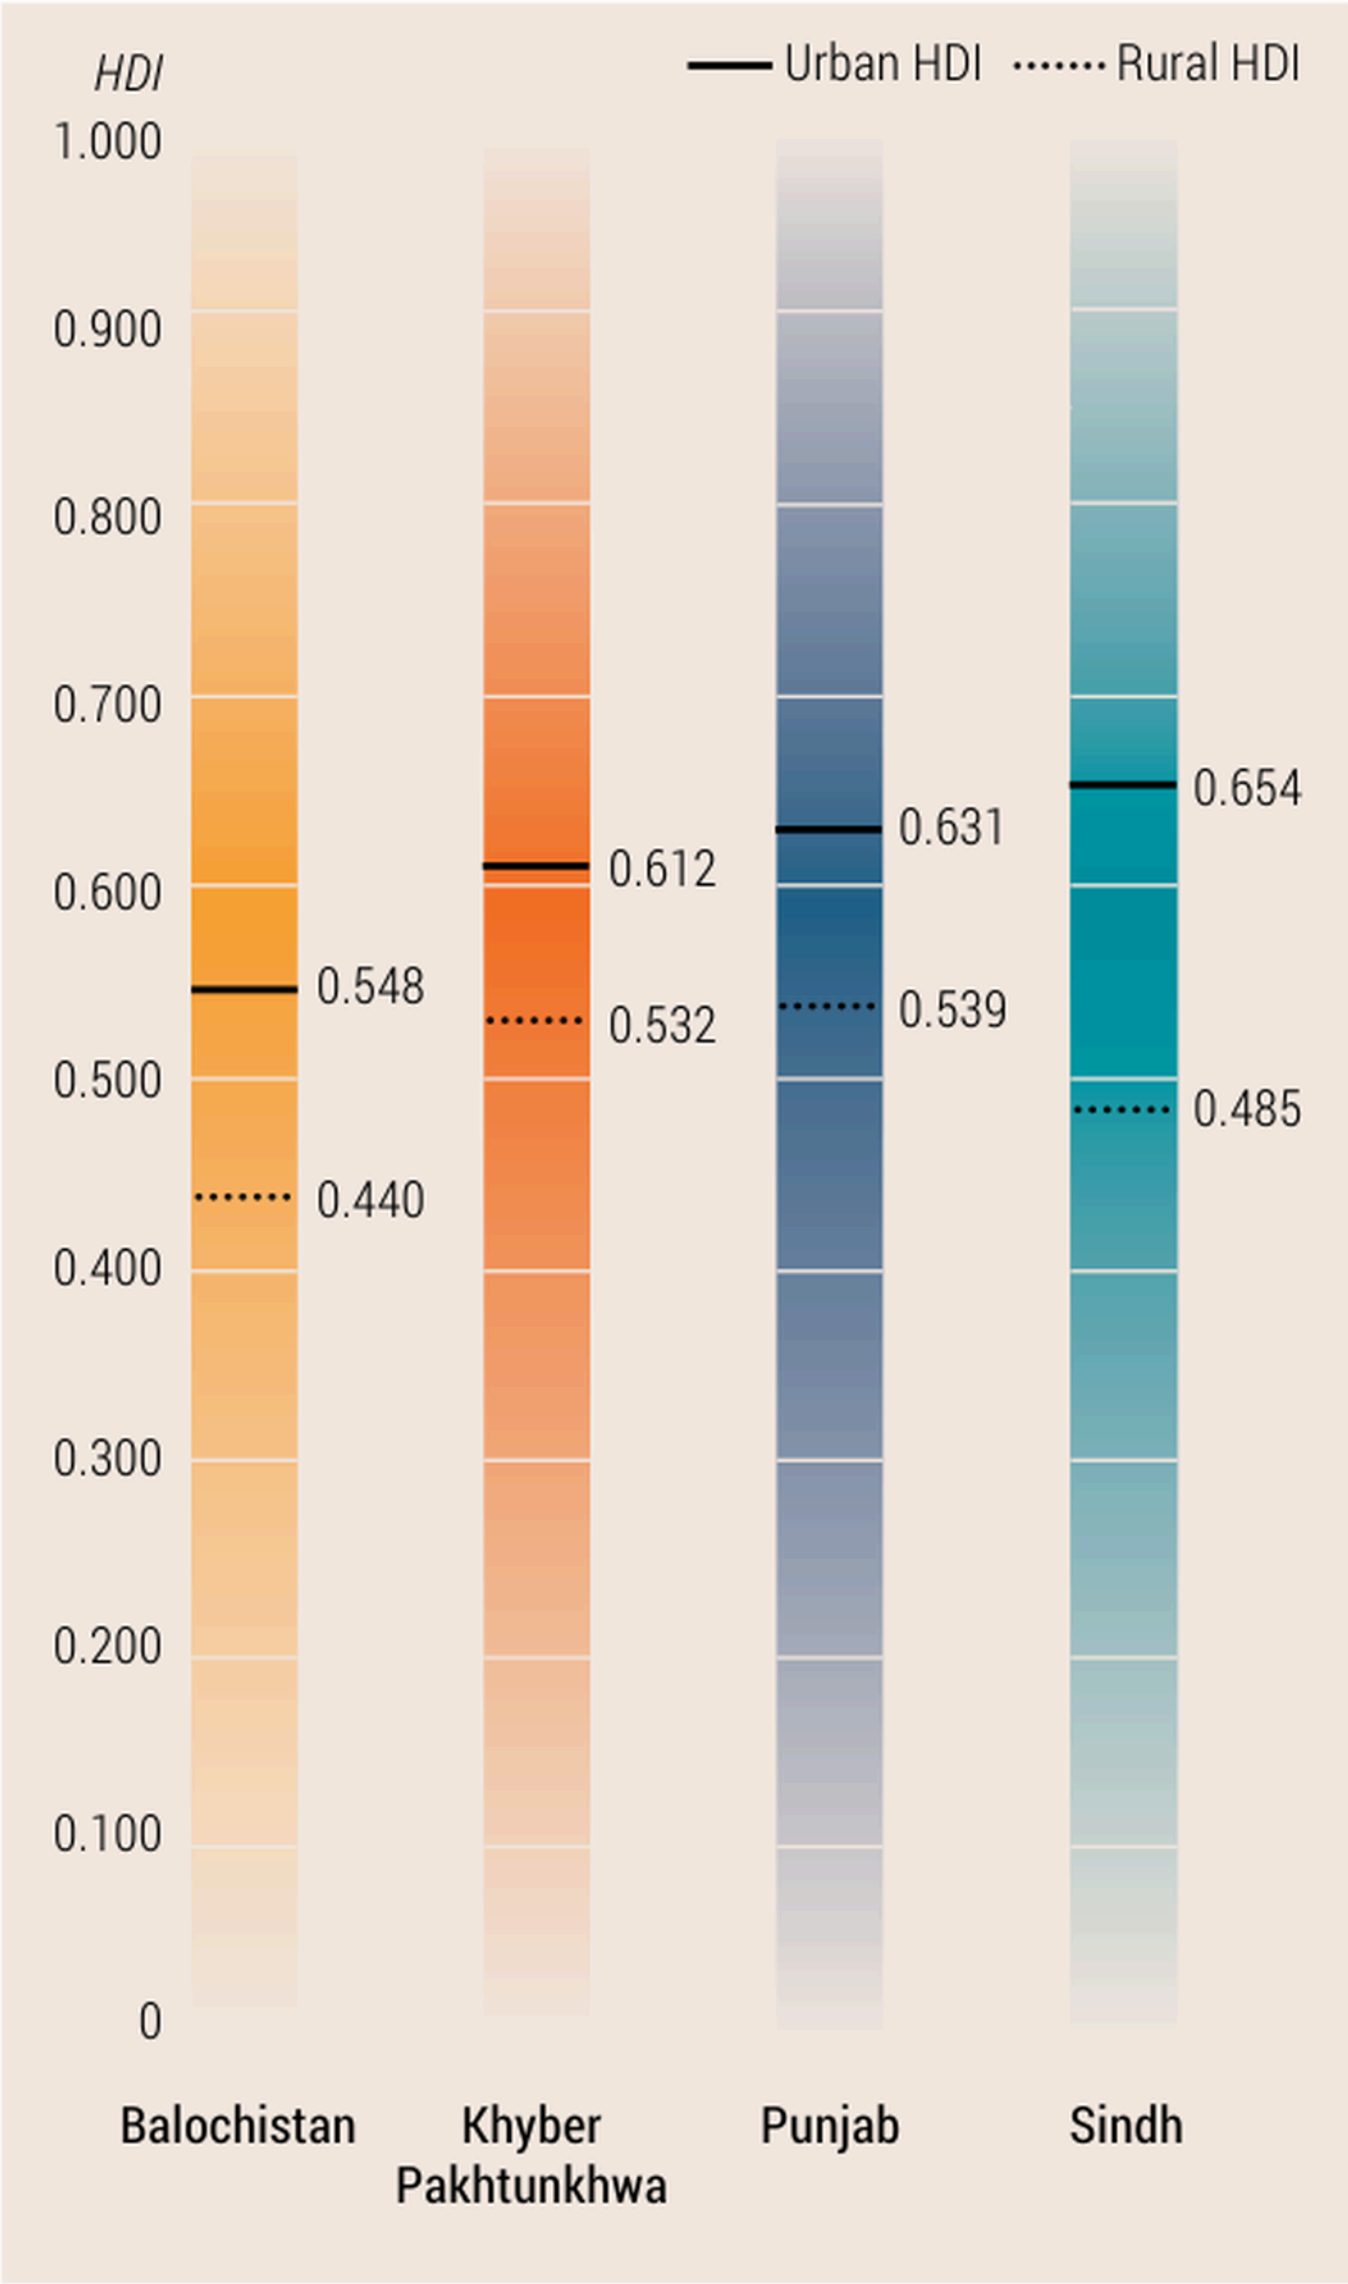

Figure 3.28 The gap between rural and urban HDIs is highest in Sindh and lowest in Khyber Pakthunkhwa, (2018-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

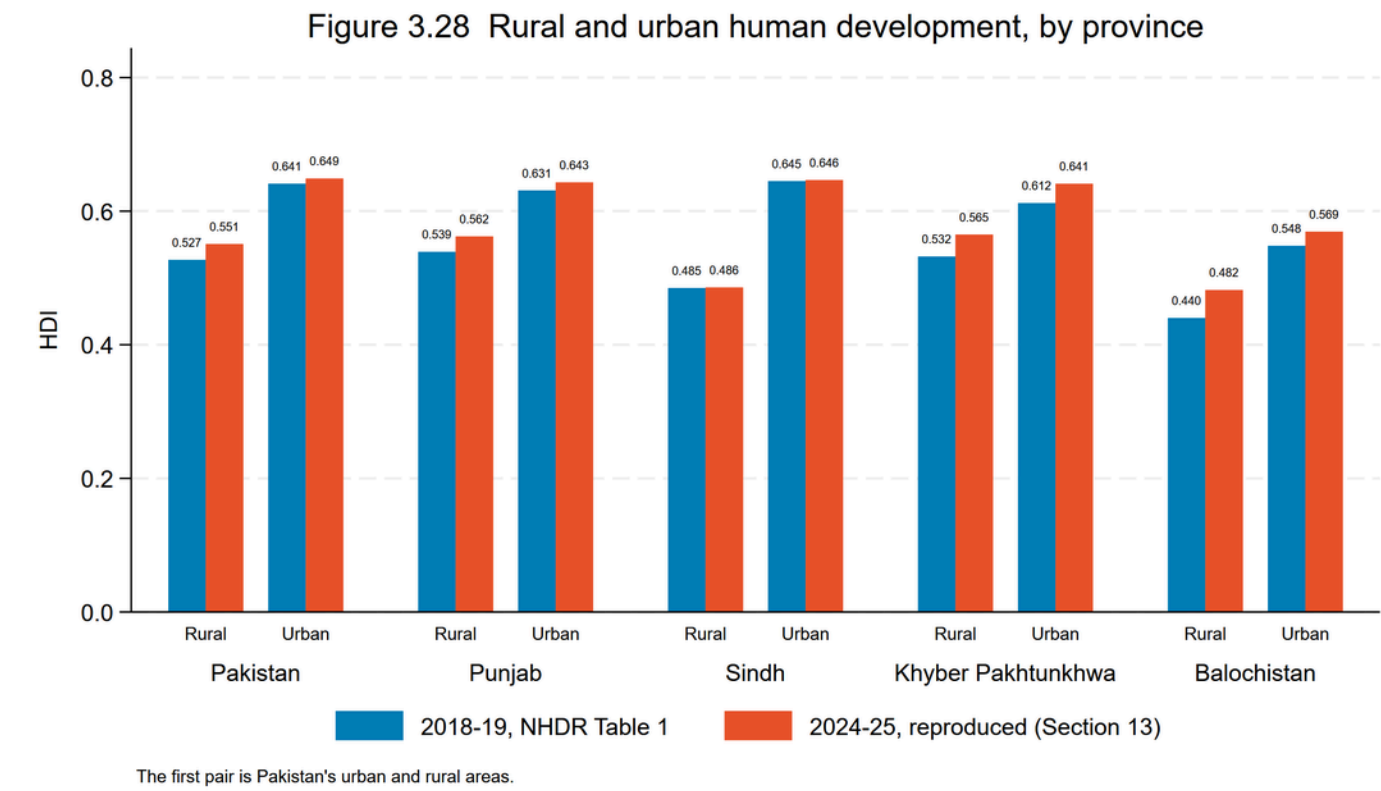

FIGURE 3.28

The gap between rural and urban HDIs is highest in Sindh and lowest in Khyber Pakthunkhwa, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha, 2019; PDHS, 2017-2018; multiple years of HIES data.

Reproduced from microdata

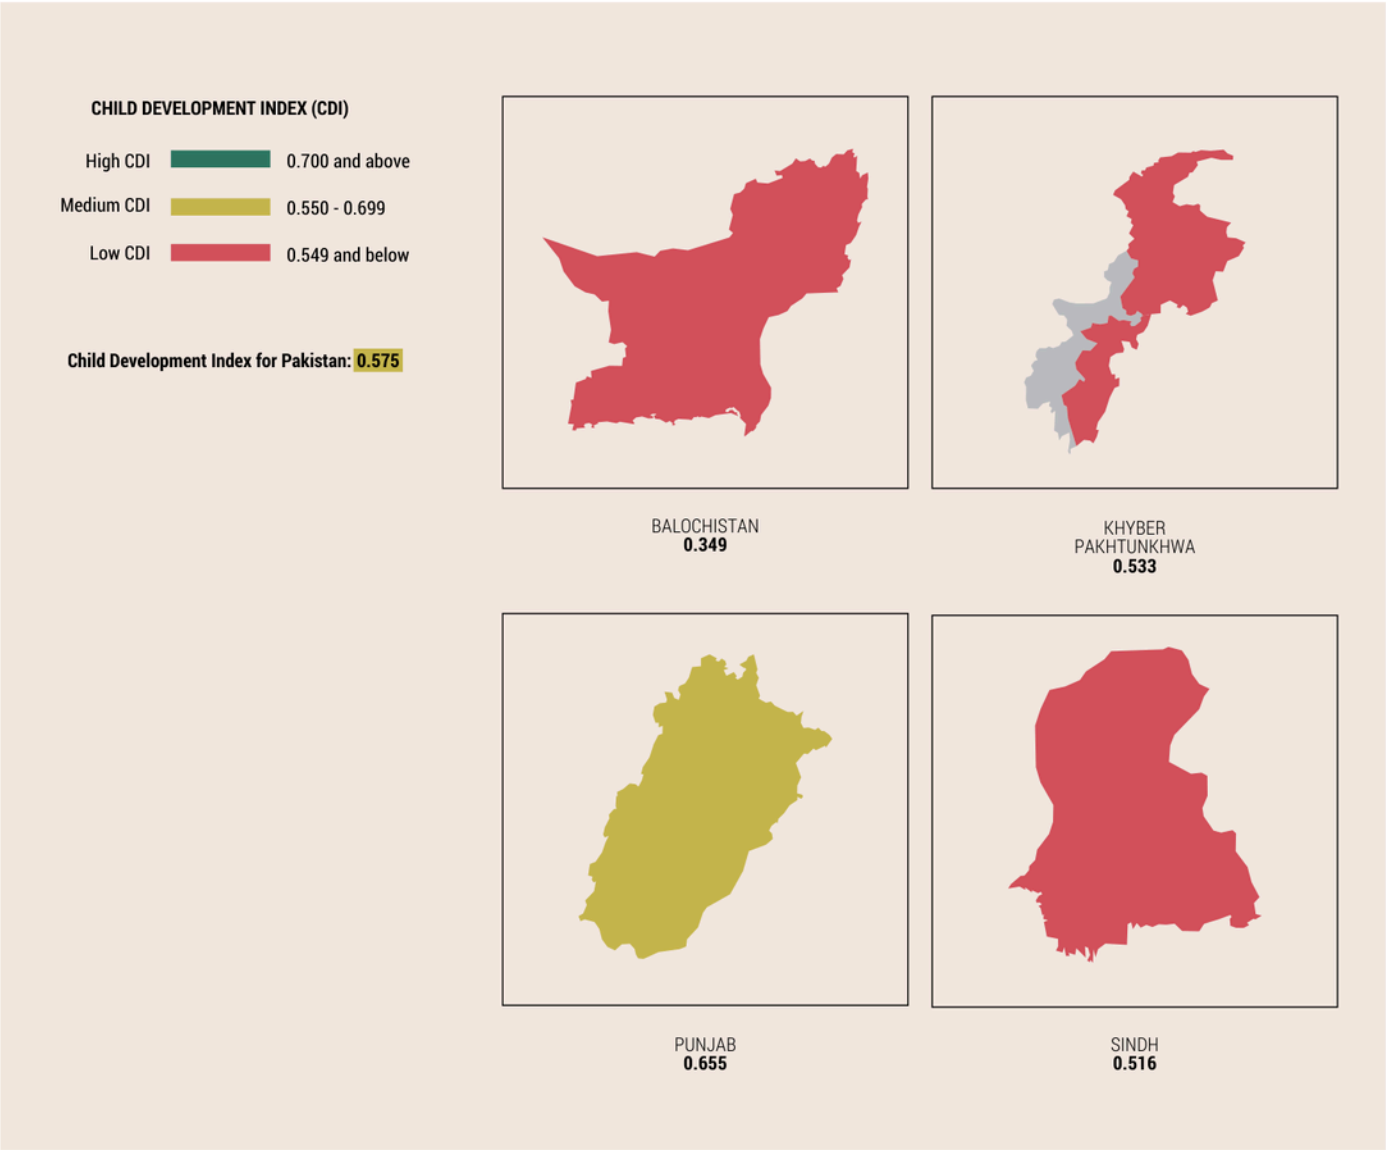

Map 4.1 Pakistan Child Development Index, (2018-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

MAP 4.1

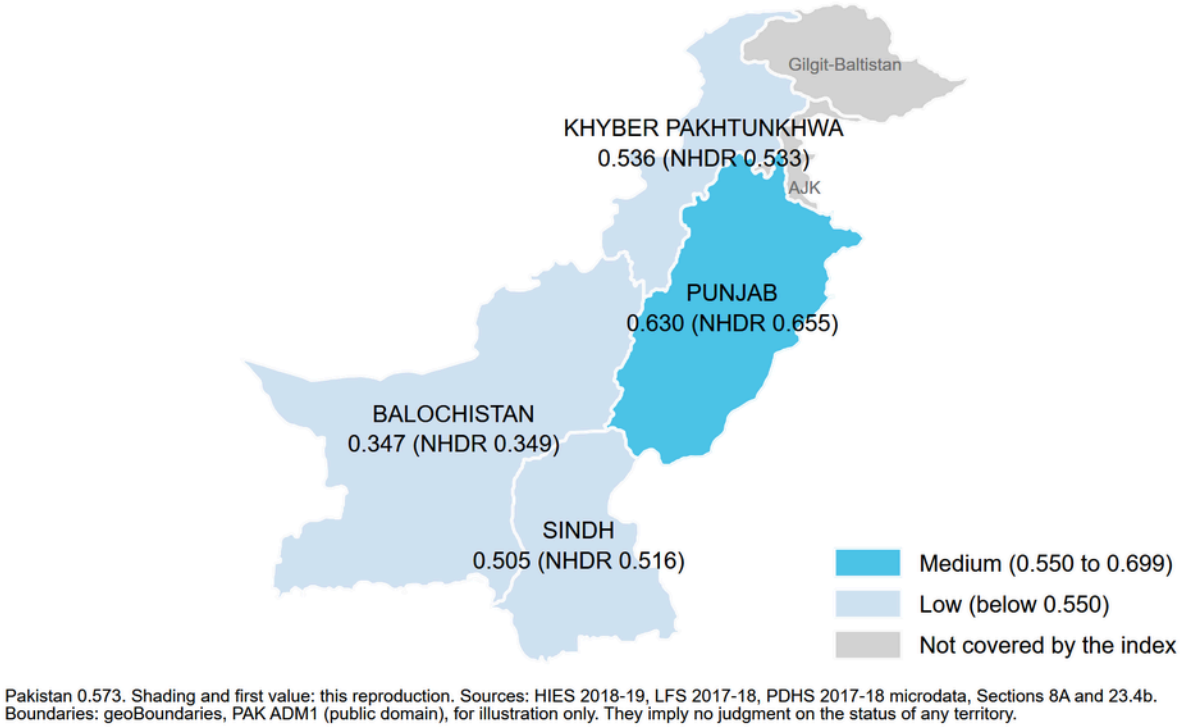

Pakistan Child Development Index, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on the HIES 2018–2019, the PSLM 2018–2019, and the PDHS 2017–2018.

Reproduced from microdata

Map 4.1 Pakistan Child Development Index, 2018-19

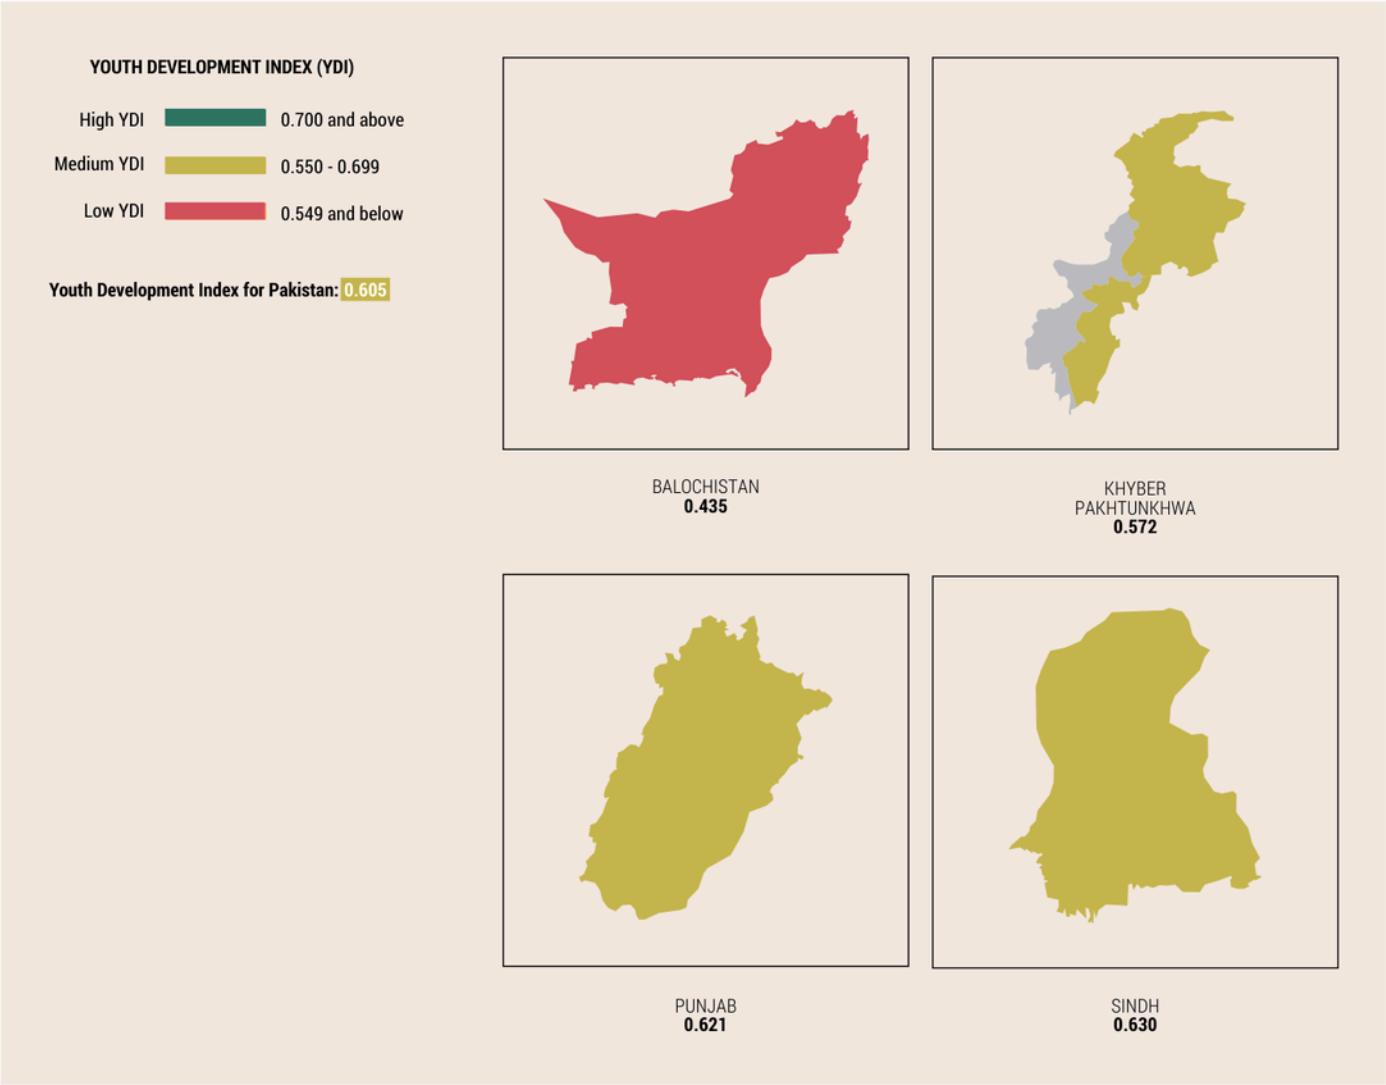

Map 4.2 Pakistan Youth Development Index, (2017-2018)

Published, NHDR 2020

MAP 4.2

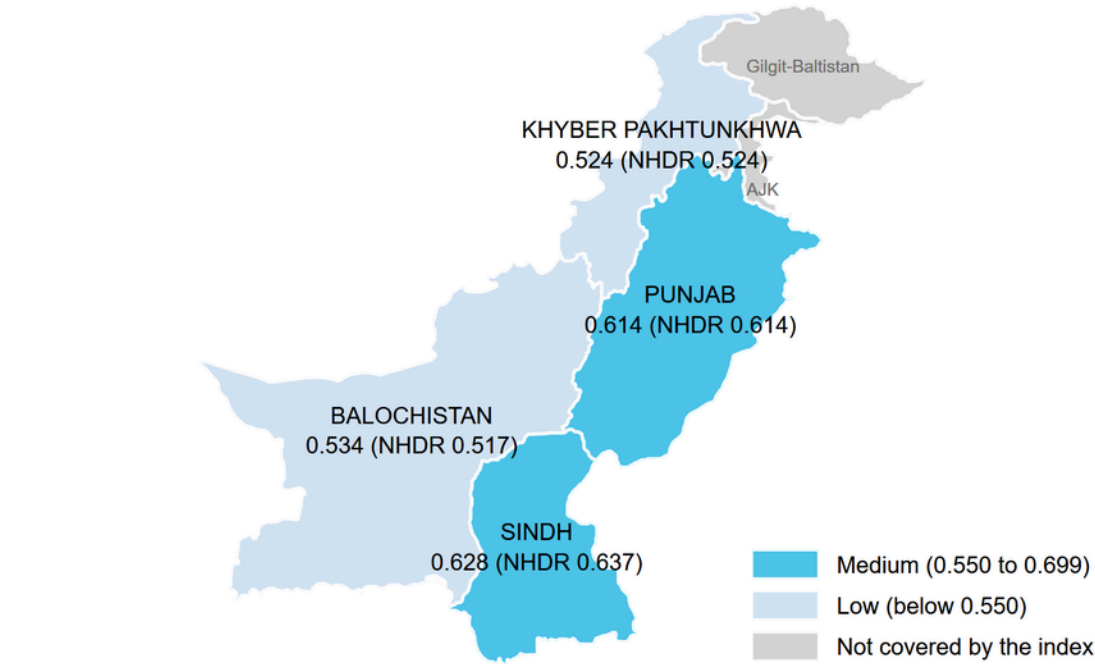

Pakistan Youth Development Index, (2017-2018)

Source: UNDP calculations based on LFS 2017-2018 and PMMS, 2019.

Reproduced from microdata

Map 4.2 Pakistan Youth Development Index, 2017-18

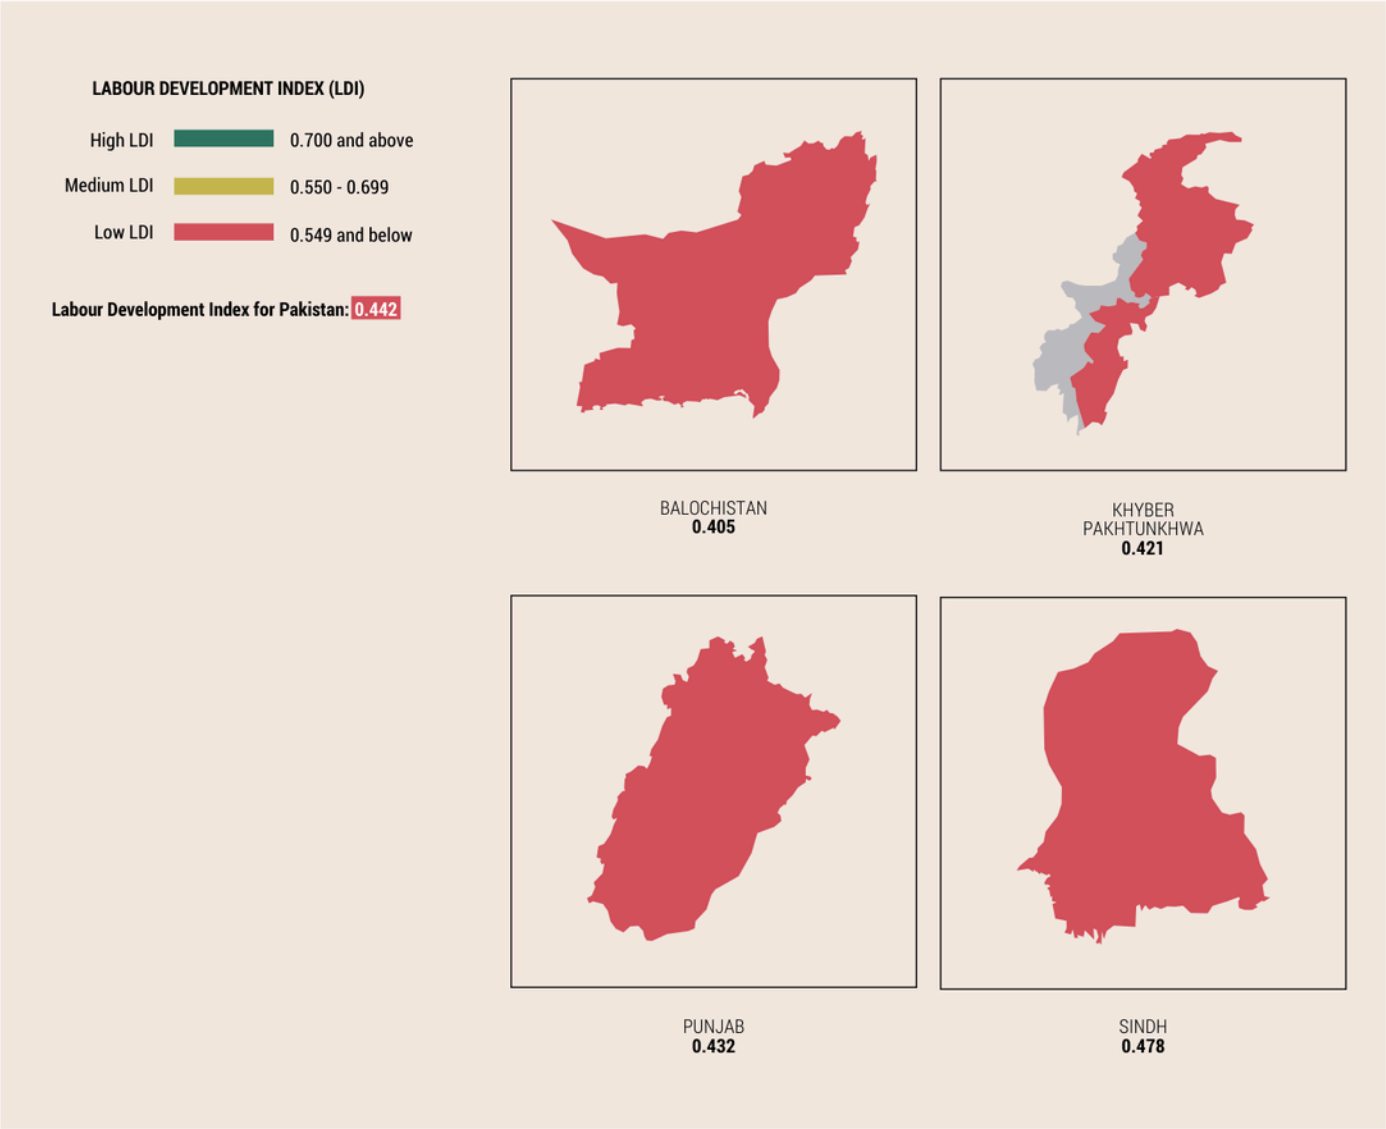

Pakistan 0.608. Shading and first value: this reproduction. Sources: LFS 2017-18 with Islamabad in Punjab, survival as printed, Section 24. Boundaries: geoBoundaries, PAK ADM1 (public domain), for illustration only. They imply no judgment on the status of any territory.

Map 4.3 Pakistan Labour Development Index, (2017-2018)

Published, NHDR 2020

MAP 4.3

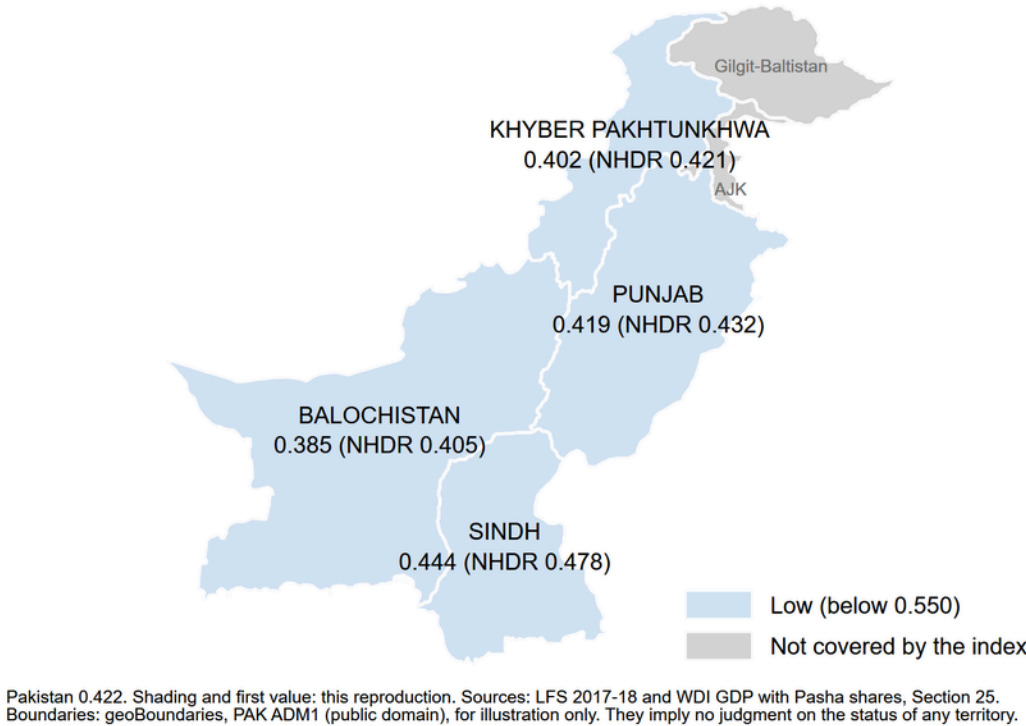

Pakistan Labour Development Index, (2017-2018)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha 2019 and LFS, 2017-2018.

Reproduced from microdata

Map 4.3 Pakistan Labour Development Index, 2017-18

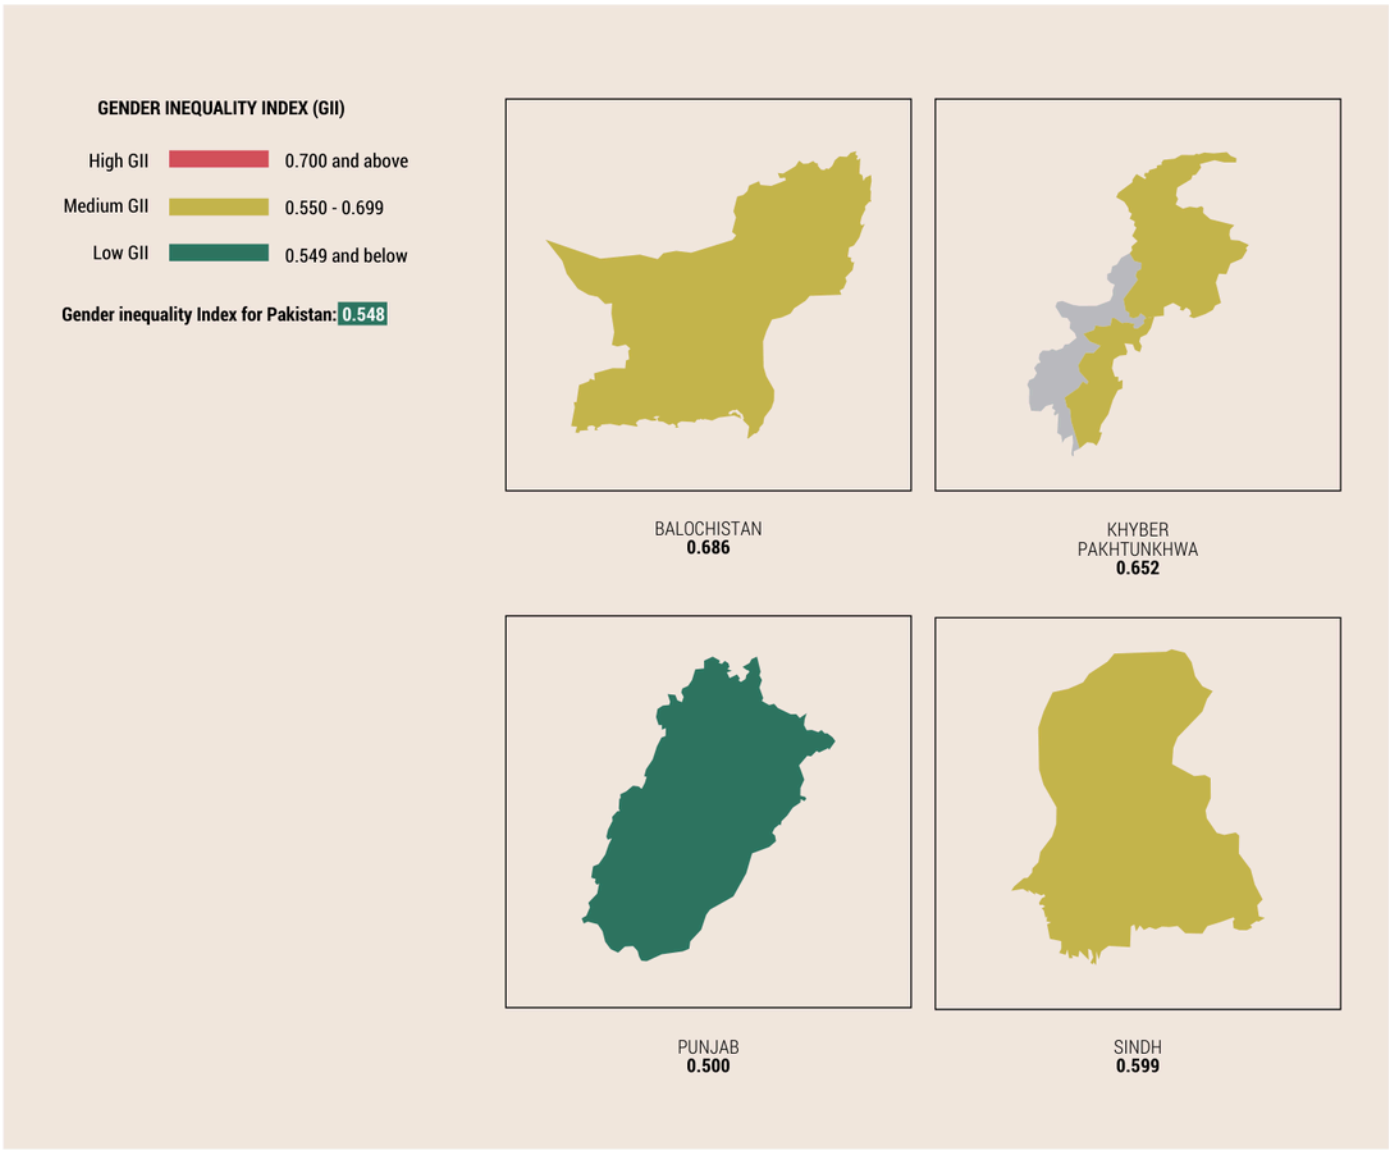

Map 4.4 Pakistan Gender Inequality Index, (2018-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

MAP 4.4

Pakistan Gender Inequality Index, (2018-2019)

Note: The closer the GII is to 0, the better. See GII technical notes for more details.
Source: UNDP calculations based on PSLM, 2018-2019; LFS, 2017-2018; and Khan, A., & Naqvi, S., 2018.

Reproduced from microdata

Map 4.4 Pakistan Gender Inequality Index, 2018-19

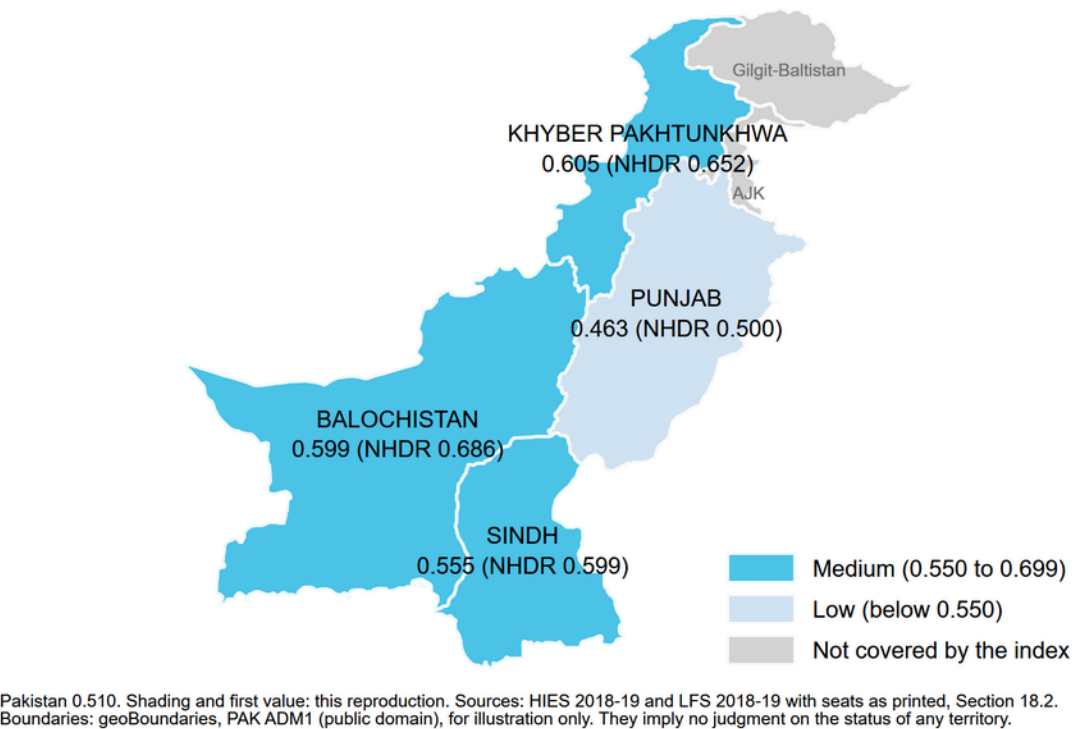

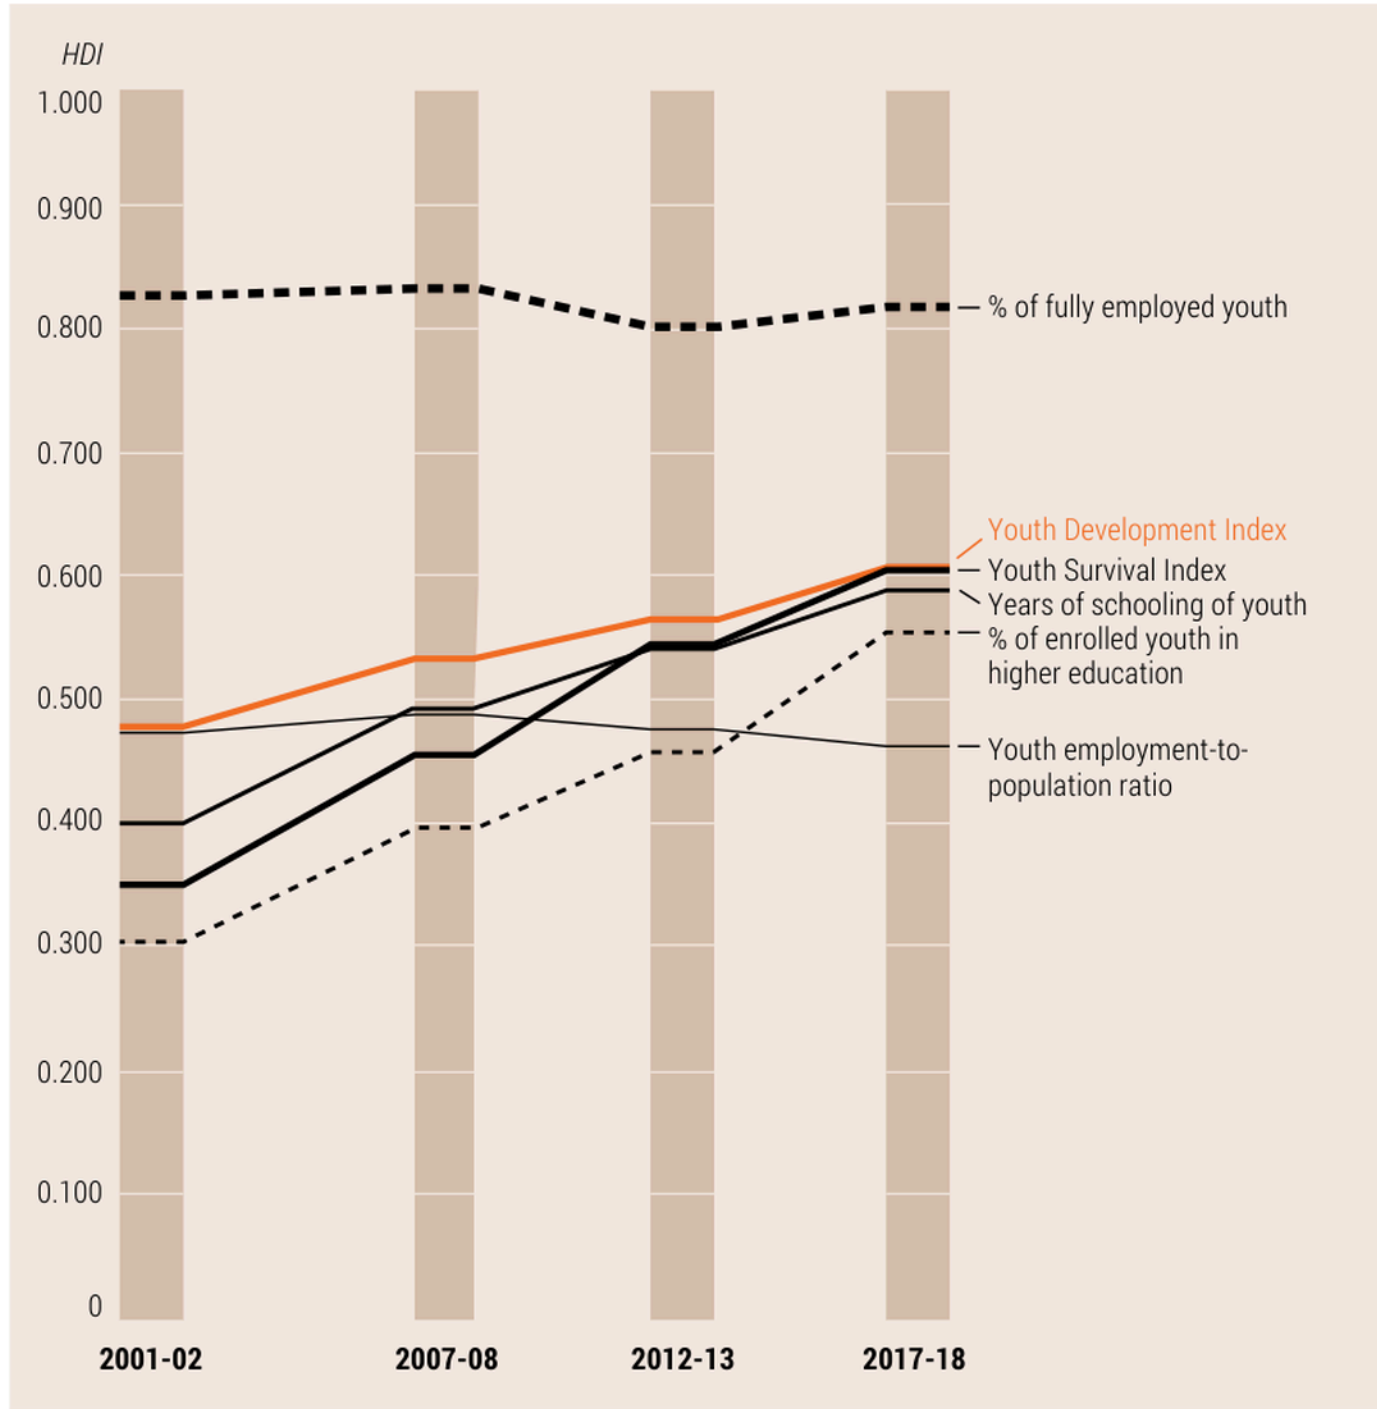

Figure 4.1 Trends in the national Youth Development Index and its sub-indices*, (2001- 2018)

Published, NHDR 2020

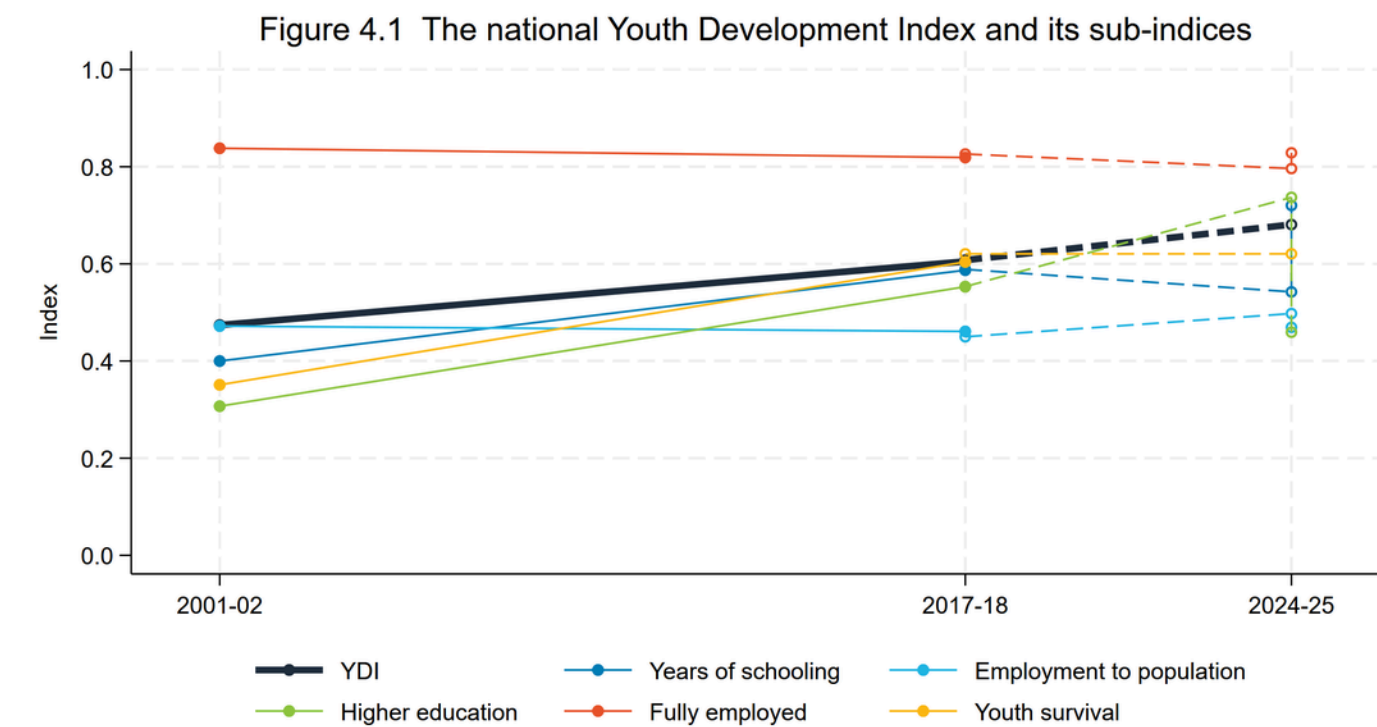

FIGURE 4.1

Trends in the national Youth Development Index and its sub-indices*, (2001-2018)

Note: The actual value of each indicator is given in the Statistical Annex.
Source: UNDP calculations based on multiple years data of LFS, PDHS, and PMMS.

Reproduced from microdata

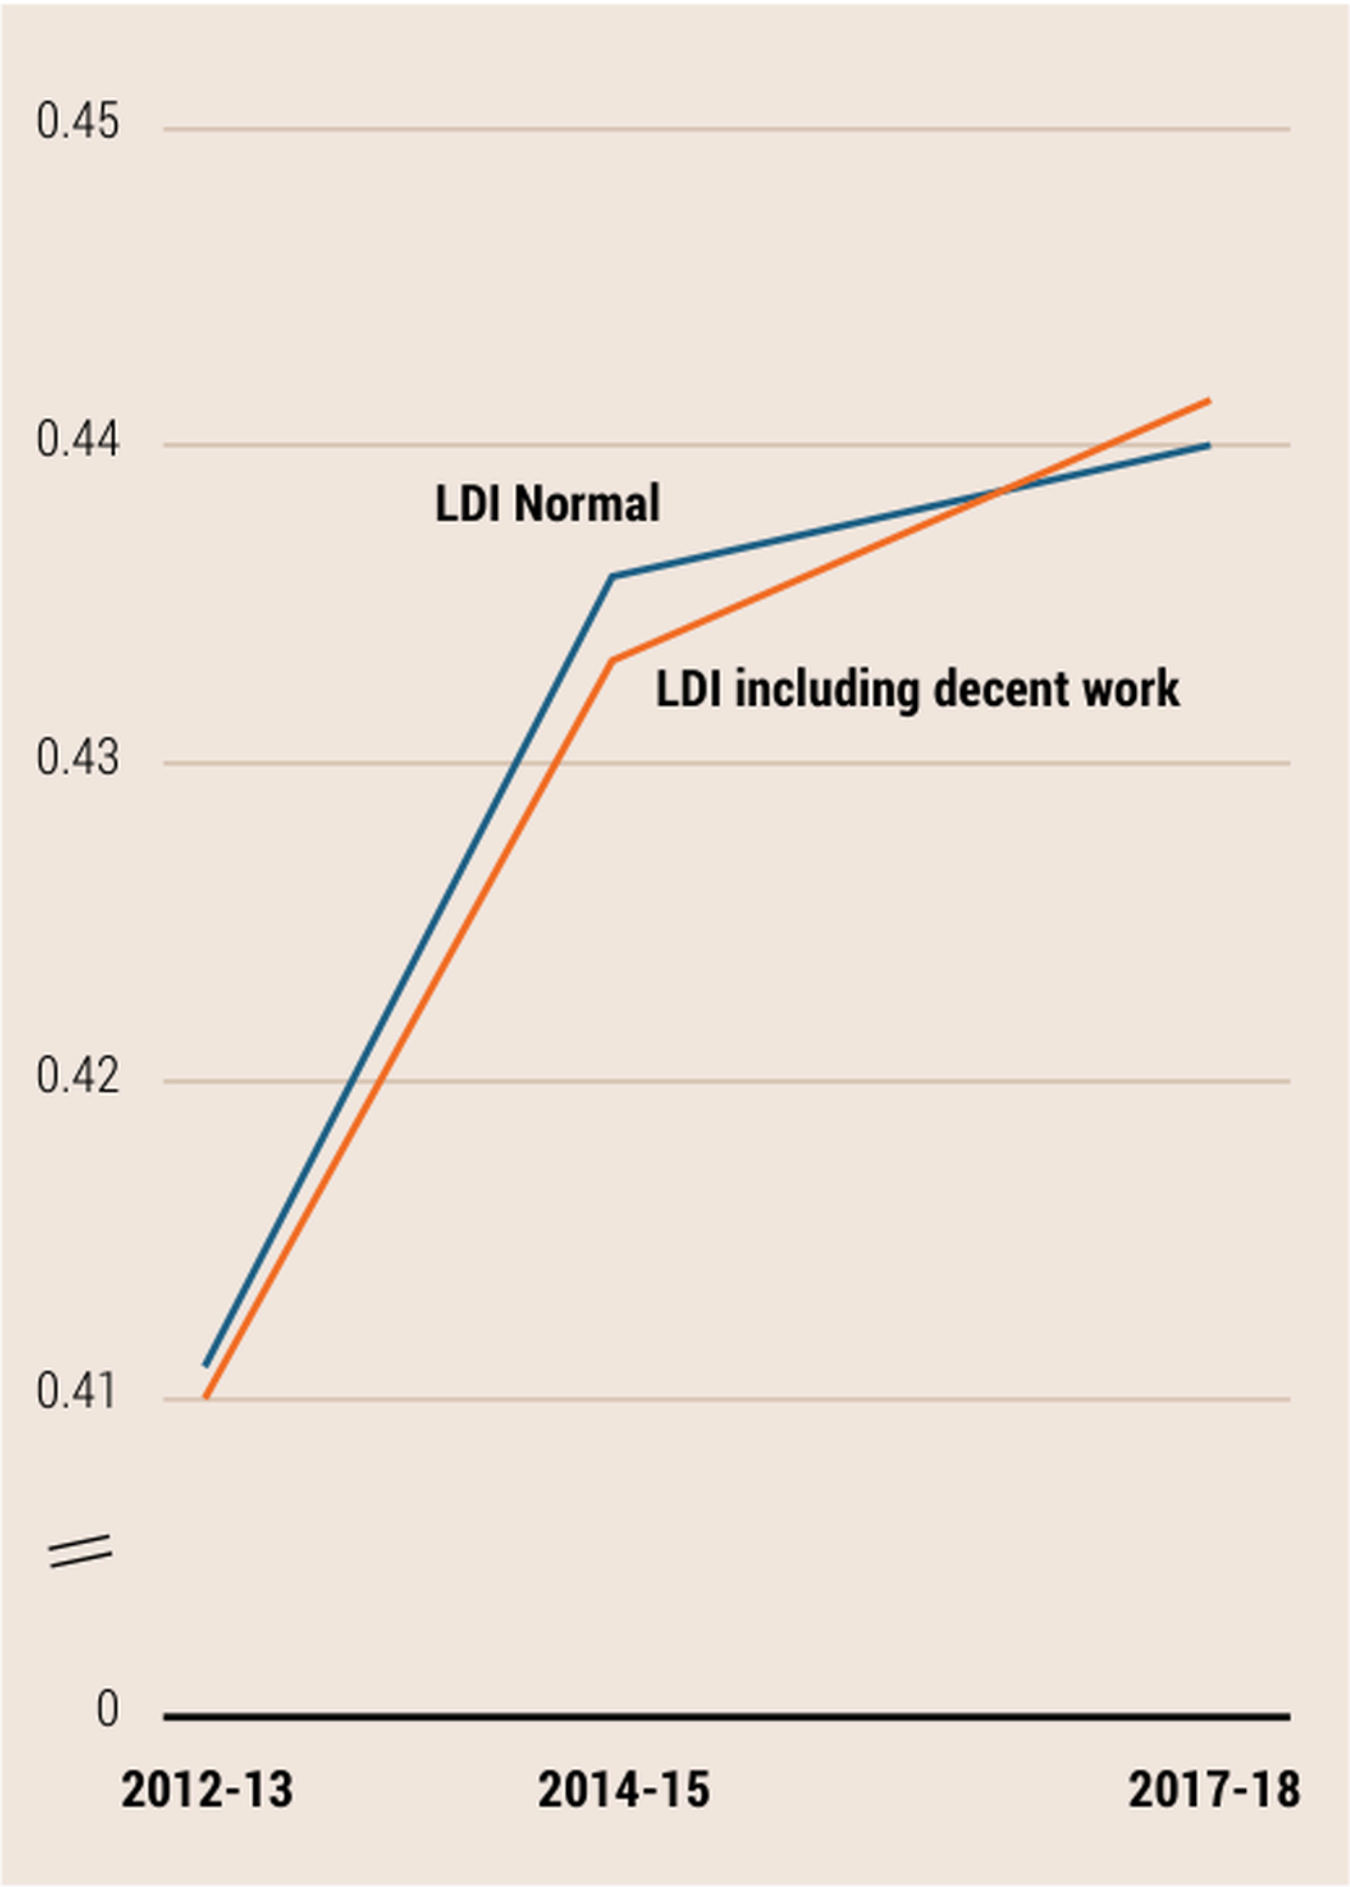

Solid: NHDR 2020 Table 5. Dashed: reproduced from LFS 2017-18 and 2024-25 (Section 24). Survival is PMMS 2019 in both reproduced years. LFS 2001-02 microdata are not in 6. Raw data.

Figure 4.4 Over the years labour development is improving with regards to decent working conditions, (2012-2018)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 4.4

Over the years labour development is improving with regards to decent working conditions, (2012-2018)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha 2019 and multiple years of LFS.

Reproduced from microdata

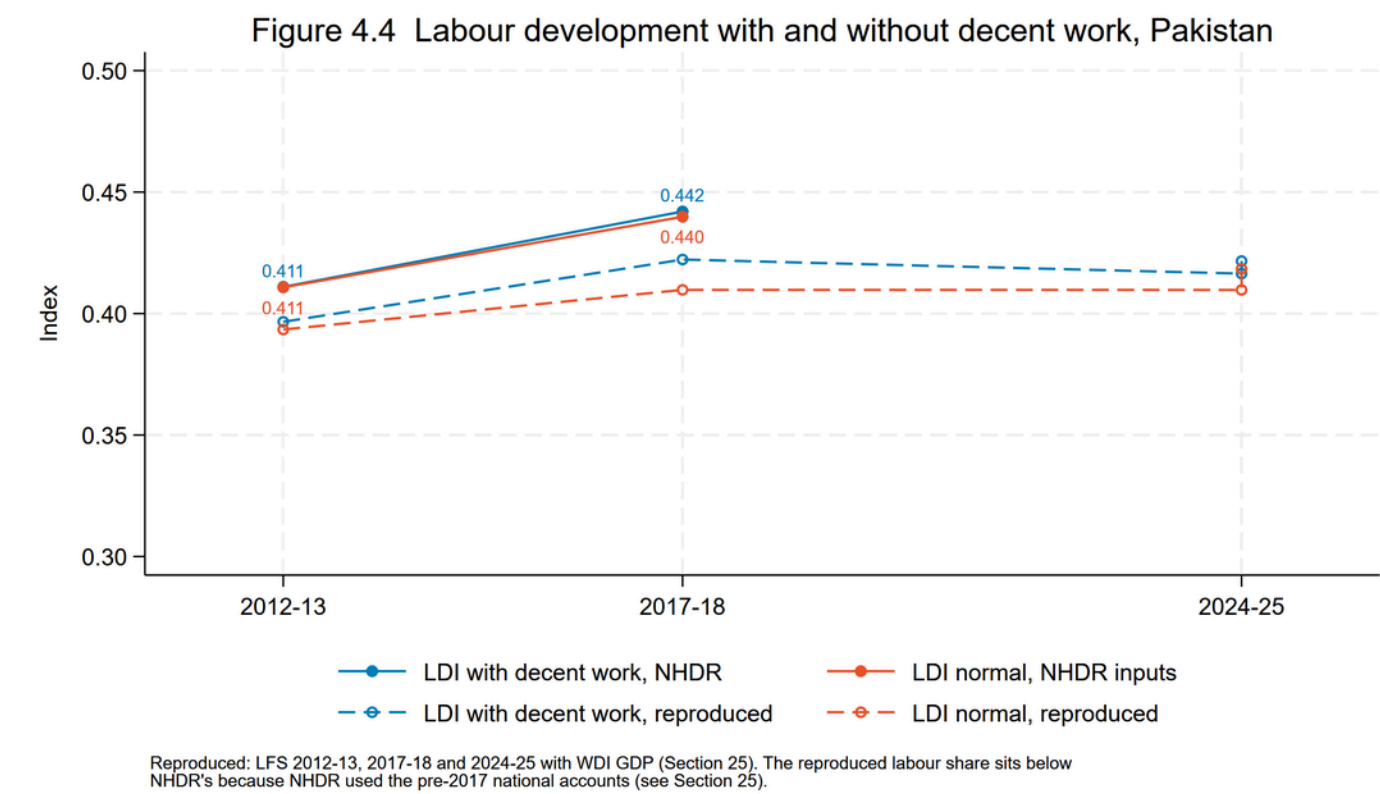

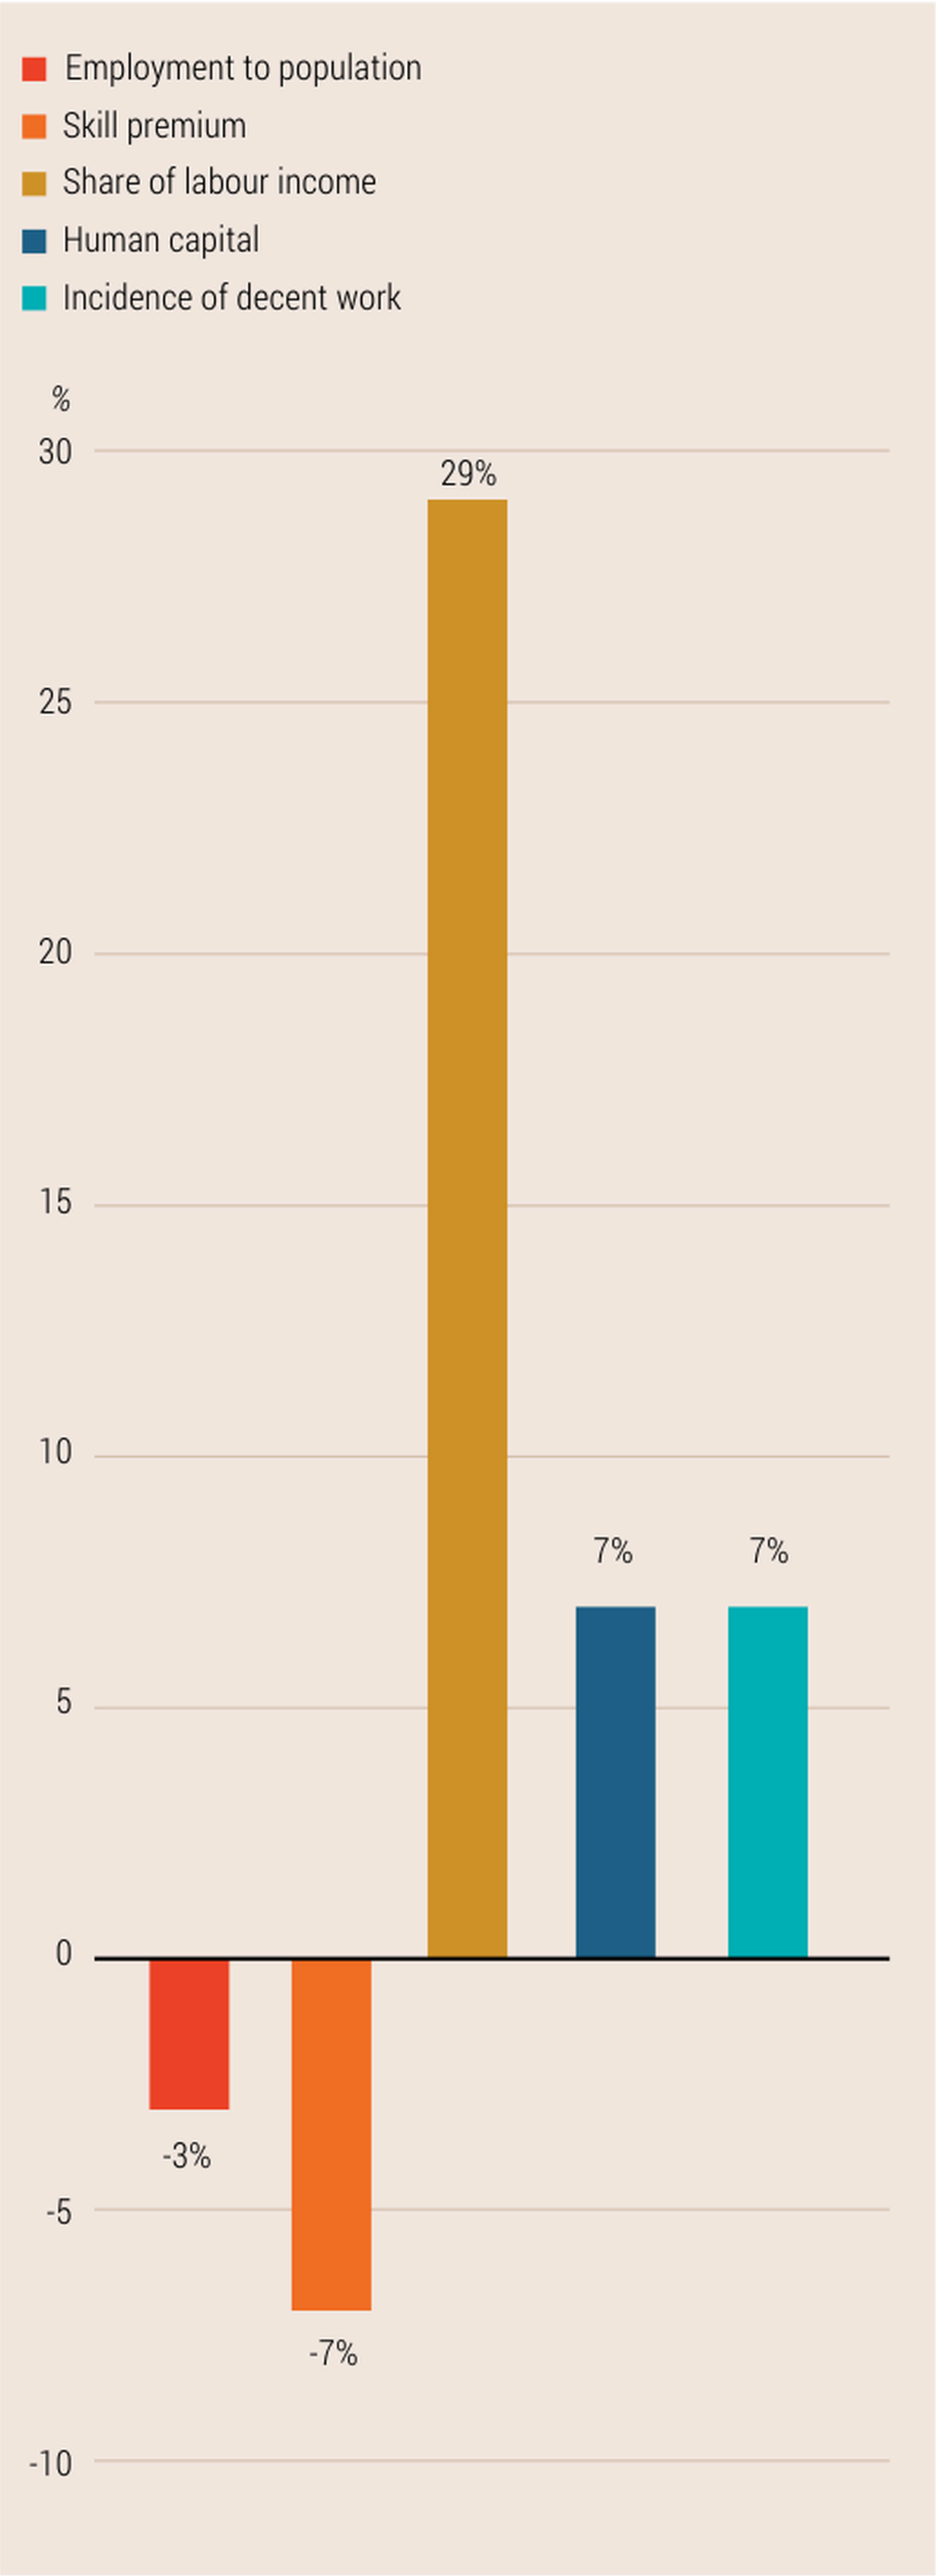

Figure 4.5 Changes in the dimensions of the national Labour Development Index, (2012-2018)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 4.5

Changes in the dimensions of the national Labour Development Index, (2012-2018)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha 2019 and multiple years of LFS.

Reproduced from microdata

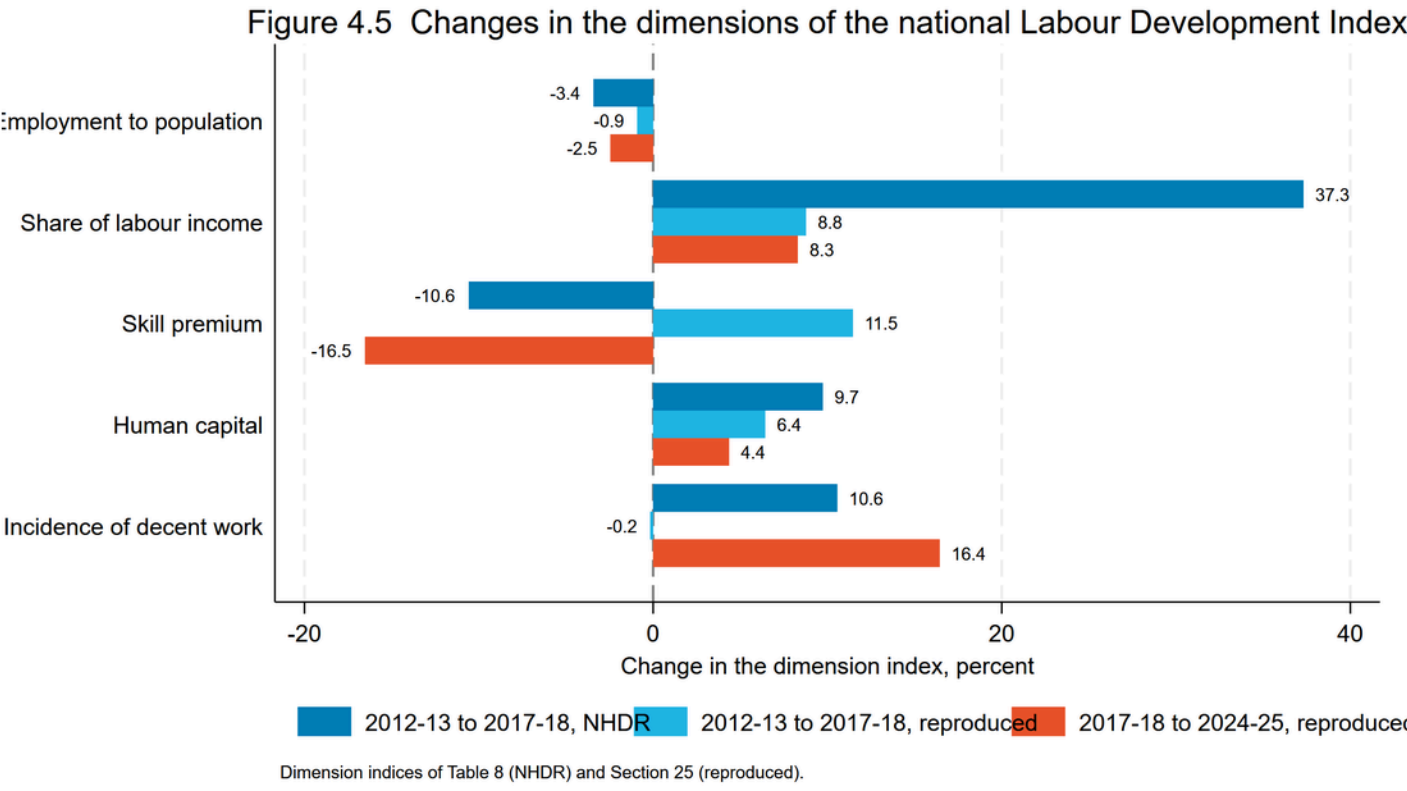

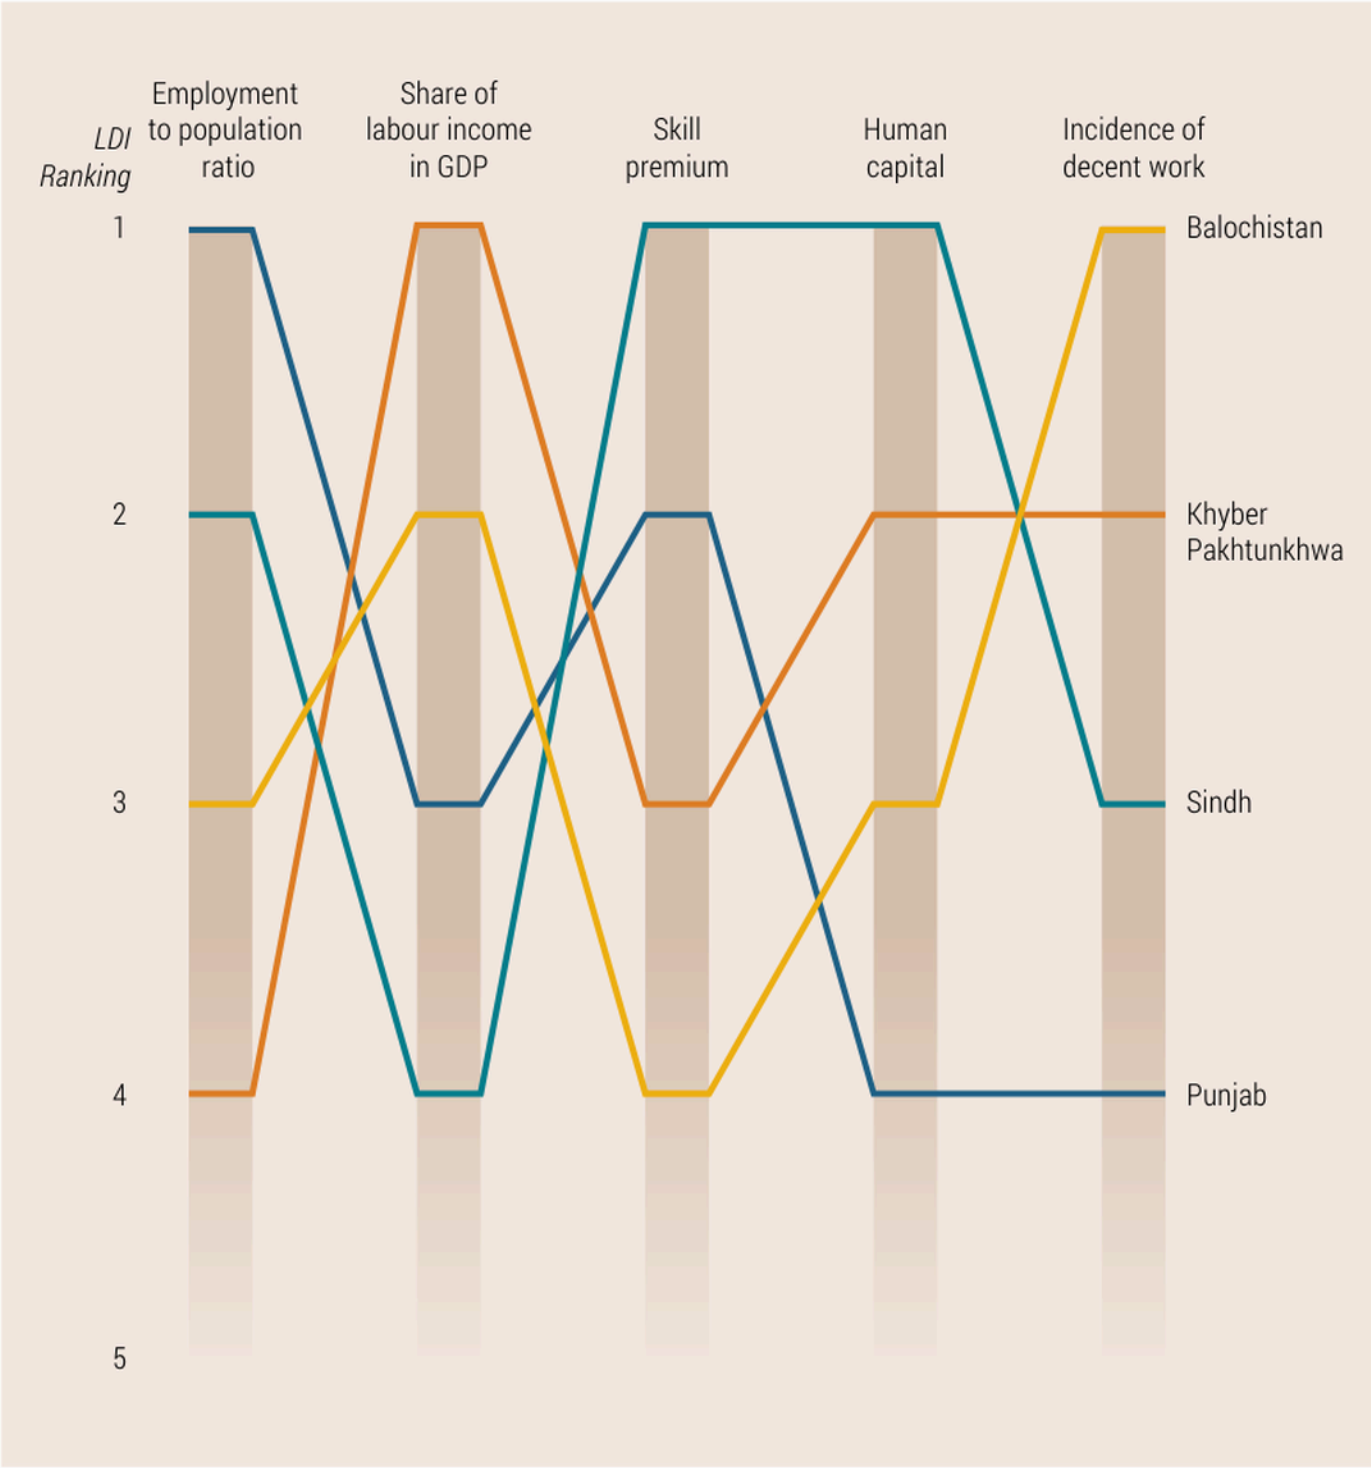

Figure 4.6 Provincial Labour Development Index rankings by indicator values, (2017- 2018)

Published, NHDR 2020

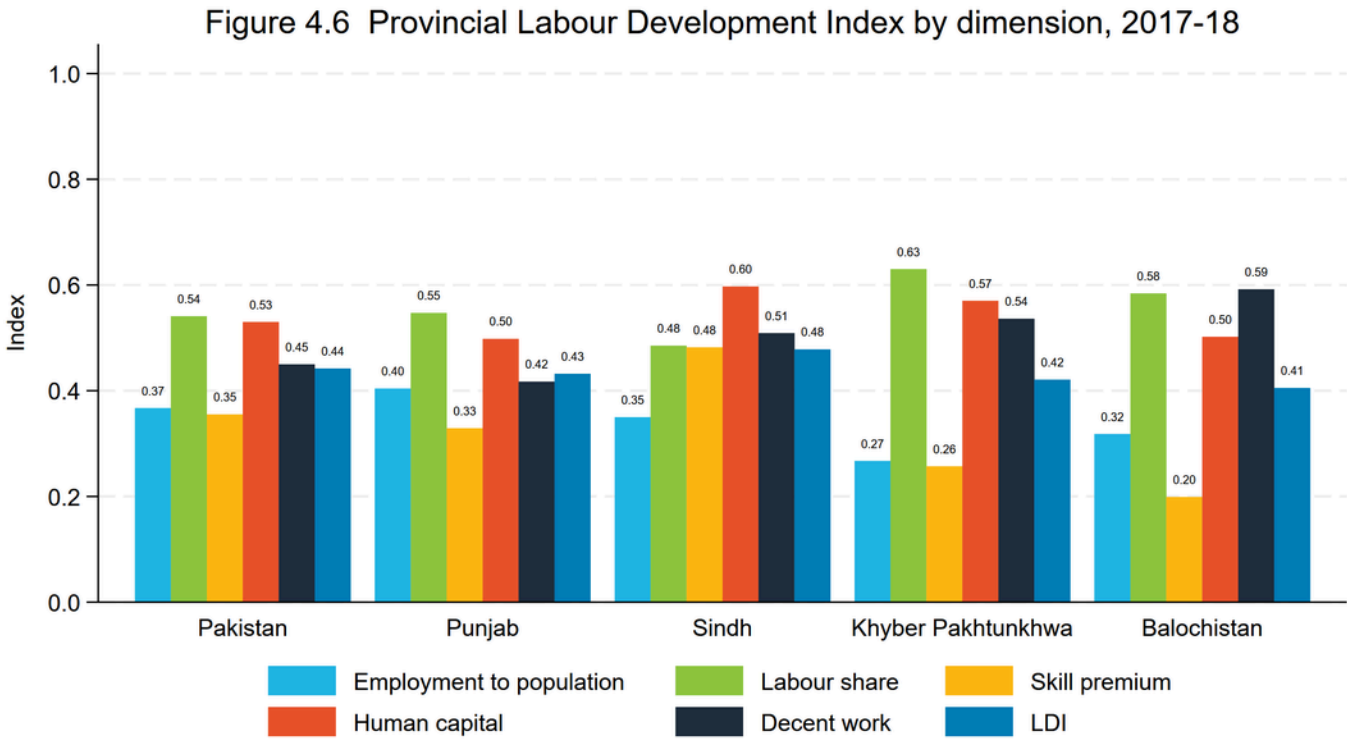

FIGURE 4.6

Provincial Labour Development Index rankings by indicator values, (2017-2018)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha 2019 and LFS 2017-2018.

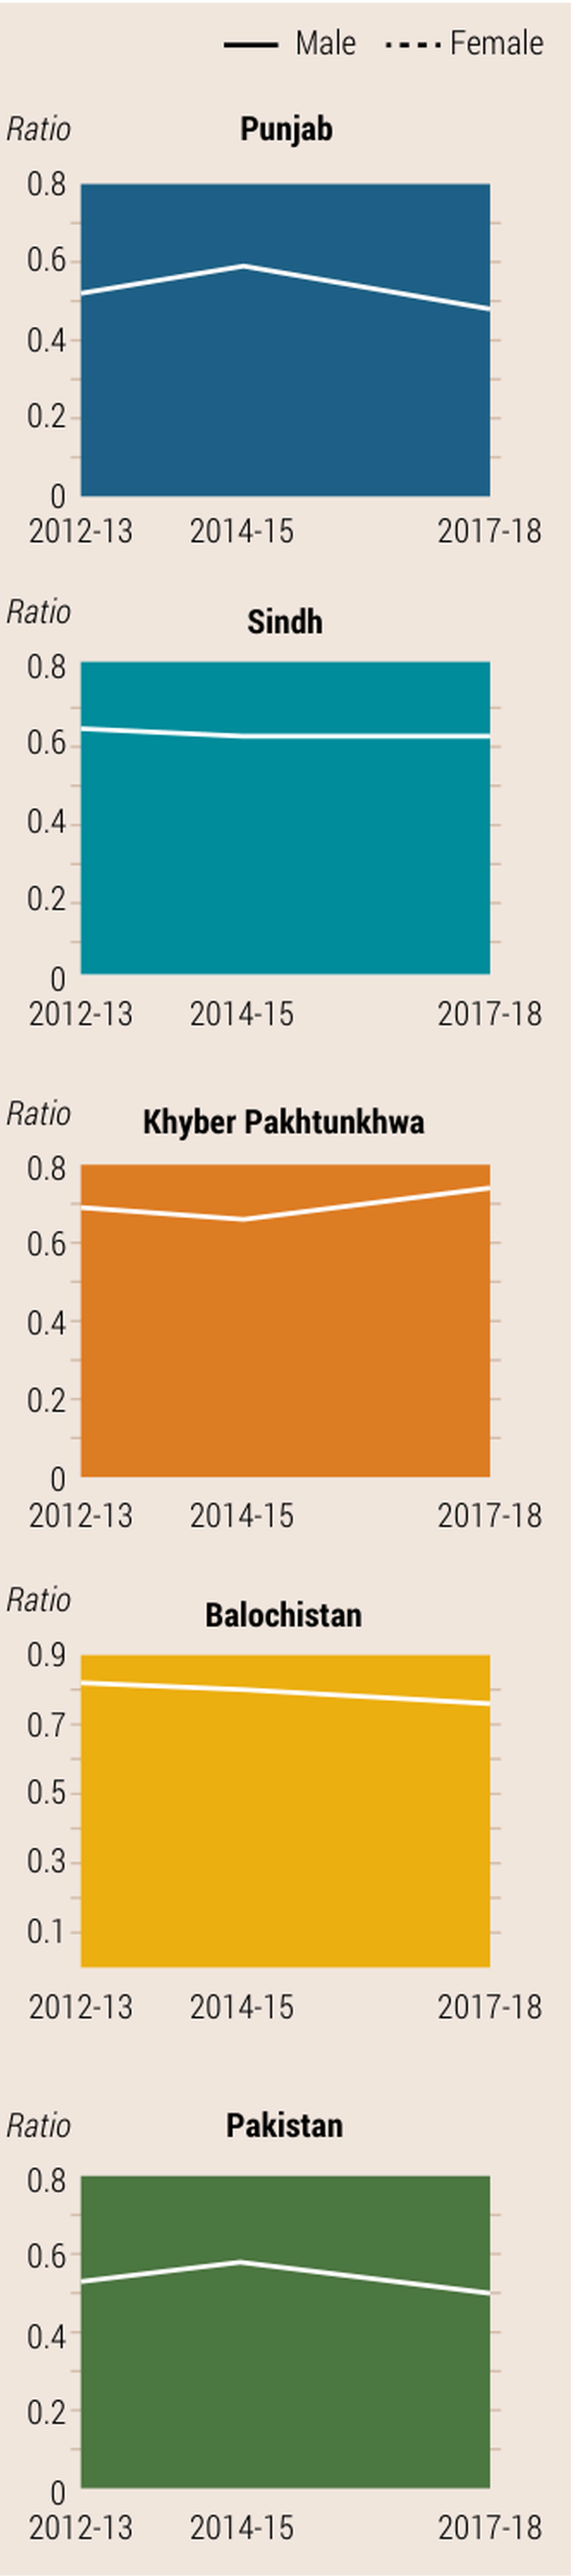

Reproduced from microdata

NHDR 2020 Table 8 as printed. Section 25.1 reproduces every dimension index from Table 8A.

FIGURE 4.7

Gender wage ratios, (2012-2018)

Source: UNDP calculations based on multiple years of LFS.

Reproduced from microdata

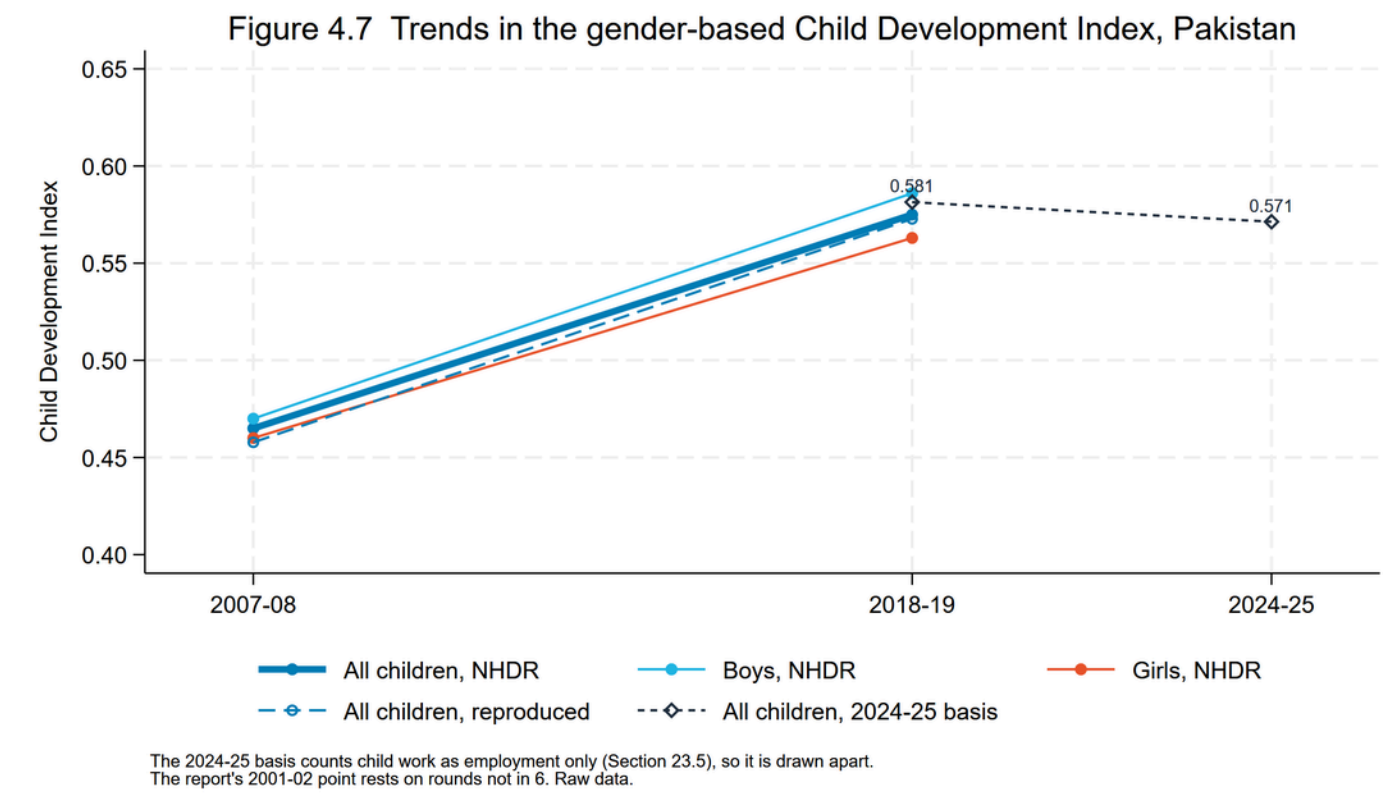

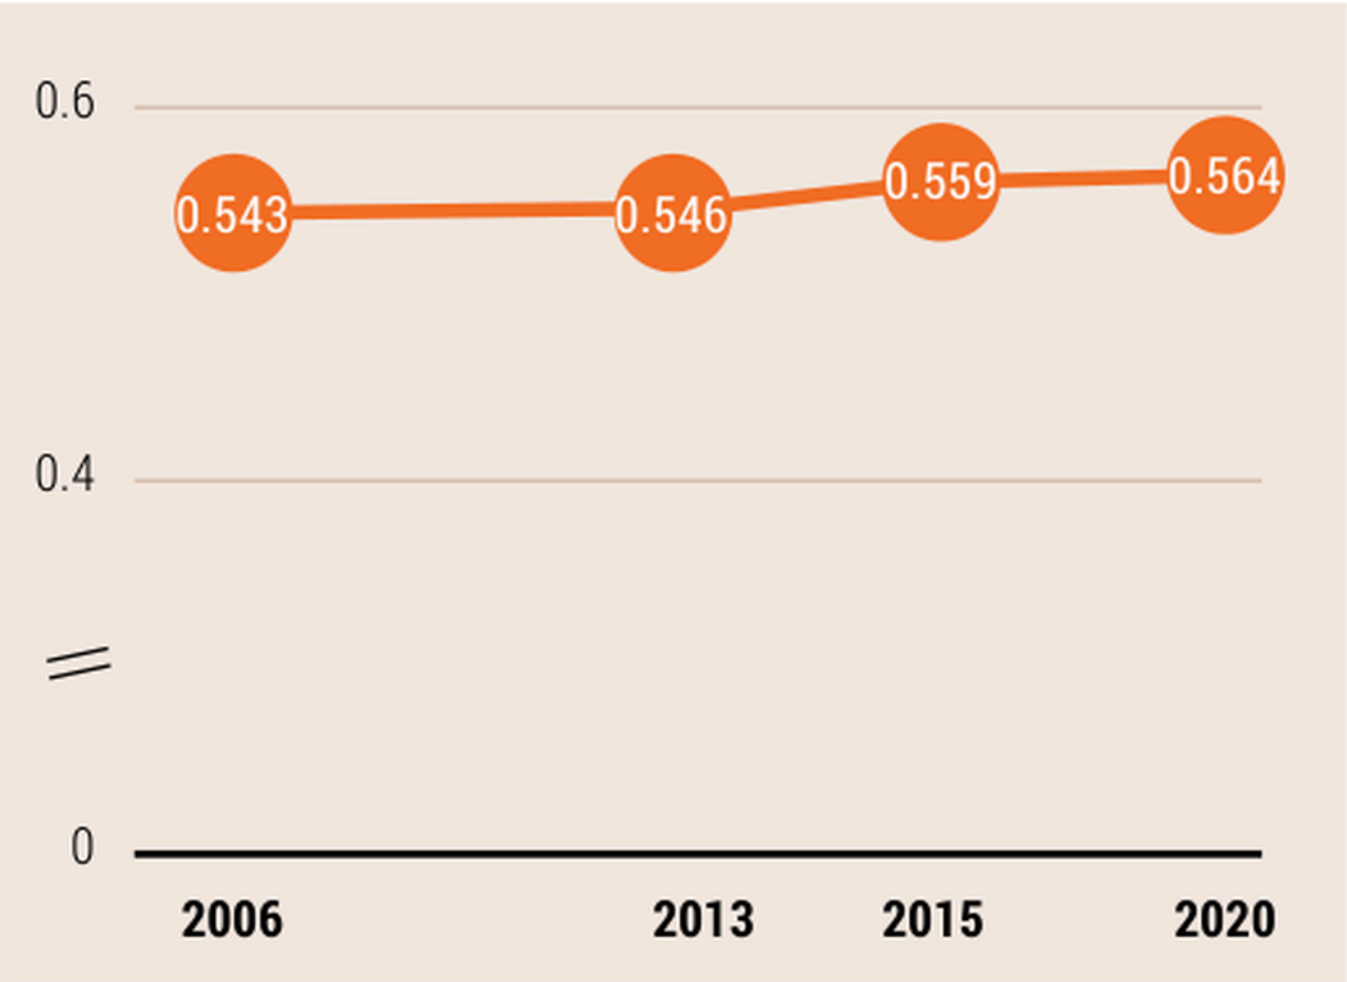

Figure 4.8 Pakistan's performance on the Global Gender Gap Index, (2006-2018)

Numbering mismatch: the do file labels this chart Figure 4.8, but NHDR's Figure 4.8 is a different chart (left). The replication (the gender-based YDI over time) has no published counterpart.

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 4.8

Pakistan's performance on the Global Gender Gap Index, (2006-2018)

Source: WEF 2020.

Reproduced from the WEF reports

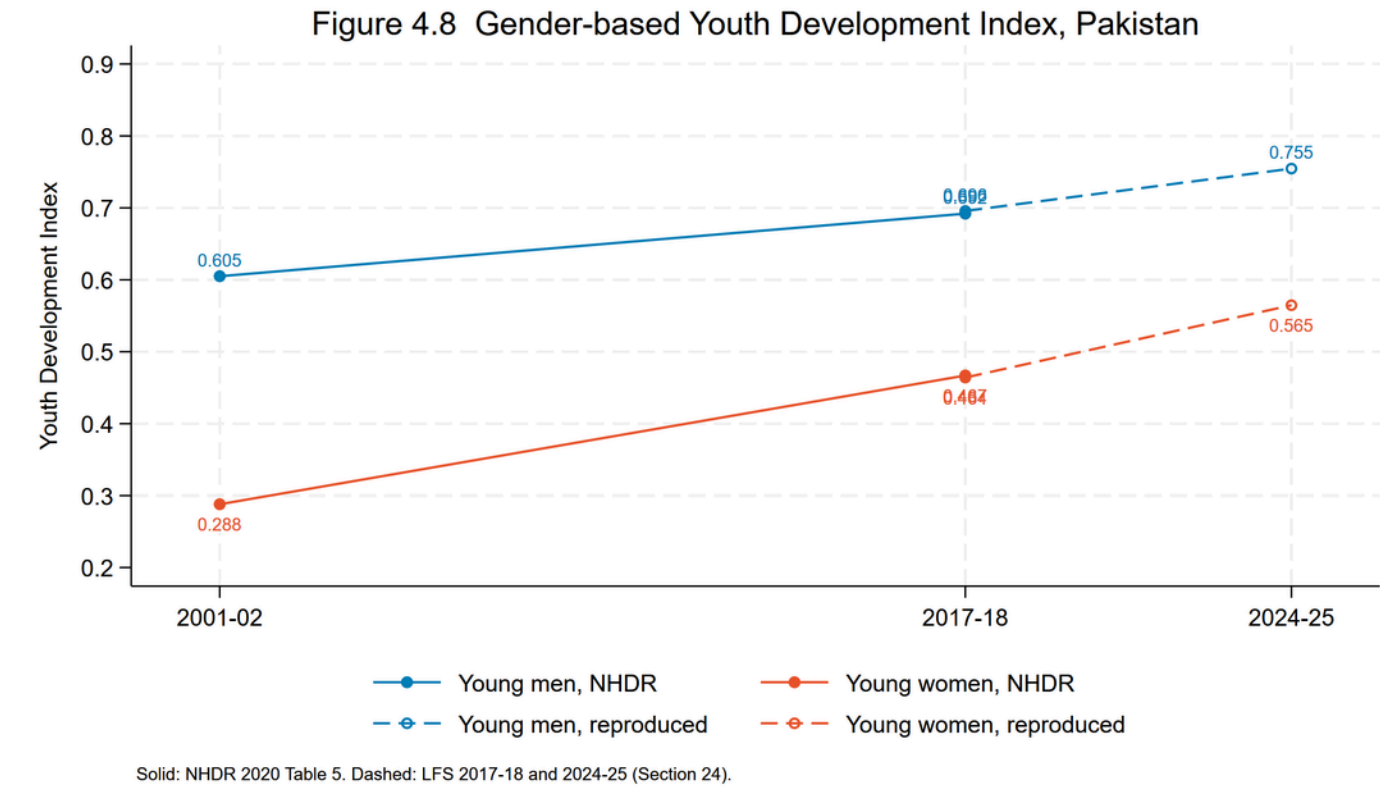

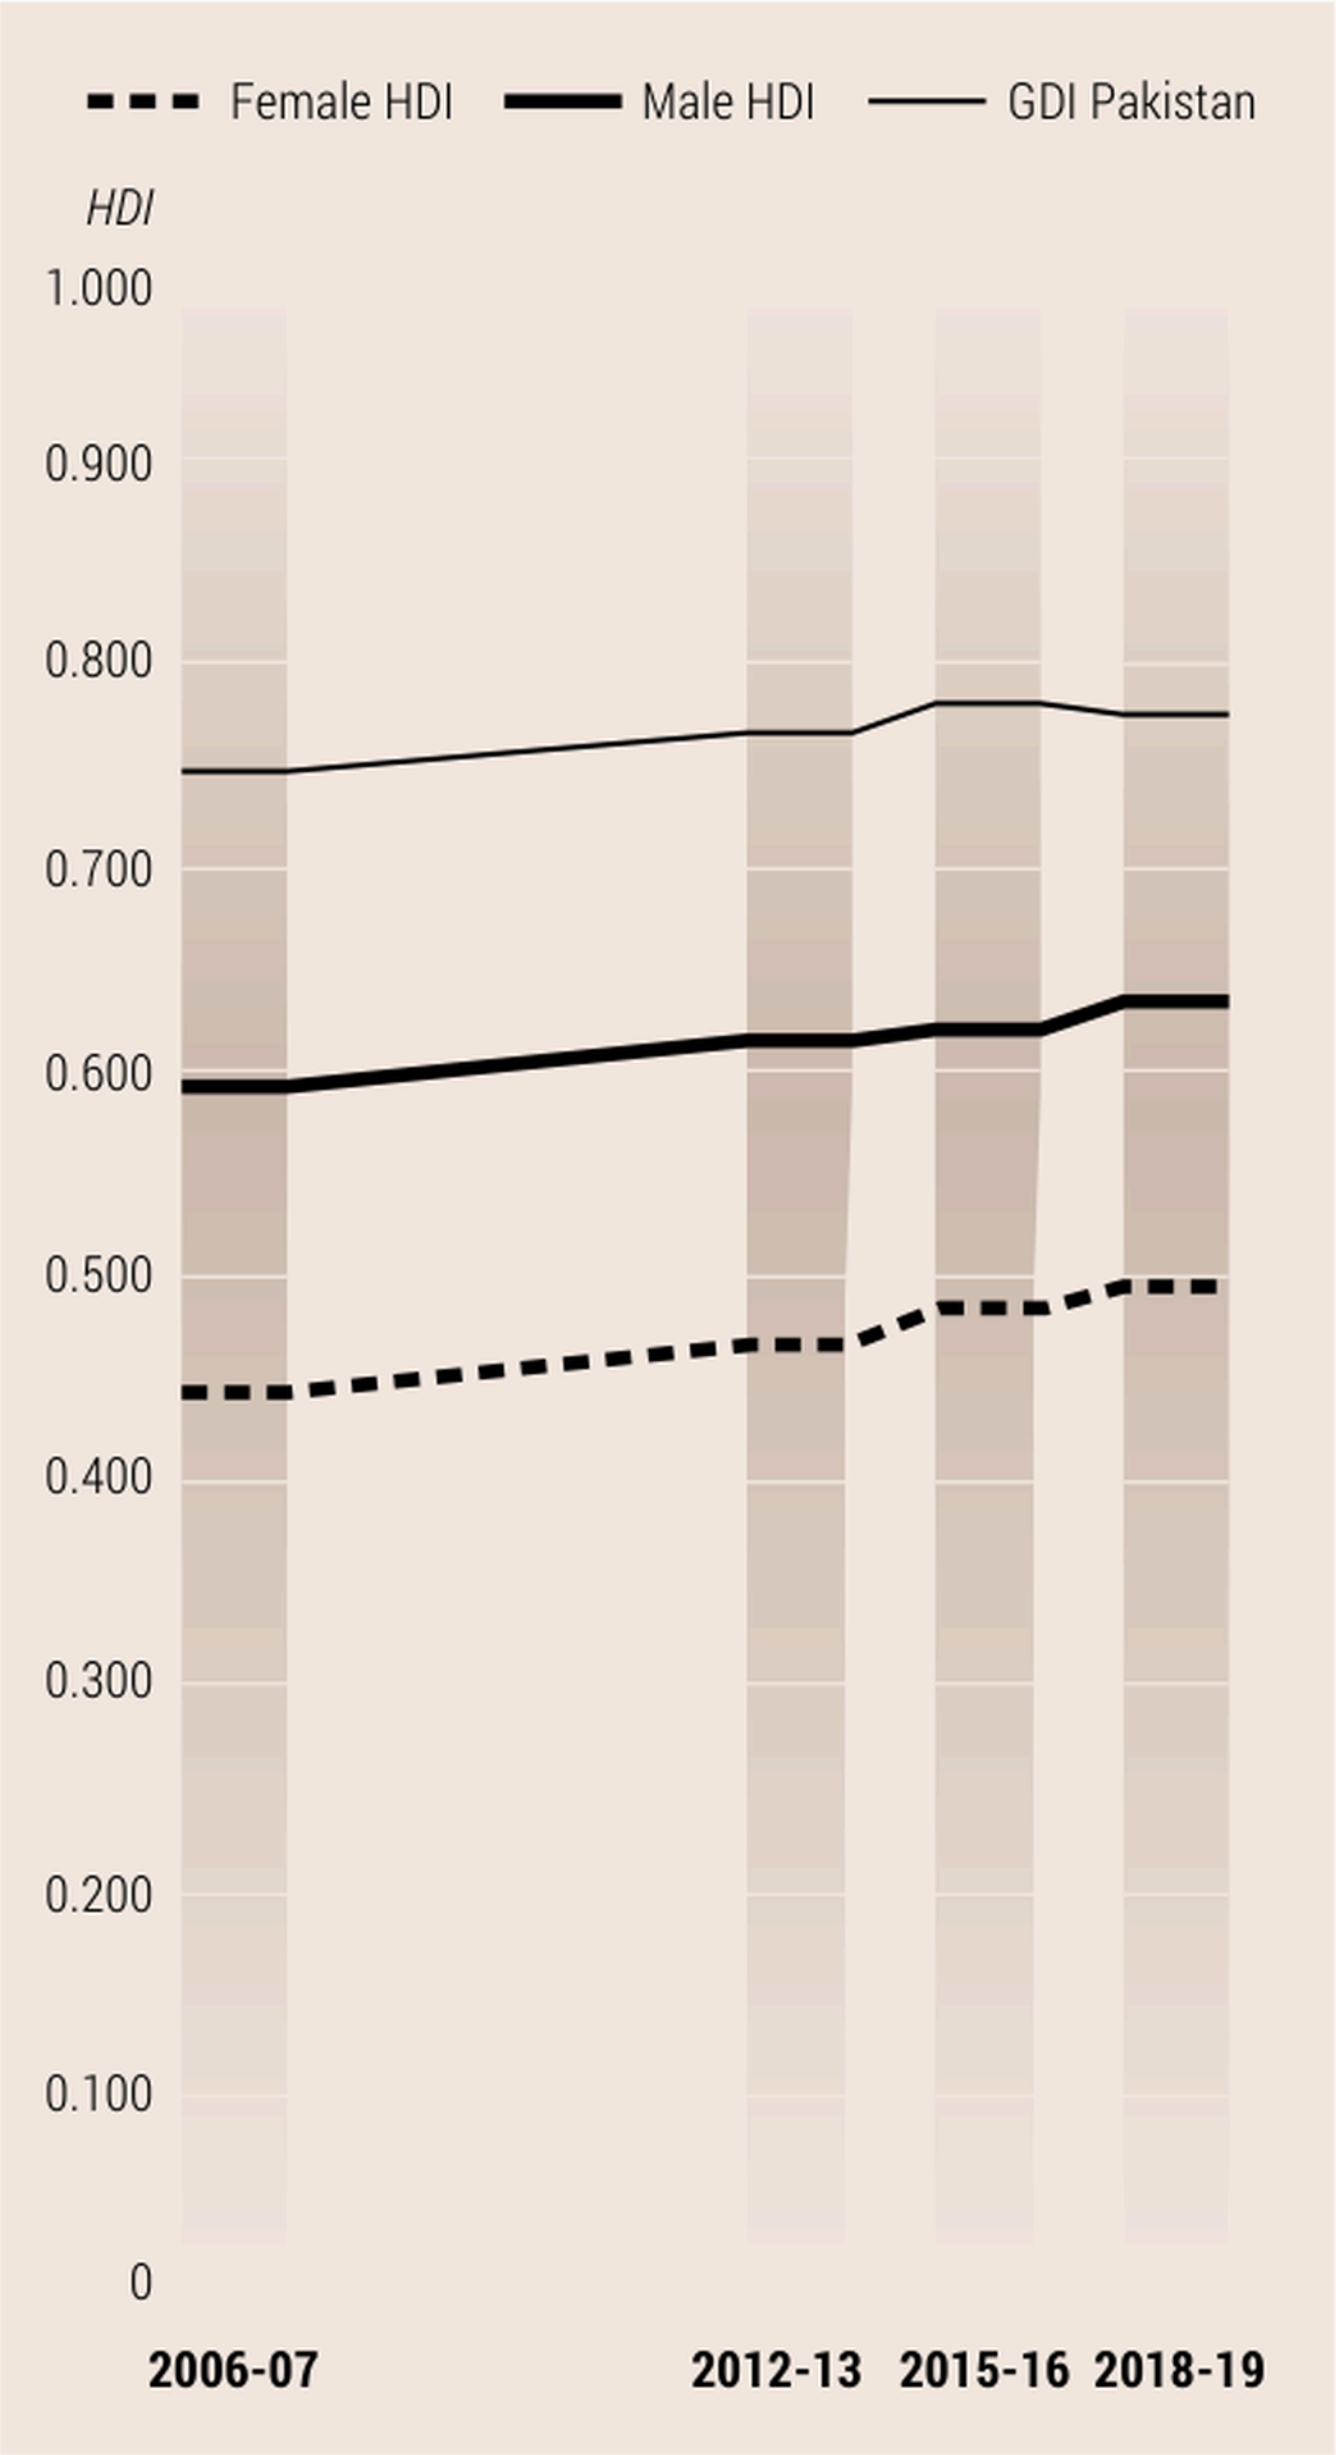

Figure 4.9 Pakistan Gender Development Index, (2006-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 4.9

Pakistan Gender Development Index, (2006-2019)

Note: GDI is the ratio of female to male HDI values.
Source: UNDP calculations based on HIES, 2005-2006, 2011-2012, 2015-2016, and 2018-2019; Global HDR, 2018, and Population census, 2017.

Reproduced from microdata

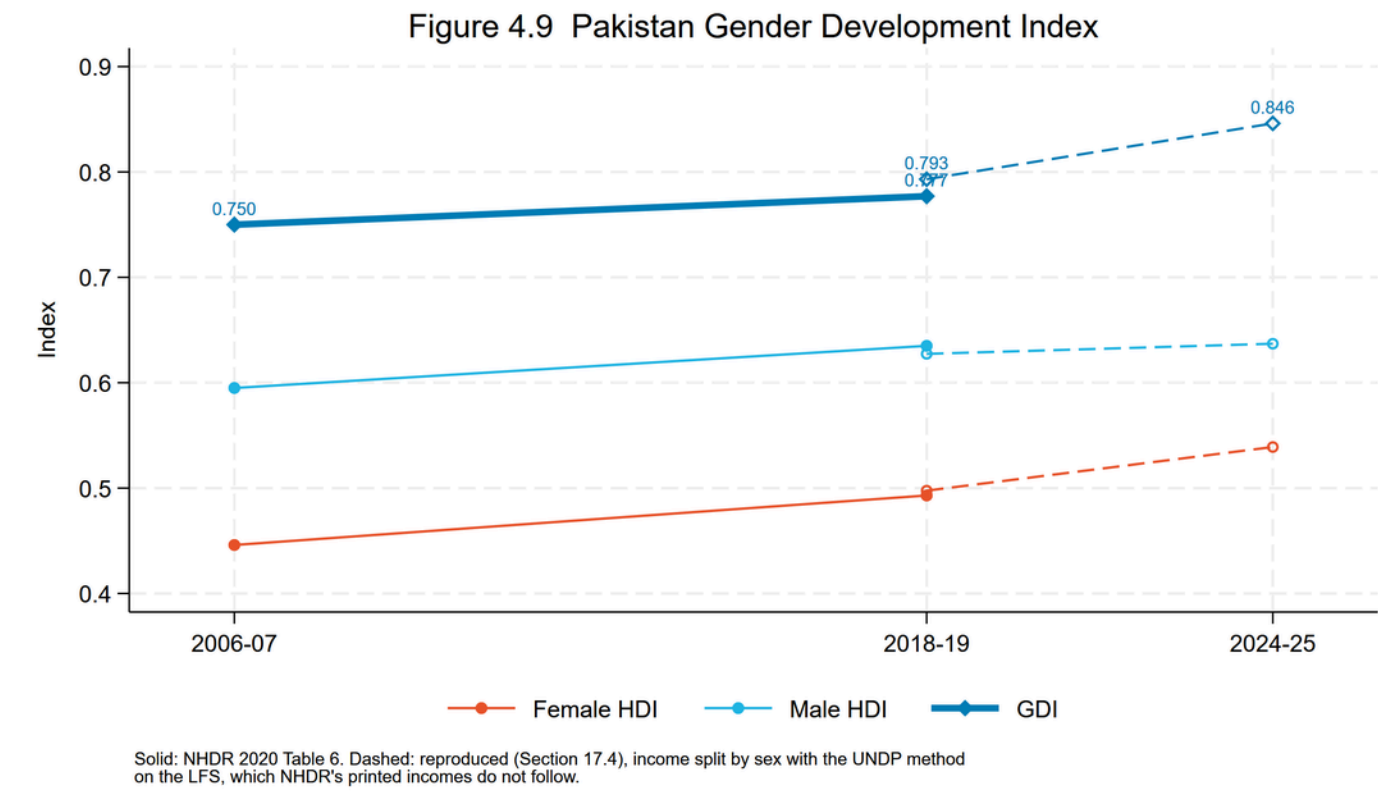

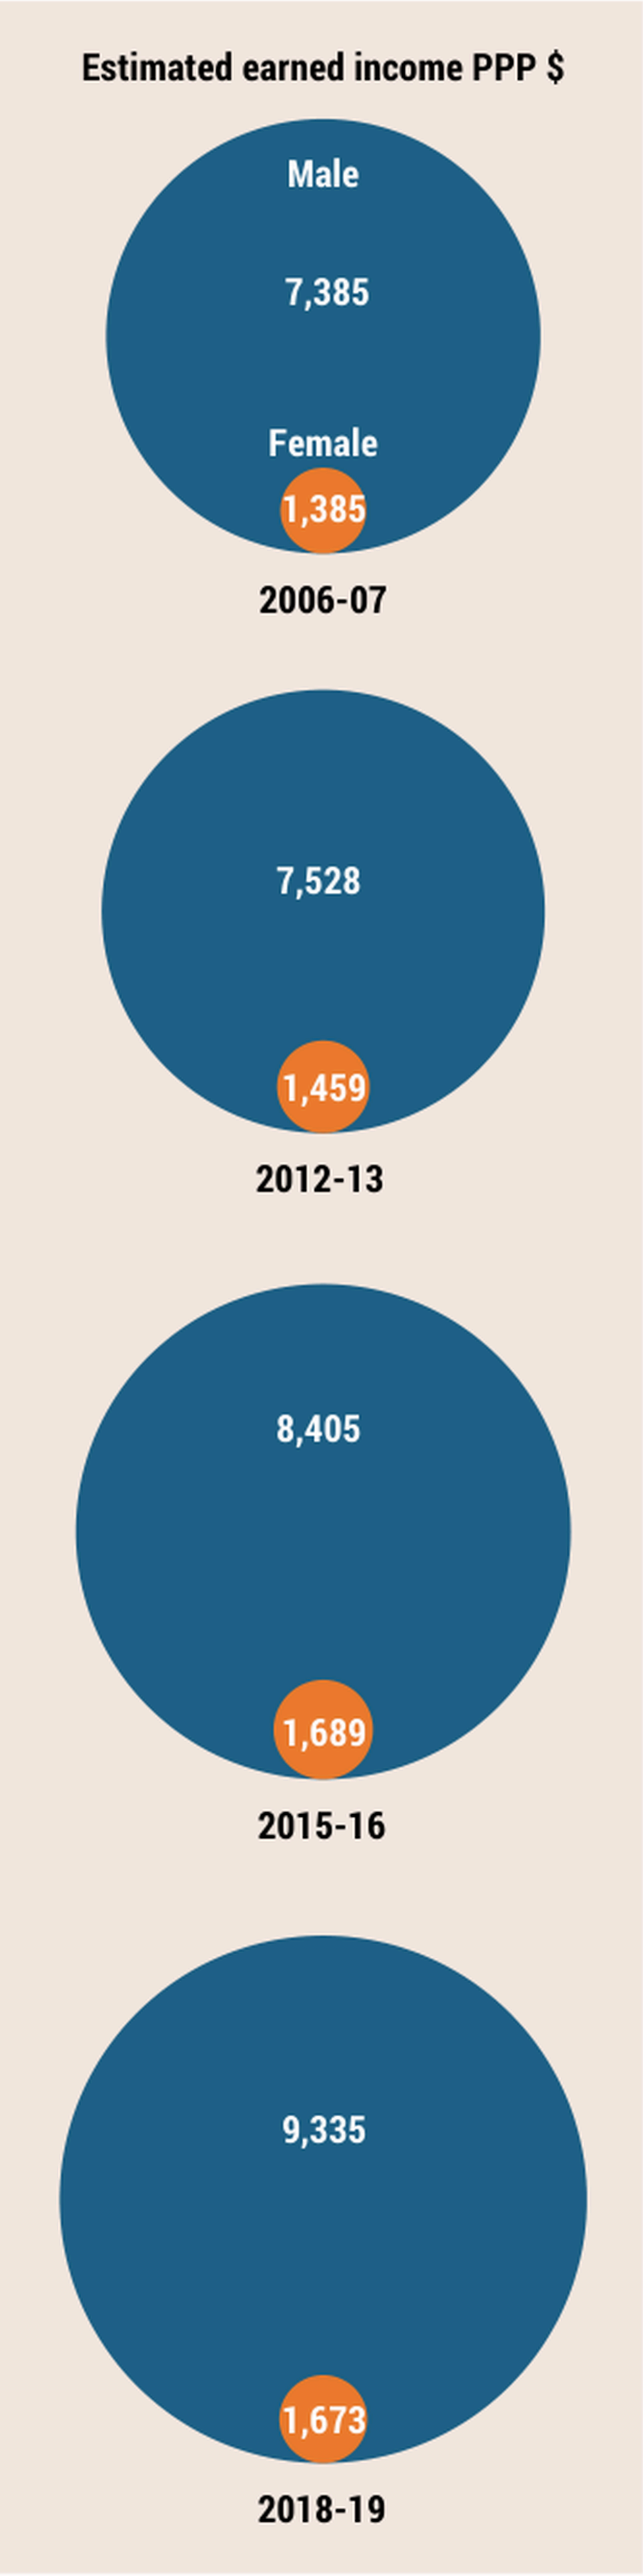

FIGURE 4.10

Wider gap in female and male earnings, (2006-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on multiple years of National Accounts, LFS, and Population Census, 2017.

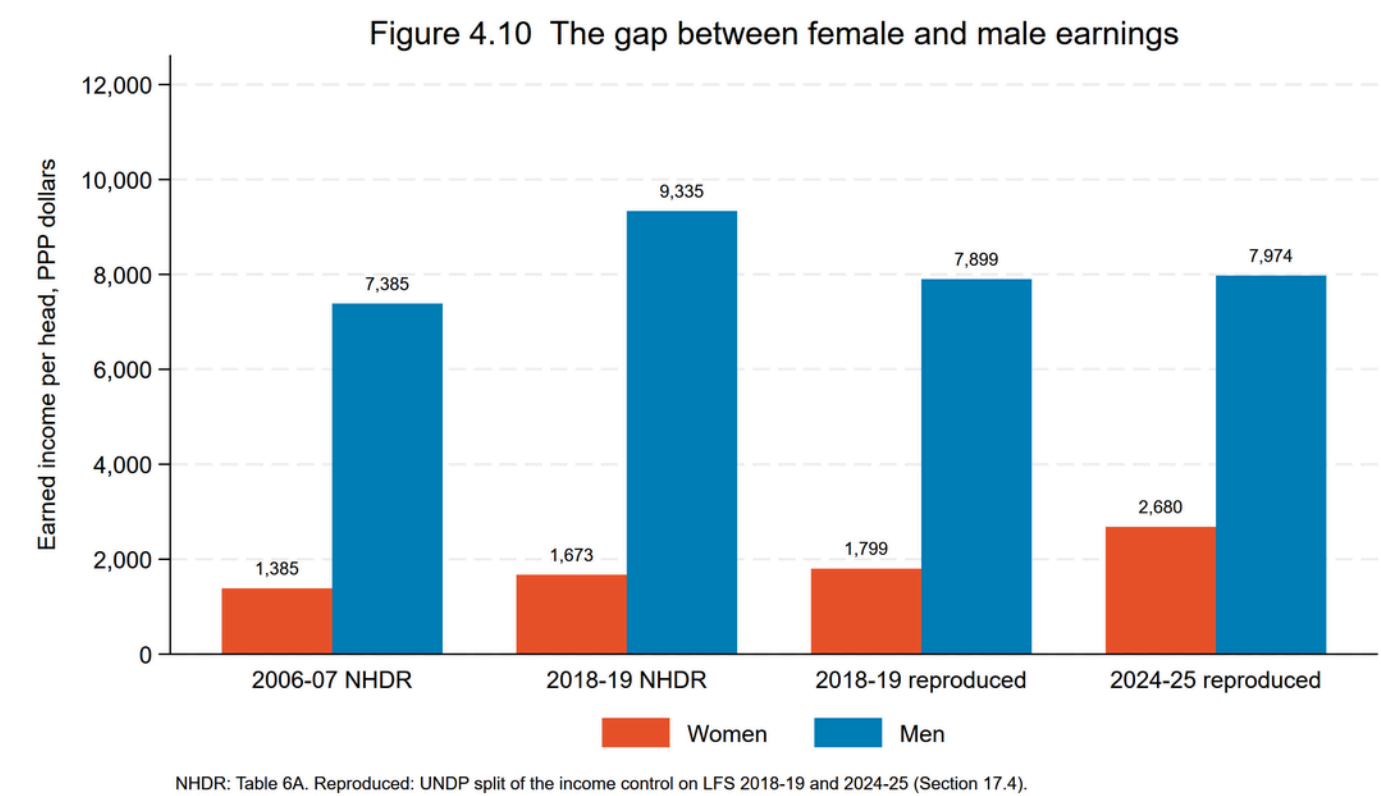

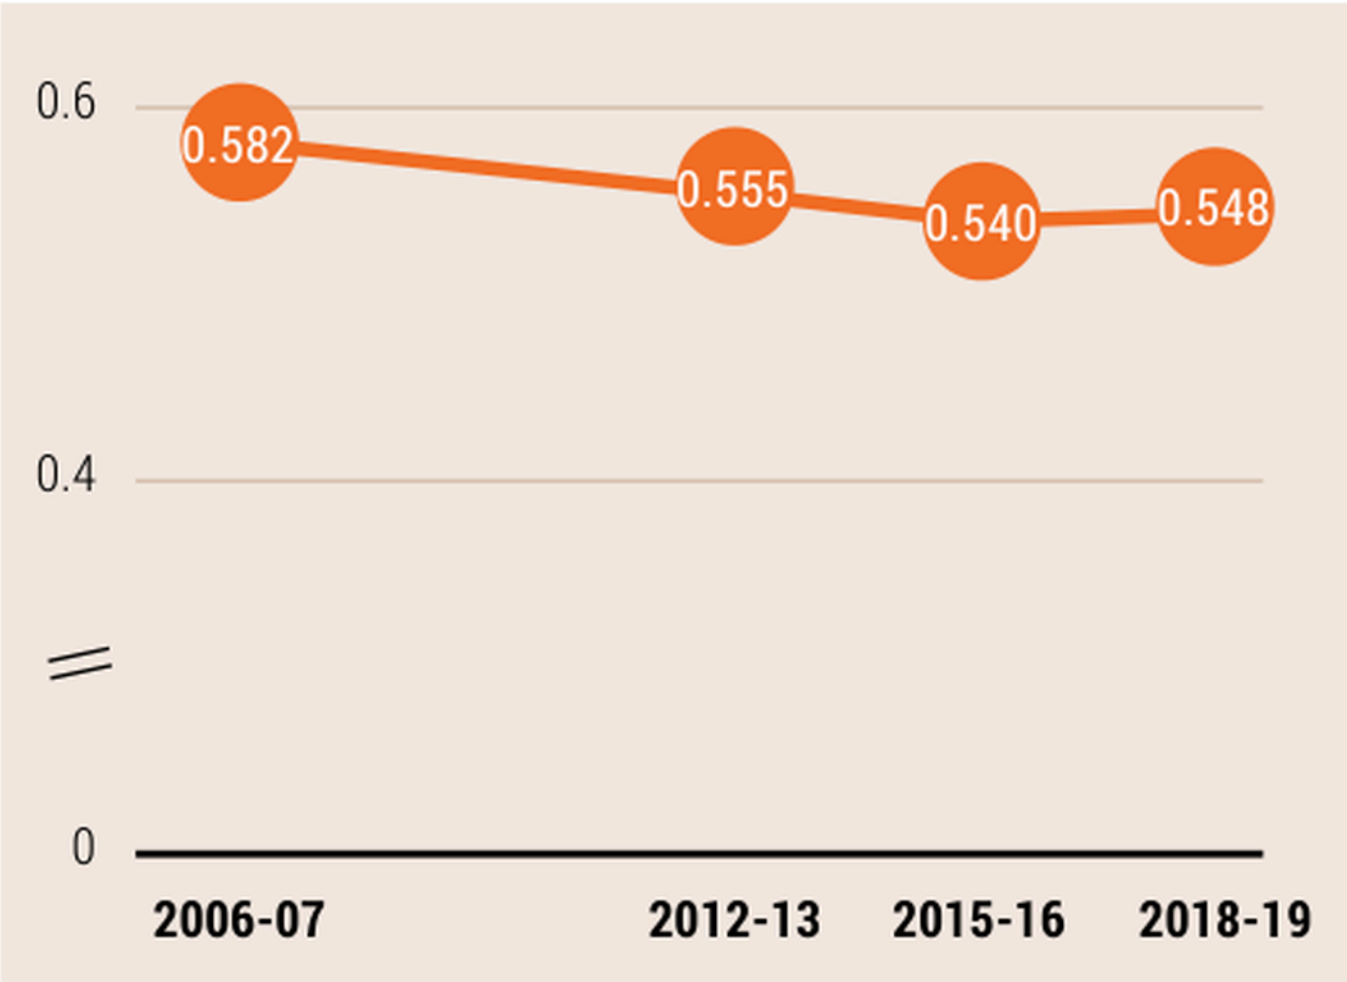

Figure 4.11 Pakistan's Gender Inequality Index over the years, (2006-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 4.11

Pakistan's Gender Inequality Index over the years, (2006-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on multiple sources of PSLM, LFS; and Khan, A., & Naqvi, S. 2018.

Reproduced from microdata

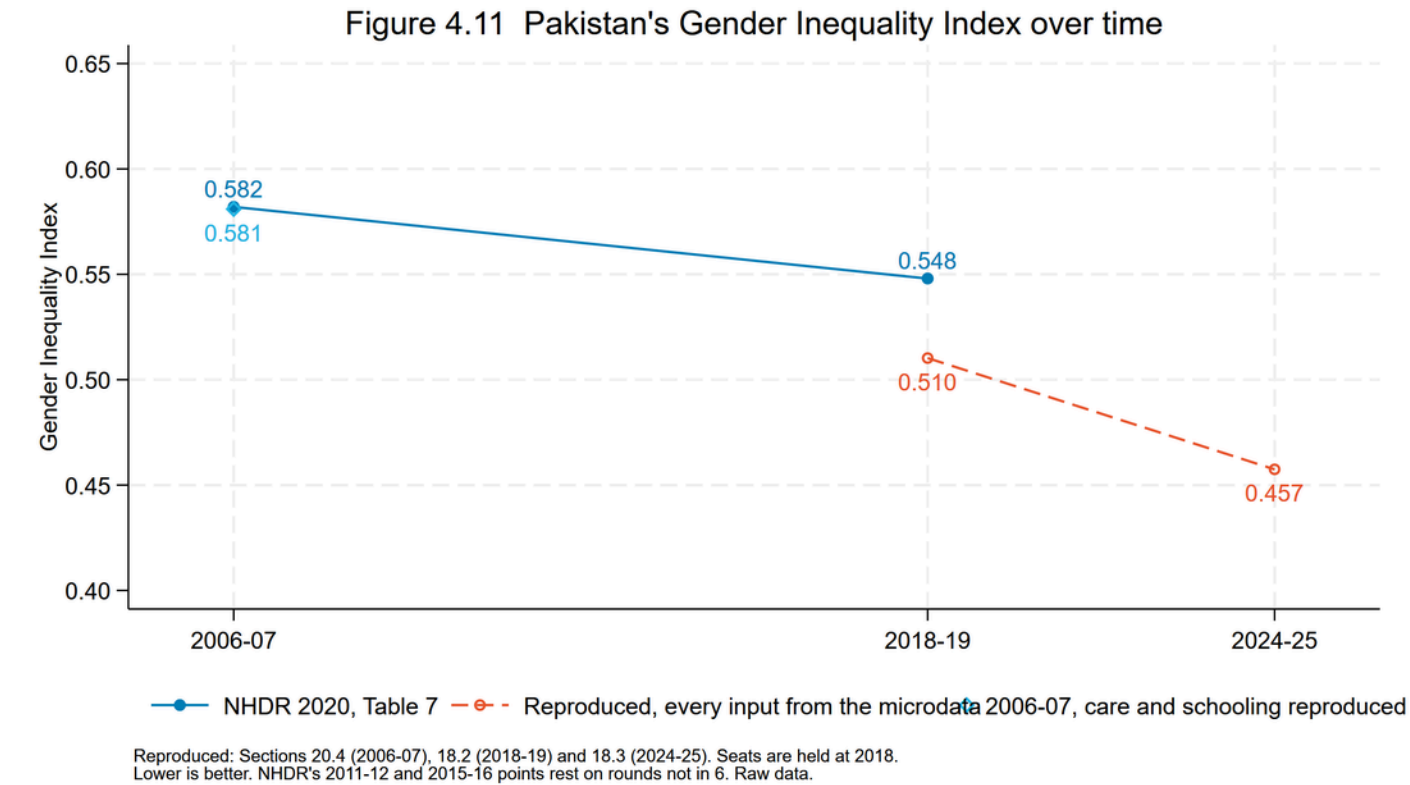

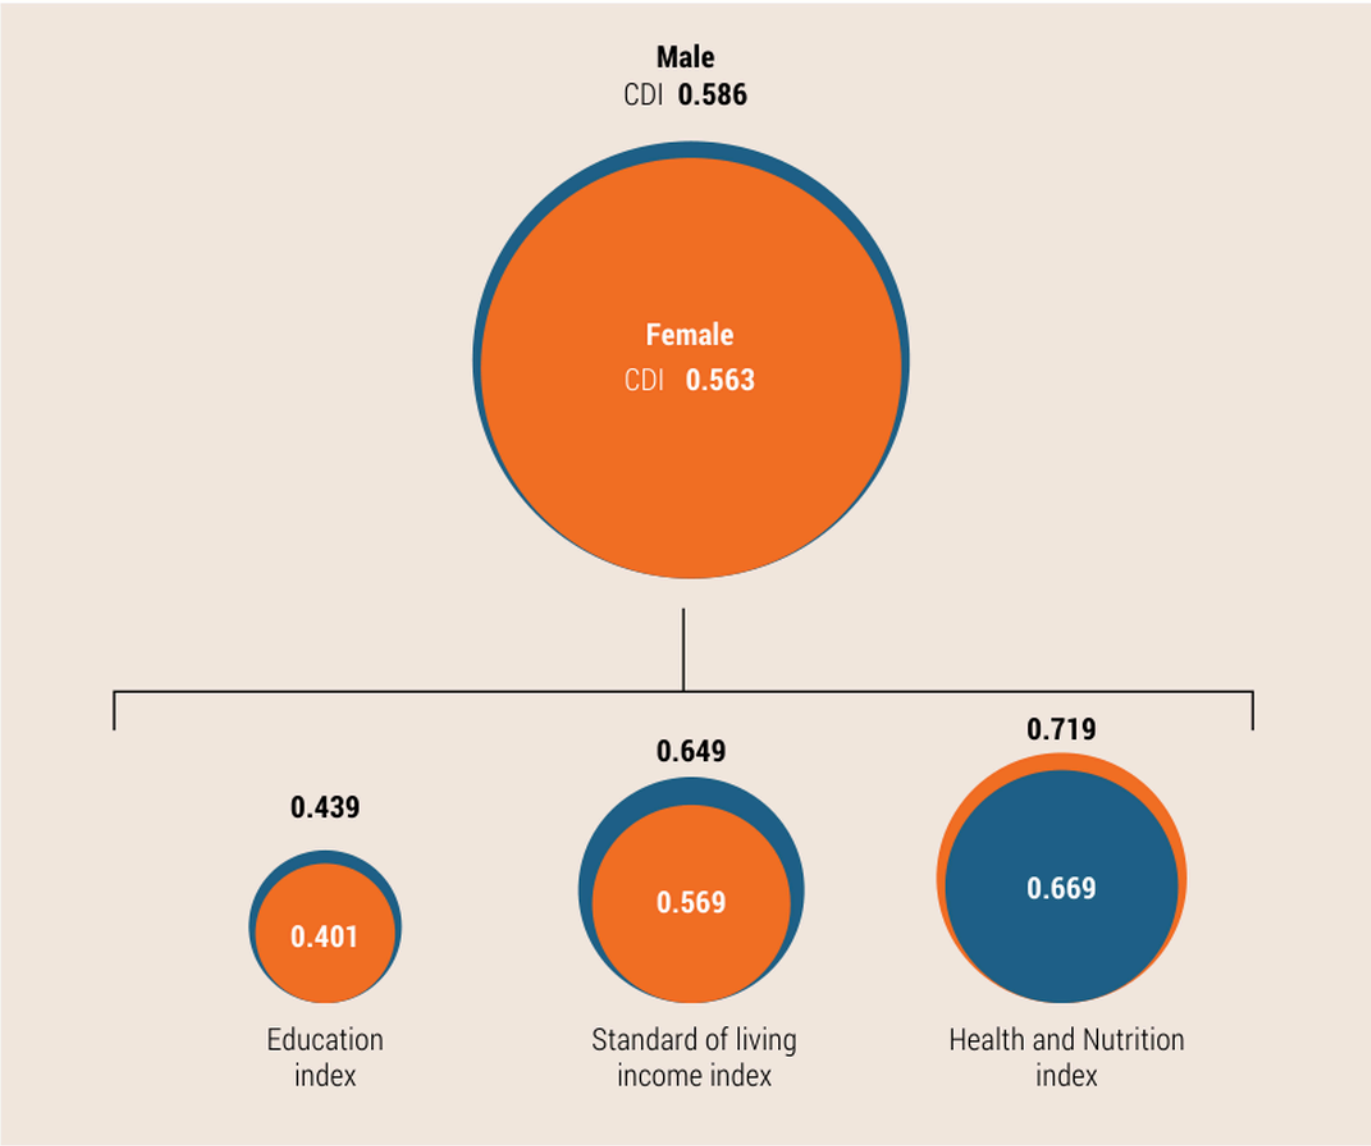

Figure 4.12 Gender-based Child Development Index, (2018-2019)

Published, NHDR 2020

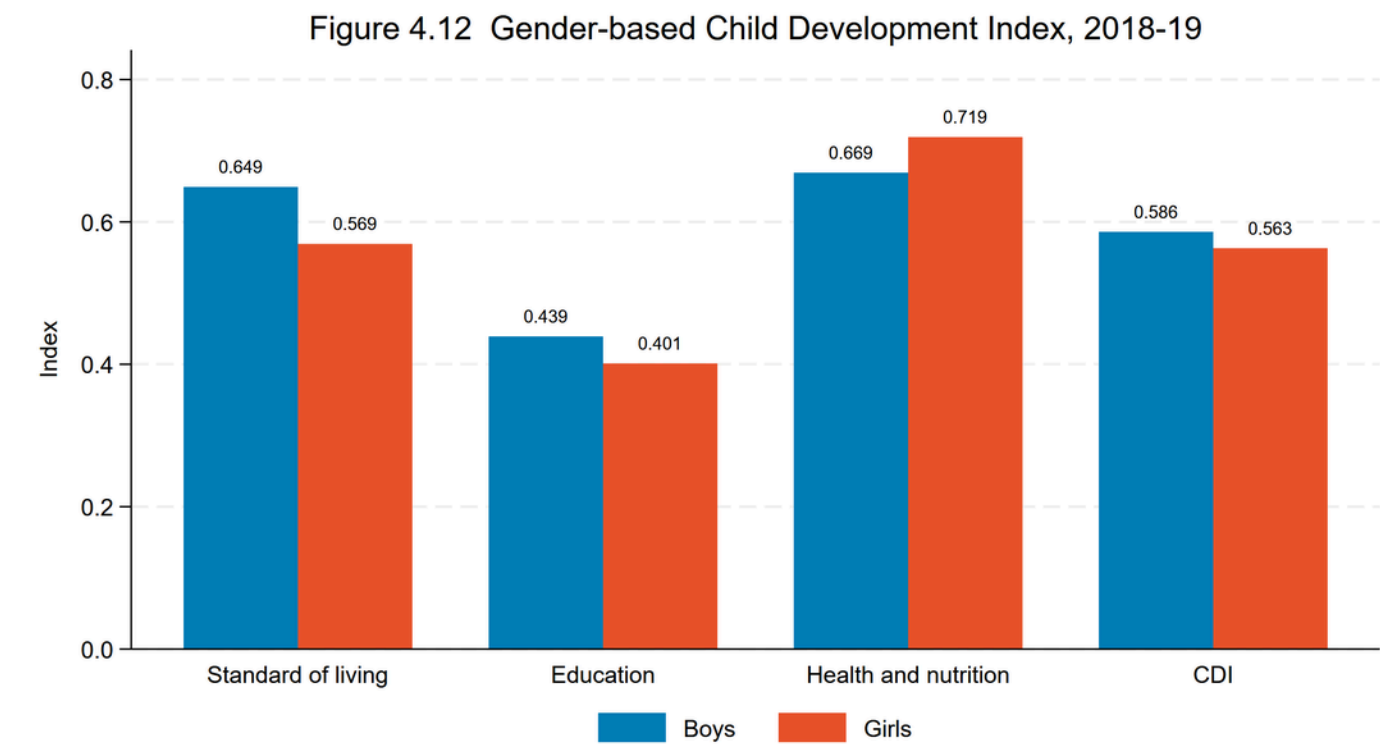

FIGURE 4.12

Gender-based Child Development Index, (2018-2019)

Source: UNDP calculations based on HIES, 2018-2019; PSLM, 2018-2019; PDHS, 2017-2018.

Reproduced from microdata

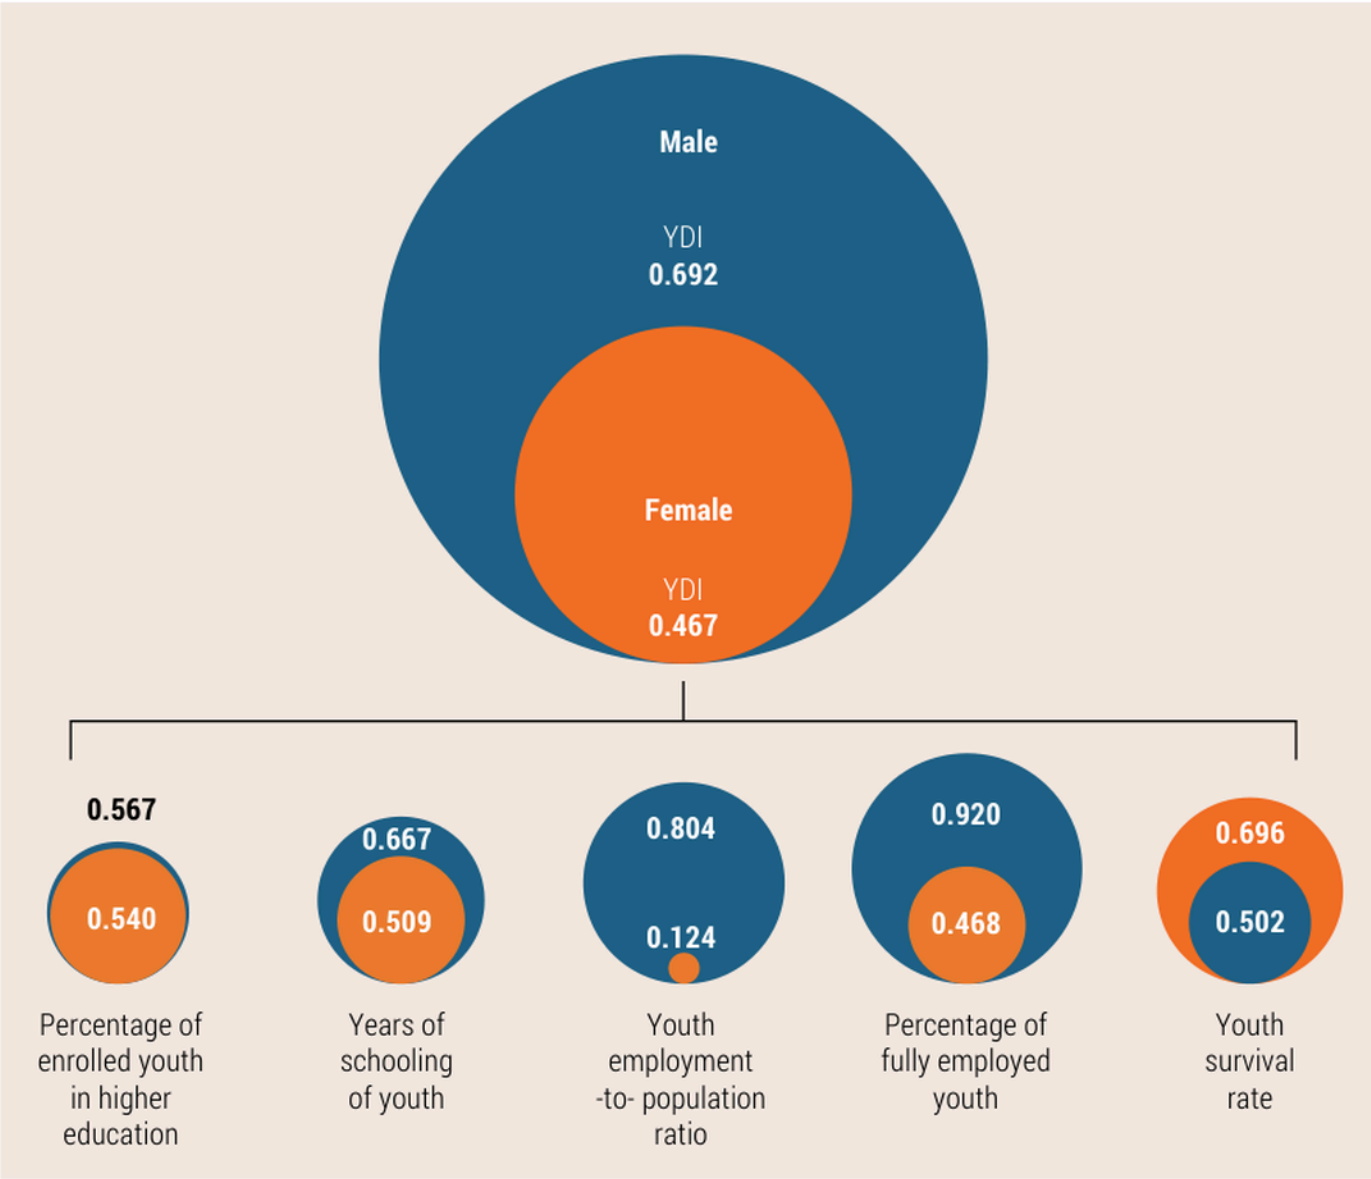

NHDR 2020 Table 4 as printed. Section 8A reproduces its PDHS inputs from the microdata.

Figure 4.13 The male YDI is twice the female YDI, (2018)

Published, NHDR 2020

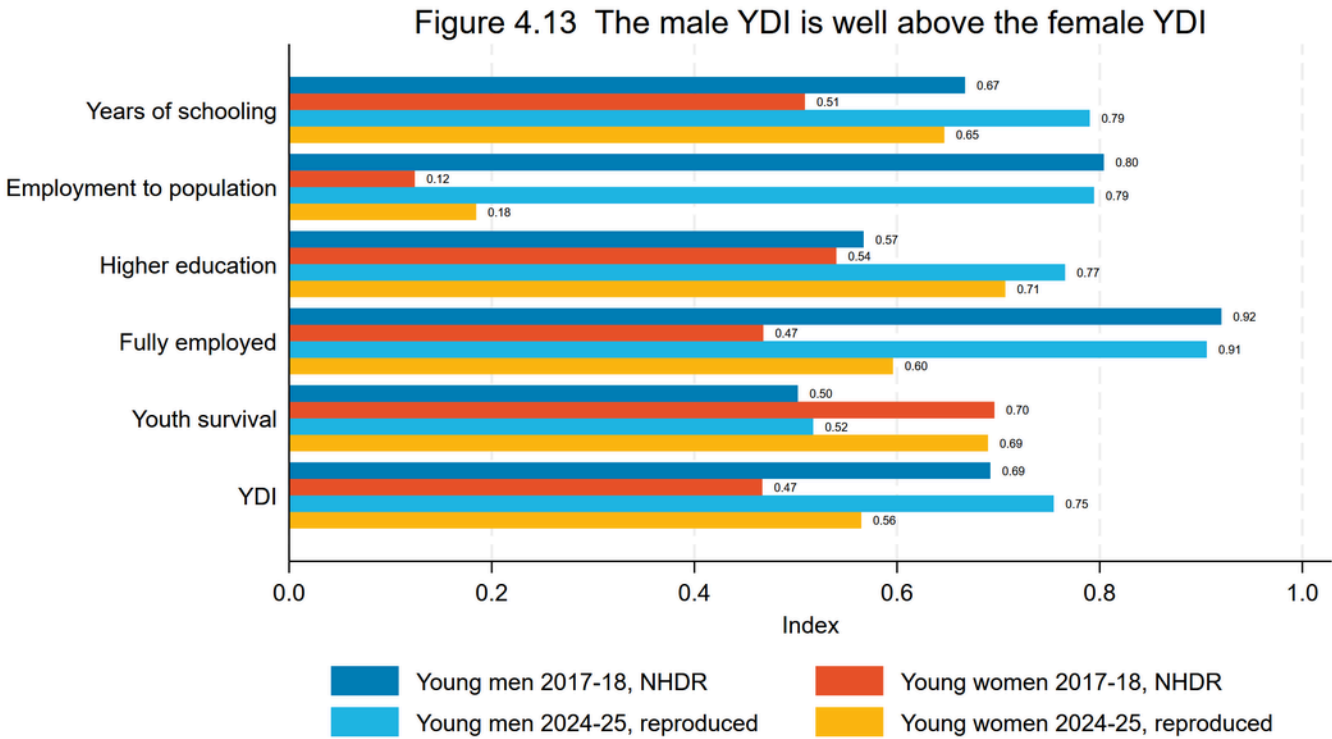

FIGURE 4.13

The male YDI is twice the female YDI, (2018)

Source: UNDP calculations based on LFS, 2017-2018 and PMMS, 2019.

Reproduced from microdata

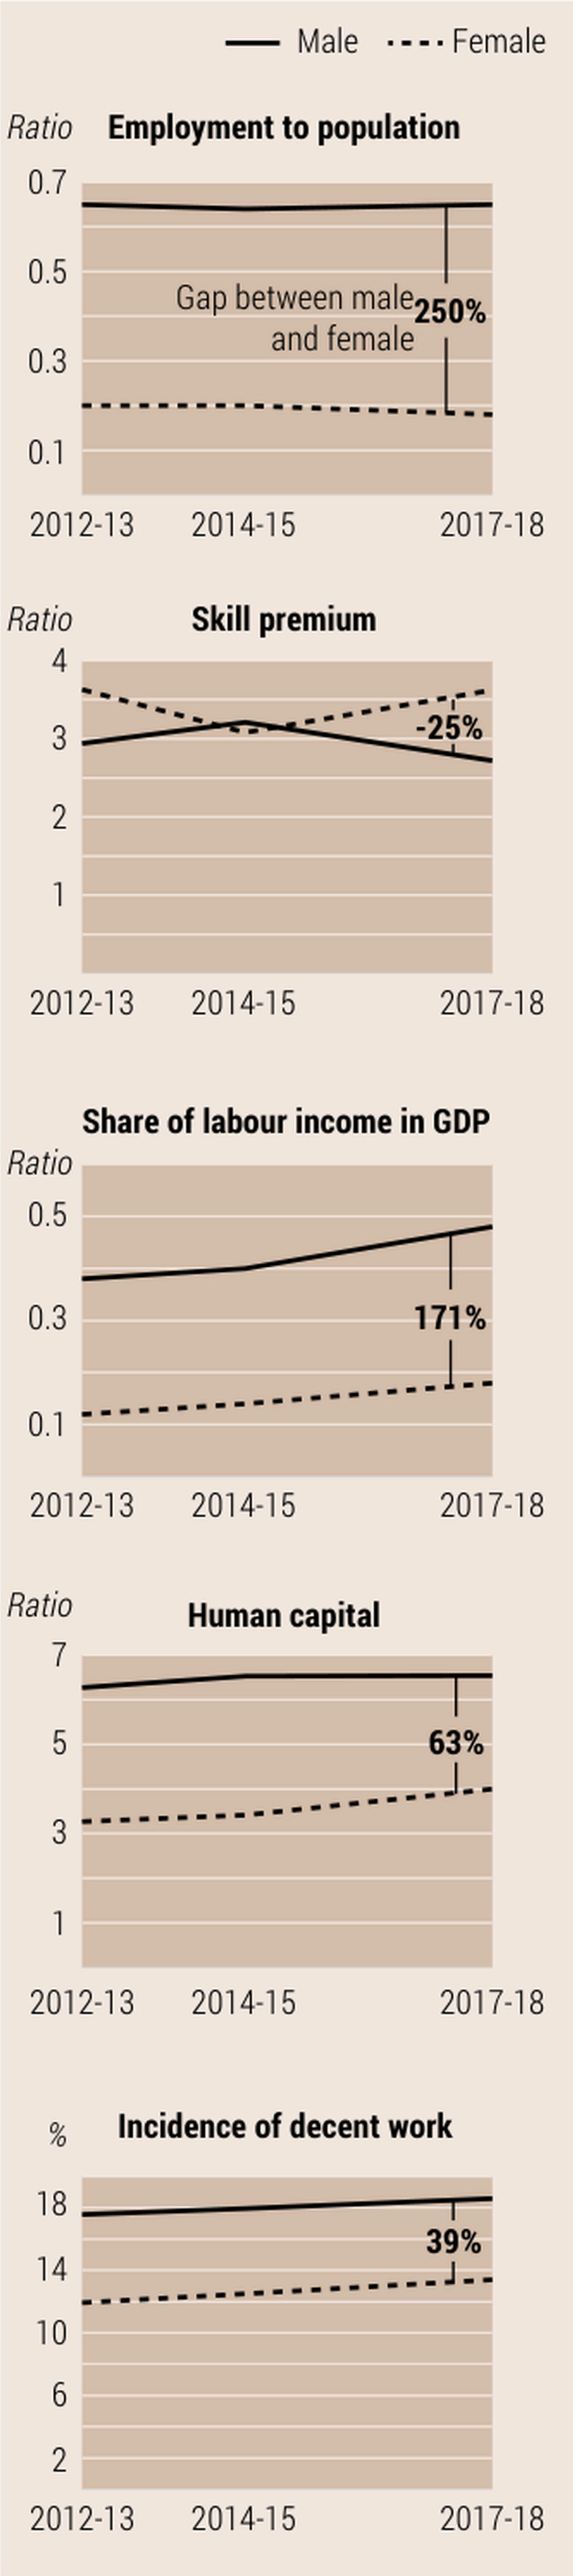

NHDR 2020 Table 5 as printed, and LFS 2024-25 (Section 24).

Figure 4.15 Dimensions of the Labour Development Index revealing gender discrimination in the labour market, (2012-2018)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 4.15

Dimensions of the Labour Development Index revealing gender discrimination in the labour market, (2012-2018)

Source: UNDP calculations based on Pasha 2019 and multiple years of LFS.

Reproduced from microdata

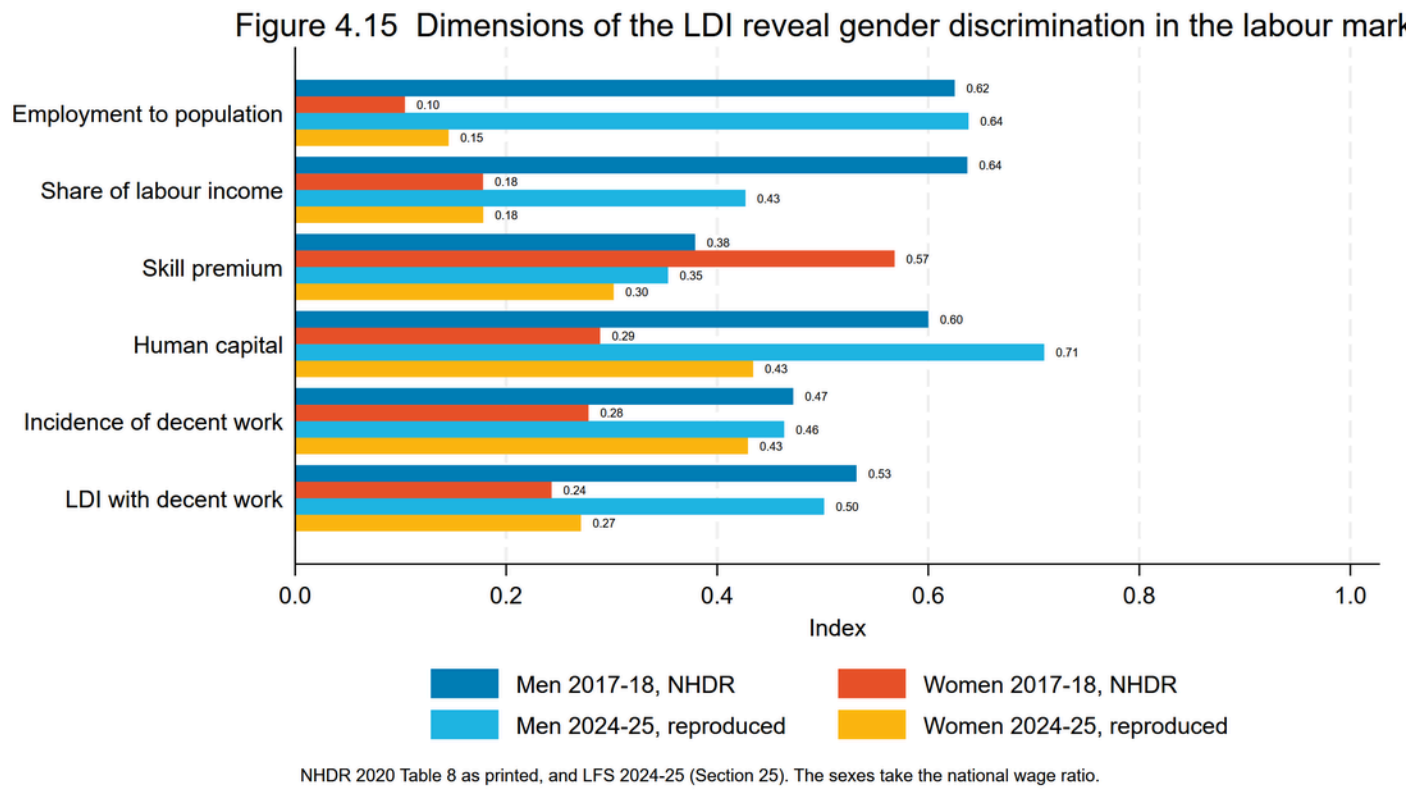

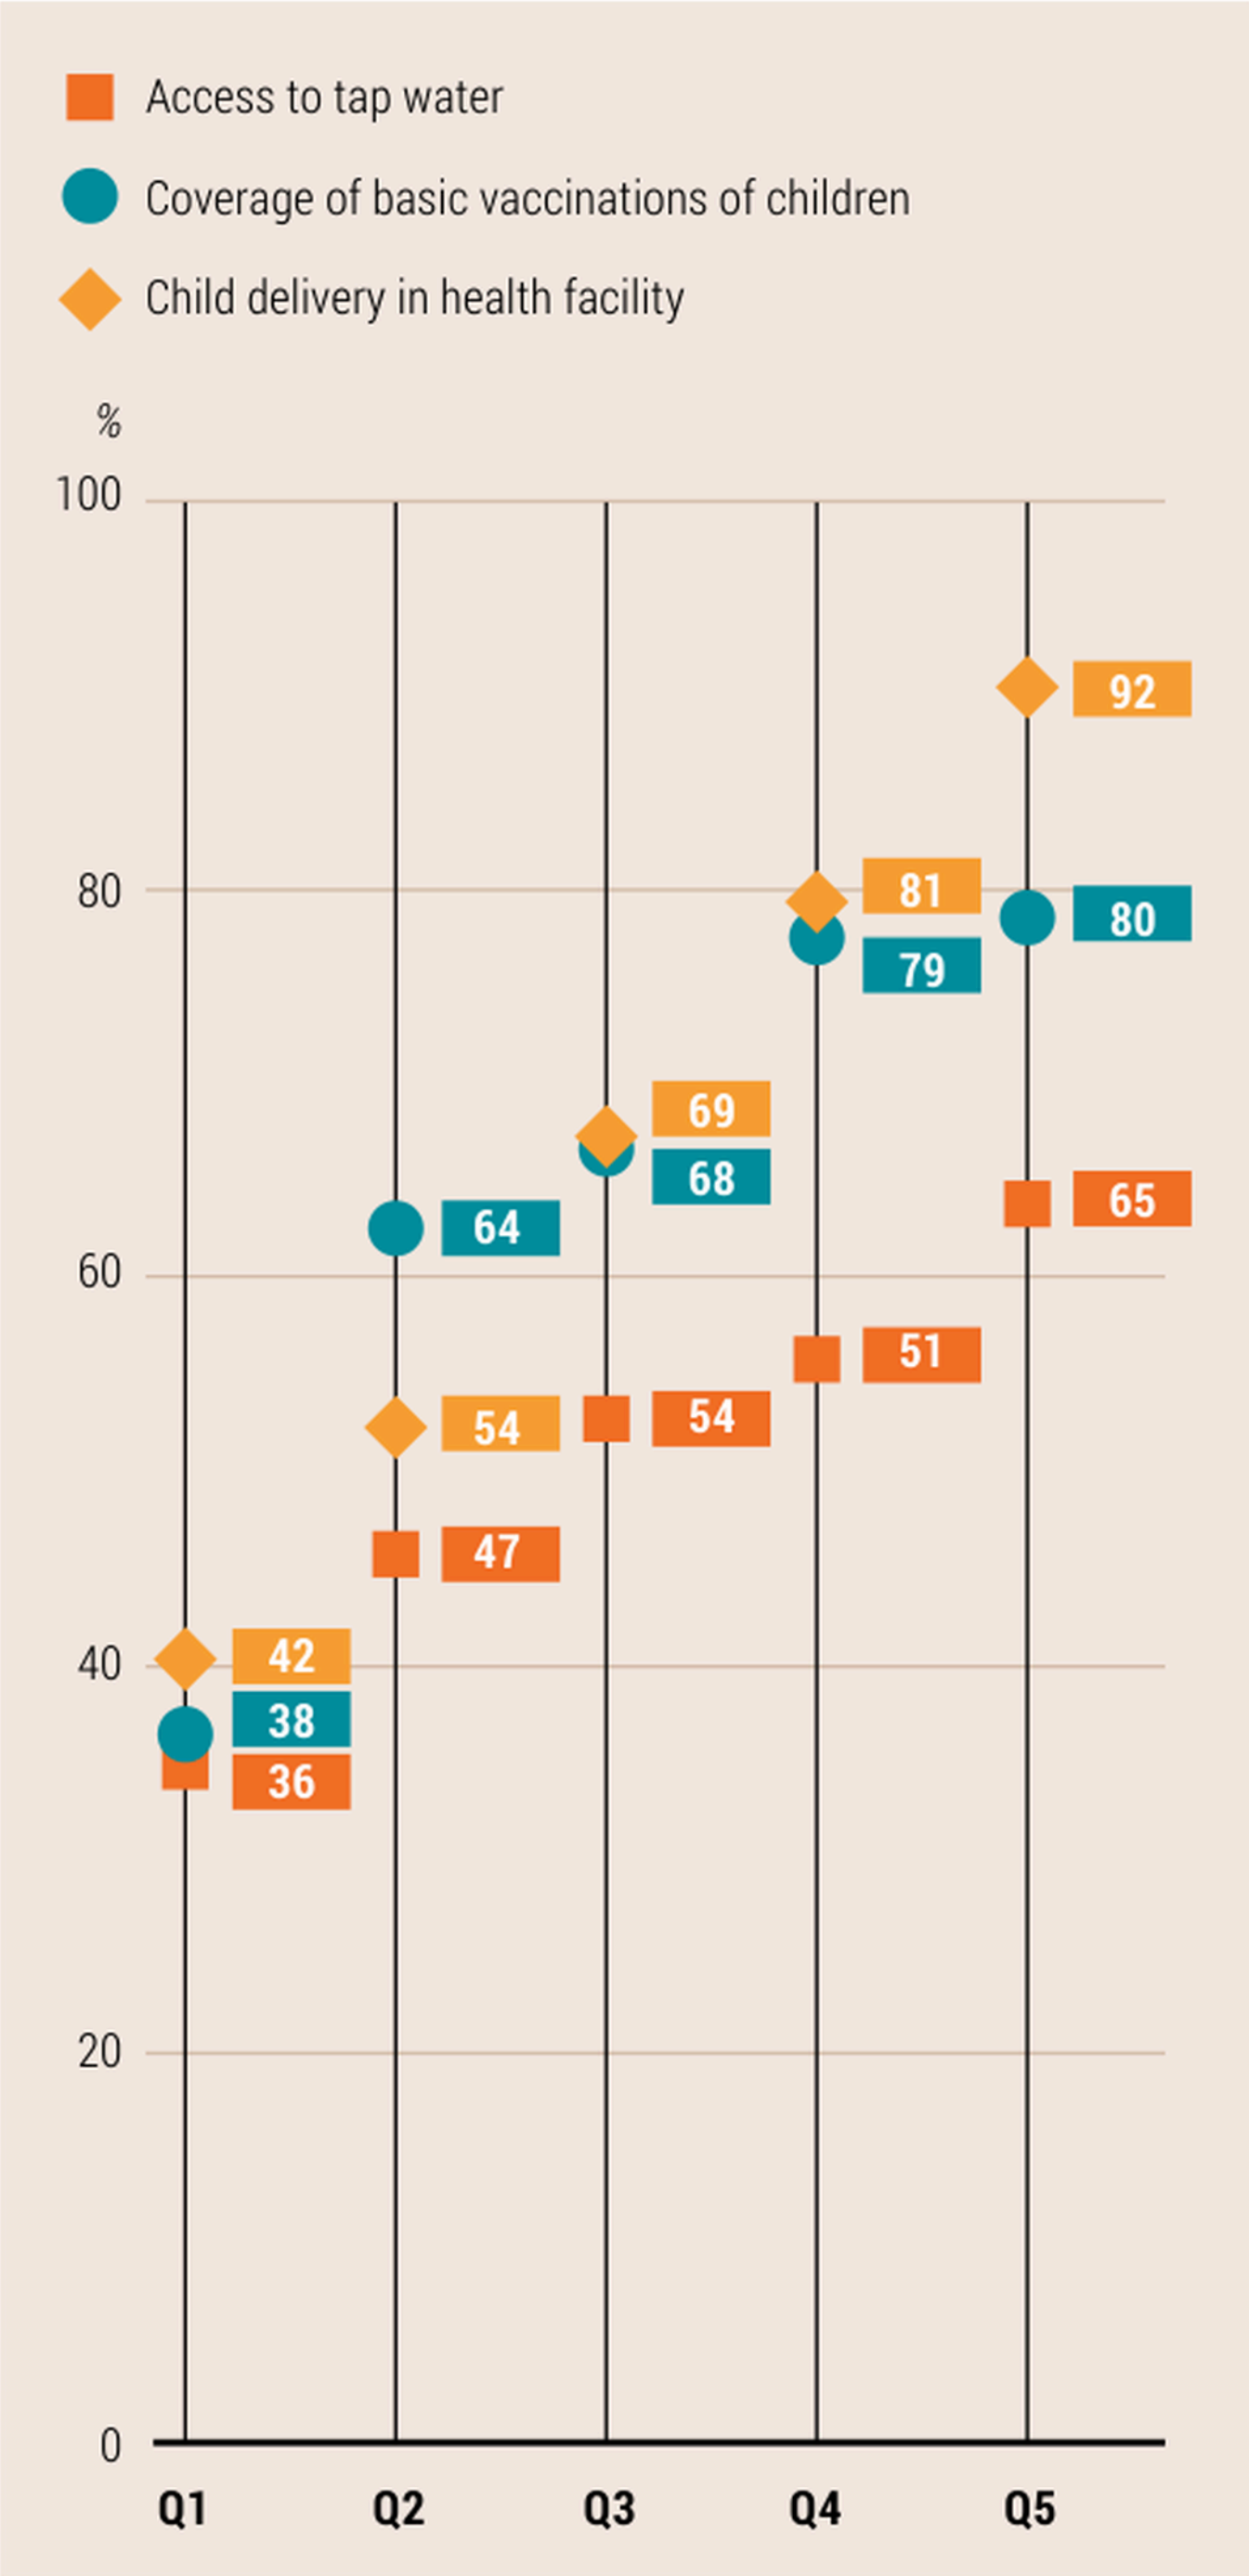

Figure 5.19 Richest households have higher access to health services as compared to poorest (%), (2017-2018)

Published, NHDR 2020

FIGURE 5.19

Richest households have higher access to health services as compared to poorest (%), (2017-2018)

Source: Government of Pakistan 2019g.

Reproduced from microdata

